

Supporting Institutional Responses to Combatting Violence against Women

Jurgita Pečiūrienė

Violence against women is rooted in women's unequal status in society and that status reflects the unbalanced distribution of social, political and economic power among women and men in society.

Challenges in data collection

- ✓ Data not collected for statistical purposes
- ✓ Different counting rules and data recorded at different stages
- ✓ Differences in legal definitions and/or lack of legislation
- ✓ Lack of disaggregation
- ✓ Inadequate inter-sectoral coordination
- ✓ Limited accuracy, reliability and accessibility

Progress on data collection

- ✓ Most of the Member States committed to improve data collection
- ✓ Physical and sexual violence are recognised as distinct forms of intimate partner violence in all Member States
- ✓ Coordinating bodies for data collection are established in some Member States

Ways forward on data collection

- ✓ Administrative data are important to inform policy-makers and to support evidence-based policy making.
- ✓ Further harmonisation of data is needed
- ✓ The coordination of data collection at EU level will allow to meet data reporting requirements and create synergies
- ✓ Adoption of EIGE's 13 indicators will ensure comparable data and support MS in meeting the reporting requirements
