

INFORMATION NOTE

The Council of Europe Convention on the Protection of Children against Sexual Exploitation and Sexual Abuse

Background information

The Council of Europe Convention for the protection of children against sexual exploitation and sexual abuse (CETS N°201) was adopted and opened for signature on 25 October 2007 in Lanzarote, Spain. For this reason, it is also known as “the Lanzarote Convention”.

The Lanzarote Convention entered into force on 1 July 2010. To date, it has been ratified by all 46 Council of Europe member states and two non-member states, namely the Russian Federation and Tunisia.

Any non-member State of the Council of Europe may request accession to the Lanzarote Convention. Tunisia was the first non-member State to accede to the Lanzarote Convention. The Committee of Ministers of the Council of Europe also agreed to accept such a request by the Kingdom of Morocco, which has not yet deposited its instrument of accession.

The State Parties to the Lanzarote Convention are: Albania, Andorra, Austria, Armenia, Azerbaijan, Belgium, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Bulgaria, Croatia, Cyprus, Czechia, Denmark, Estonia, Finland, France, Georgia, Germany, Greece, Hungary, Iceland, Ireland, Italy, Latvia, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxemburg, Malta, Republic of Moldova, Monaco, Montenegro, the Netherlands, North Macedonia, Norway, Poland, Portugal, Romania, Russian Federation, San Marino, Serbia, Slovak Republic, Slovenia, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Tunisia, Turkey, Ukraine and United Kingdom.

Purpose of the Lanzarote Convention

The Lanzarote Convention is the most ambitious and comprehensive international (potentially universal) legal instrument on the protection of children against sexual exploitation and sexual abuse. Its drafters took as a starting point the relevant United Nations and Council of Europe standards, extending them to cover all possible kinds of sexual offences against children (including sexual abuse of a child, exploitation of children through prostitution, grooming and corruption of children through exposure to sexual content and activities and offences related to child abuse material). The Convention covers sexual abuse within the “circle of trust”, namely in the child’s family or by other people in a position of authority, trust or influence over the child, as well as acts carried out for commercial or profit-making purposes. It sets forth that States in Europe and beyond shall establish specific legislation to criminalise such behaviour and take measures with an emphasis on keeping the best interest of children at the forefront, to prevent sexual violence but also to protect child victims and prosecute perpetrators. It also promotes international cooperation to achieve the same objectives.

Prevention

Inter alia, the Lanzarote Convention establishes that:

- children should be made aware of the risks of sexual exploitation and sexual abuse and should be empowered to protect themselves;
- persons working in contact with children should be screened and trained;
- intervention programmes or measures for sexual offenders (whether convicted or potential) should be regularly monitored.

Protection

Inter alia, the Lanzarote Convention establishes that:

- the reporting of suspicion of sexual exploitation or sexual abuse be encouraged;
- telephone and Internet help lines be set-up;
- programmes to support victims and their families be established;
- therapeutic assistance and emergency psychological care be provided;
- child-friendly judicial proceedings for protecting the victim's safety, privacy, identity and image be put in place (e.g. the number of interviews with child victims has to be limited, the interview has to be carried out in a reassuring place, with professionals trained for the purpose).

Prosecution

The Lanzarote Convention sets forth the following criminal offences:

- Article 18: "sexual abuse";
- Article 19: "child prostitution";
- Articles 20: "child pornography";
- Article 21: "participation of a child in pornographic performances";
- Article 22: "corruption of children";
- Article 23: "solicitation of children for sexual purposes" (also known as "online grooming").

The Lanzarote Convention requests countries to extend their statute of limitation on sexual offences against children so that proceedings may be initiated after the victim has reached the adult legal age. It also establishes common criteria to ensure that an effective, proportionate and dissuasive punitive system is put in place in all countries and foresees the possibility of prosecuting a citizen for a crime even when committed abroad ("extraterritoriality principle"). For example, prosecution can be brought against sexual offenders when they return to their home country.

Promotion of national and international co-operation

Cooperation is essential to achieve the effective implementation of the Lanzarote Convention. To understand the potential of national and international cooperation, it is sufficient to refer to the following:

- With regard to exploitation of children in/for prostitution, the Lanzarote Convention establishes links between demand and supply of children by requiring criminal sanctions for both the "recruiters" and the "users";
- With regard to child abuse material, the production, offering, distribution, possession and online viewing of such material are all to be criminalised according to the Convention;
- Grooming has been included in the Lanzarote Convention, reflecting the increasingly worrying phenomenon of children being sexually harmed when meeting up with adults initially encountered in cyberspace, specifically in Internet chat rooms or on game sites.

Cooperation helps countries identify and analyse problems, find and apply common solutions, share data and expertise, combat impunity and improve prevention and protection measures. It is therefore essential that both European and non-European countries become parties to the Lanzarote Convention.

Monitoring the implementation of the Lanzarote Convention

The "Lanzarote Committee" (i.e. the Committee of the Parties to the Convention) is the body established to monitor whether Parties effectively implement the Lanzarote Convention. The monitoring procedure is divided by rounds, each round concerning a theme.

All Parties are monitored at the same time. The aim is to create a momentum around a specific aspect of the monitoring theme in all Parties at the same time, which in turn fosters exchange of promising practices and encourages the identification of inadequacies or difficulties. It also enables the Committee to provide a comparative overview of the situation in the Parties.

As available data shows that the majority of sexual abuse against children is “committed within the family framework, by persons close to the child or by those in the child’s social environment” (see Lanzarote Convention Explanatory Report, paras. 48 and 123-125), the Lanzarote Committee decided that the first monitoring round would focus on the “Protection of children against sexual abuse in the circle of trust”.

To set this first monitoring round in motion, the Lanzarote Committee prepared a “Thematic Questionnaire” to collect specific information on how Parties implement the Convention with respect to the situation of sexual abuse of children in the circle of trust. In addition it also prepared a “General Overview Questionnaire” to collect information on the general framework. All replies to both questionnaires can be found online. They are categorised by State, other stakeholders as well as by question.¹

The Committee adopted its first implementation report in December 2015. This report concerns the applicable legislation as well as judicial procedures as regards sexual abuse of children in the circle of trust. The second report, within the same monitoring round, assesses the strategies to prevent sexual abuse of children in the circle of trust, and to protect child victims. It was adopted in January 2018.

Furthermore, in light of the high number of migrant and asylum-seeking children arriving in Europe and being aware that many would have been or become victims of sexual exploitation and sexual abuse, the Committee decided in June 2016 to carry out an urgent monitoring round to map the ways in which the risks of sexual exploitation and sexual abuse of children arising in the context of the refugees crisis were being dealt with. The report of this monitoring round was adopted in March 2017. The Lanzarote Committee evaluated the follow-up given by the Parties to the recommendations of the Special Report (in June 2019 and in 2021/2022). A factsheet is available, summarising the results of this compliance procedure. Additionally, a checklist and handbook were prepared to support policy-makers and frontline practitioners to prevent and protect children from sexual exploitation and sexual abuse in the context of refugee crisis and other emergencies.

Continuing with this theme, the Lanzarote Committee decided on another urgent monitoring round to visit the transit zones of Röszke and Tompa where it appeared that children aged 14 to 18 years old were being held. The visit took place in July 2017. The Lanzarote Committee adopted in January 2018 a series of recommendations to the Hungarian authorities on the basis of a report prepared by the members of its delegation who visited the transit zones. In June 2019, the Lanzarote Committee adopted its assessment of the follow-up given by the Hungarian authorities to the recommendations addressed to them following its visit.

Building on its reflection work on trends in child sexual exploitation and abuse, the Committee decided to dedicate its second monitoring round to the following theme: “The protection of children against sexual exploitation and sexual abuse facilitated by information and communication technologies (ICTs)”. The questionnaire for this monitoring round was adopted in June 2017. It sought information specifically on the challenges that have to be addressed to ensure the protection of children against the criminal exploitation of child self-generated sexual content (in particular sexually explicit images and videos). Replies by 42 Parties to the Convention and those by other stakeholders were published online. The implementation report was adopted by the Committee in March 2022. A factsheet on the key findings of the second monitoring round is available, and so are the thematic and country-specific factsheets containing a compilation of relevant recommendations by the Committee. A compliance procedure for the second monitoring round will be launched in October 2024.

¹ The same is true for the questionnaires addressed to Parties in the context of the ensuing monitoring rounds.

At its 38th meeting (30 May-2 June 2023), the Lanzarote Committee launched the third monitoring round on the protection of children against sexual abuse in the circle of trust to monitor progress made in the 26 State Parties which participated in the first monitoring round and to monitor the situation in the 22 State Parties which have joined the Convention since that round was completed. The responses of the State Parties and other stakeholders to the legal frameworks thematic questionnaire have been published. In 2025, the Committee will start examining the policy frameworks of the State Parties.

Building on its work to protect children from sexual exploitation and sexual abuse in the context of crisis and emergency situations, the Lanzarote Committee also decided to submit questions to the Russian Federation regarding the protection against sexual exploitation and sexual abuse of Ukrainian children deported or transferred to its territory or territories temporarily occupied or controlled by it. The Russian Federation indeed is still a party to the Lanzarote Convention even if its modalities of participation in the work of the Lanzarote Committee have been restricted. The other Parties to the Convention decided to use rule 28 of its Rules of Procedure, on special reports and urgent situations, which establishes that the Lanzarote Committee may request the urgent submission of a special report concerning measures taken to prevent possible serious or persistent cases of sexual exploitation and sexual abuse against children in any Party or Parties to the Convention.

In addition to its activities carried out within the context of its monitoring rounds, the Lanzarote Committee has adopted:

- on 17 June 2015, an opinion on Article 23 of the Lanzarote Convention - Solicitation of children for sexual purposes through information and communication technologies (Grooming). While not amending the text of Article 23 of the Convention, this opinion provides Parties with a framework to enable them to also protect children from abuse committed exclusively online, where no physical meeting with the abuser has taken place;
- on 16 June 2016, a declaration condemning web addresses advertising or promoting child sexual abuse material or images or any other offences established in accordance with the Lanzarote Convention. Parties thus have to take the necessary measures to identify and remove such web addresses and to ensure that no new such addresses are registered;
- on 12 May 2017, an interpretative opinion on the applicability of the Lanzarote Convention to sexual offences against children facilitated through the use of information and communication technologies \(ICTs\);
- on 28 June 2018, a declaration on protecting migrant and refugee children against sexual exploitation and sexual abuse;
- on 6 June 2019, an opinion on child sexually suggestive or explicit images and/or videos generated, shared and received by children. In this opinion, the Lanzarote Committee considers, in particular, that "sexting" between children (producing, receiving or sharing sexually suggestive or self-explanatory images and / or videos by means of mobile technology applications) does not amount to "child pornography" behaviour where it is solely for private use. Children who have to behave in such a way should not be subject to criminal prosecution;
- on 18 October 2019, a declaration on protecting children in out-of-home care from sexual exploitation and sexual abuse;
- on 3 April 2020, a statement on stepping up protection of children against sexual exploitation and abuse in times of the COVID-19 pandemic (by the Lanzarote Committee Chairperson and Vice-Chairperson);
- on 10 March 2022, a statement on protecting children from sexual exploitation and sexual abuse resulting from the military aggression of the Russian Federation against Ukraine;
- on 11 June 2024, an opinion on Article 33 of the Lanzarote Convention and its explanatory note \(Requirements of the provision on statute of limitations and recommendations on its implementation\).

Exchanging good practices on the implementation of the Convention

The Lanzarote Committee is also mandated to facilitate the collection, analysis and exchange of information, experience and good practice between states to improve their capacity to prevent and combat sexual exploitation and sexual abuse of children. In this regard, in addition to regular exchanges of information during meetings, the Committee may organise inter alia, capacity building activities, sharing of information initiatives, hearings on specific challenges raised by the implementation of the Convention.
