

Member of the Bureau : Noel Rubotham

Curriculum Vitae

Noel Rubotham has been Head of the Reform and Development Directorate of the Irish Courts Service – the independent agency which manages the courts in Ireland - since 2002. In that role he has been involved in preparation and implementation of the various court jurisdictional and procedural reform initiatives undertaken in the Irish courts system.

A graduate of Trinity College Dublin Law School and barrister-at law, he joined the Irish High Court as a court officer in 1975, and served in various jurisdictional areas of the High Court, including general litigation, corporate insolvency, personal insolvency and wardship, before being appointed to his current role. He is a member of the Senior Management Team of the Courts Service, the Superior Courts Rules Committee, the Circuit Court Rules Committee, and the Company Law Review Group.

He has been a delegate for Ireland to the European Commission for the Efficiency of Justice of the Council of Europe (CEPEJ) since 2007 and a member of the CEPEJ Bureau since 2016.
