COUNCIL OF EUROPE

CONSEIL DE L'EUROPE

18 November is the European Day on the Protection of Children against Sexual Exploitation and Sexual Abuse*

Recent technologies such as the Internet and social media are bringing new challenges to child protection. For this reason, the Council of Europe proposes that the 2017 edition of the European Day should focus on the specific theme of “The protection of children against sexual exploitation and sexual abuse facilitated by information and communication technologies (ICTs)”. All types of activities around this theme are welcome in order to encourage exchanges between children and parents, and among parliamentarians, educators and other professionals who face the challenges of this technological development.

The Council of Europe will provide its partners with a series of tutorials (videos) as well as a booklet addressed to parents to give them information and advice in order to better understand the risks incurred by children, on the following themes:

- ▶ digital parenting;
- ▶ sextortion;
- ▶ sexting;
- ▶ sex chatting;
- ▶ grooming;
- ▶ sexualised images used in revenge (revenge porn).
