Motivation

It is a great honor for me to advance my candidacy as rapporteur to the Council of Europe Conference of INGOs.

As president of European Democrat Students, one of the largest pro-European student associations, born in Vienna in 1961 and made up of 42 national member associations, my commitment will be to bring the needs of students and young generations to the board table.

Over the years I have presented policies that have become the positions shared by the main European parties. approaching European Commissioners, MEPs and CoE delegates to improve legislation on education, research and transparency.

With the CoE we organized an event in Split, Croatia, called "Youth against Corruption", which became a few weeks ago, a resolution of the Parliamentary Assembly of the Council of Europe.

I believe in the creation of policies that affect all Europeans, and that must come from the experience and the activity carried out by the numerous INGOS operating throughout Europe.

I will also want to contribute to the communication of the Conference, using both traditional and more advanced channels.

I would be proud to represent all associations as rapporteur, making myself available to represent your requests and the requests to the Council of Europe.
