Who is INHOPE?

- INHOPE represents and co-ordinates the global network of 36 Internet Hotlines in 31 countries, supporting them in their fight against illegal content to make the Internet safer
- INHOPE was founded in 1999 under the European Commission's Safer Internet Action Plan to combat these growing concerns

The Problem

- The definition of illegal content relies on national legislations. Illegal content might concern:
 - Child Sexual Abuse Images
 - Extreme violence
 - Racism and xenophobia
 - Bestiality
 - Grooming
 - Online hate & xenophobia websites
 - Adult pornography

Internet Hotlines

- National contact point for the public to report illegal content on the Internet
- Illegality of the reported sites is investigated by trained professional analysts & origin of the illegal sites is traced
- Information concerning the illegal site is passed to the Member Hotline in the country of origin
- Hotline in the country of origin informs national LEA
- Law enforcement procedures undertaken at national and international level
- Internet Service Provider contacted by the Law enforcement or the Hotline – depending on the national agreement

INHOPE Goals

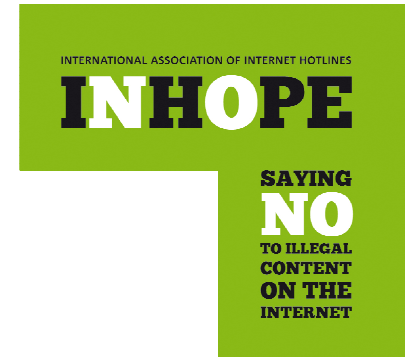

- To maintain a worldwide network of national Hotlines
- To ensure rapid and effective response to reports of illegal content by developing consistent, effective and secure mechanisms for exchange of reports between Hotlines internationally
- To implement INHOPE best practice standards, instigate training and encourage exchange of expertise

Union

- To expand the network of INHOPE Members
- Informing policy makers, particularly at the international level
- To raise awareness of INHOPE and Member Hotlines as a single point of contact for global reports of illegal content
- To identify new trends in cyber crime and develop solutions

International Cooperation

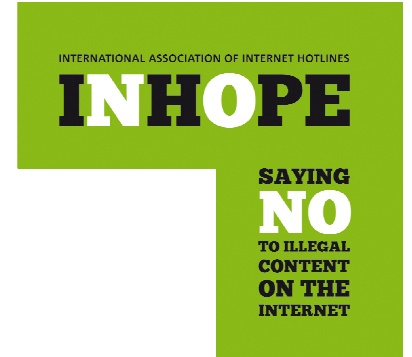

- Illegal activity on the Internet is a cross border problem
- Often material reported to Hotlines is hosted beyond the borders of their own country
- Internet Hotlines have proven to be an effective first line of defence against illegal activity online
- INHOPE is a single point of contact for global reports of illegal content
