

Mr Rudolf Christoffersen is a Norwegian national. He has a Law degree from the University of Bergen and has worked as a prosecutor in Norway since 2002. He currently works at the Norwegian desk of Eurojust in The Hague and is a member of Eurojust trafficking in human beings team and the Eurojust thematic group on Illegal Immigrant smuggling.

Mr Christoffersen is also a member of the Norwegian National Expert group on Human Trafficking, working on organised crime and trafficking in human beings since 2008, mainly as a prosecutor in charge of police investigations related to human trafficking.

Mr Christoffersen has run training programmes on human trafficking and has taught courses on criminal law and criminal procedure law in Norway. In 2010 he was a member of a project group supported by the Council of the Baltic Sea States which looked at the challenges facing law enforcement and child protection when it comes to protecting children suspected of being trafficked for exploitation in begging and/or in criminality.

January 2017