OVERVIEW OF LEGAL PROTECTION AGAINST SEXUAL VIOLENCE AFFORDED TO WOMEN DURING SITUATIONS OF ARMED CONFLICT

The level of legal protection of women against sexual violence during armed conflict is not only determined by the character and stage of the conflict, but also by the particular role of each woman caught up in it. Armed conflict may be of international or national character, involving state actors or non-state actors. Women may be combatants, persons deprived of their freedom, refugees, internally displaced persons (IDPs), mothers and/or members of the civilian population. It is important to note that sexual violence is not limited to rape. It also encompasses forced prostitution, sexual slavery, forced impregnation, forced maternity, forced termination of pregnancy, enforced sterilisation, indecent assault, trafficking, inappropriate medical examinations and strip searches.

The provisions of international humanitarian law listed below afford women protection against sexual violence.¹ While the Geneva Conventions generally apply to international armed conflict, Article 3, which is common to all four Geneva Conventions, also relates to non-international armed conflict. Additional Protocol I is concerned solely with international armed conflict, whereas Additional Protocol II focuses on non-international armed conflict.

I. WOMEN AS PART OF THE CIVILIAN POPULATION IN INTERNATIONAL AND NON-INTERNATIONAL ARMED CONFLICTS

1. Protection under the Geneva Conventions²

International armed conflicts

4 th Geneva Convention Article 27	Women must be especially protected against any attack on their honour, in particular against rape, enforced prostitution, or any other form of indecent assault.
Additional Protocol I to the Geneva Conventions Article 75(2)(a);(b)	Prohibition of violence to the life, health or physical or mental well/being of persons, in particular torture of all kinds, whether physical or mental and prohibition of outrages upon personal dignity, in particular humiliating and degrading treatment, enforced prostitution and any form of indecent assault or threats thereof.
Additional Protocol I to the Geneva Conventions Article 76	Women must be the object of special respect and must be protected in particular against rape, forced prostitution and any other form of indecent assault.
