

Ulrich Bunjes

Ulrich Bunjes is the Special Representative of the Secretary General of the Council of Europe (Strasbourg, France) for Roma Issues. He has a degree in sociology and Far Eastern Studies from the University of Hamburg (Germany). Besides his long-standing experience in senior executive functions in national, European and global NGOs, he has since 1978 worked intermittently in various functions for the Council of Europe, including on the first “All different - All equal” anti-racism youth campaign (1994-1996), on the “White Paper on Intercultural Dialogue” (launched in 2008) and as Head of the Youth Department. Between 2012 and 2014 he was the Special Coordinator of the Directorate General of Democracy of the Council of Europe.

Ulrich Bunjes has published widely on youth policy and intercultural dialogue issues, most recently “The intercultural milestone: the history of the Council of Europe’s White Paper on intercultural dialogue” (in: Barrett, M [ed.] 2013, “Interculturalism and multiculturalism: similarities and differences”, Council of Europe Publishing, Strasbourg).