This exercise offers an experience on dilemma situation: the wide diversity of possible arguments, the relevance of multiple, often contradicting arguments in dilemma situations. And the importance of open communication, that is, the discussion and understanding all the different considerations before making a decision. The role of the trainer at this points is also to make participants aware that three types of reasoning are applied: Value-based arguments; duty/rule-based arguments; consequence based arguments.

In a second round of groups of participants discuss possible strategies and instruments for preventing similar corruption practices in local governments. After sharing the results of the reflection on the concrete case, the trainer facilitates a discussion on corruption prevention and ethical management in general. The conclusions are added to the flipchart activity 3 that listed the already discussed ethical management instruments.

19.10 GROUP EXERCISE 3 — CORRUPTION PREVENTION AND ETHICAL MANAGEMENT (90 MINUTES)
- This activity encourages participants to develop strategies for curbing corruption using the instruments of ethical management they have identified during the previous activities of the module. The trainer recalls the starting situation in the famous case of La Paz. Groups of participants should develop strategies to curb corruption. Groups can design new strategies or, if they know the case, they can use any element they can recall from the strategy of Ronald MacLean-Abaroa. Groups discuss their proposals during a plenary session and create an aggregate strategy that the trainer compares to the successful strategy implemented in La Paz highlighting the importance of the value and community building component and the systematic and processual approach to change management. After the planning exercise the trainer presents the Craiova strategy that won the UN Public Service Award in 2011, as an applicable model for local governments in the LAP target region.   o Trainers instruct participants on the methodology;
  o Trainers facilitate a final feedback session, in which each group presents the Action Plan.

21.6 Group Exercise 4 - Role play (60 minutes)
- Participants are invited to read the scenario for an IMC on local economic development (LED) (see Section 5.5).

Participants work into groups of 5 persons with allocated roles (i.e. one person represents the Mayor of a large town; the others are Mayors of smaller neighbouring Local Authorities), and within the given scenario;
- Participants have to put in to practice leadership skills acquired during Stages 1 and 2, in order to debate and develop the proposal – that will be shared in a plenary session.
  o Trainers distribute the roles within each group;
  o Trainers facilitated a feedback session

21.7 Individual Exercise 1 (30 minutes)
- Participants are invited to consider their own organisation and to identify (by using the chart ‘Moving to an IMC Mindset’) key leadership obstacles that would stand in the way of a successful IMC project.

21.8 Individual Exercise 2 (30 minutes)
- Participants are invited to analyse the potentialities for an IMC project within their organisation, by using the table in Section 5.7.
  o Trainers invite participants to fill in the table individually;
  o Trainers facilitate a feedback session.
22 Module 22 – Cross-Border Cooperation (180 Minutes)

22.1 Interactive Introduction (20 Minutes)
- Participants are introduced to the key elements of CBC, according to the CoE Toolkits;
- Participants engage in to a facilitated discussion on CBC, based on the received inputs and on their own experience/perceptions on the field.
  o Trainers briefly present the key elements of CBC according to the CoE Toolkits, using the PPT “Understanding CBC”;
  o Trainers guide participants through a small debate on CBC, aimed at confronting the received inputs with the participants’ own experience in the field (trainers take notes on the main insights).

22.2 Group Exercise 1 – Role Play – Imagine a CBC Scenario (30 Minutes)
- Participants are divided into groups and invited to brainstorm so to elaborate a detailed description of a cross-border scenario in which they will implement a case of cooperation.

Rationale
  o The following exercises represent short section of a whole working session/workshop dedicated to a Group role-play;
  o Trainers introduce the role-play working session, underling that the envisaged exercises will illustrate, in a hands-on approach, the first steps towards the activation of a CBC process. Trainers could in fact, illustrate short concepts –using PPT, at the end of each exercise;
  o Trainers invite participants to single-out all characteristics on a cardboard (i.e. or another note-taking system envisaged by the trainers).

- Participants are invited to read the given scenario (see Section 5.1.) and to work in groups (3-4 persons for each group) so to identify main challenges to IMC, for the case-study at stake. Each group will have to present the results in a plenary session.
  o Trainers invite the groups (same as prior session) to debate upon and to identify possible solutions and strategies to the obstacles identified in the previous session. Trainers invite participants to use post-it during the session.
  o Trainers facilitate a plenary feedback session.

22.3 Group Exercise 2 – Role Play – Define the CBC Problem (40 Minutes)
- Participants are invited to identify areas that might cause problems for the development of the “fictional” CBC case.
  o Trainers illustrate “traditional” cross-border areas in which problems may occur, also by using the EDEN CBC platform:
    o Mobility and (public) transport, Health care, Education and Training, Labour market, Crisis and Disaster/Emergency Management, Crime prevention and Criminal Investigation, Environment, Finance.
  o Participants are invited to complete their scenario with the description of the problem area.

22.4 Group Exercise 3 – Role Play – Simulation of a First Meeting between CBC Stakeholders (45 Minutes)
- Participants are invited to simulate a first meeting between CBC stakeholders of the identified CBC scenario. To this end, each member of a group is invited to choose a “stakeholder” he/she would like to impersonate during the meeting.

- Trainers exemplify some categories of stakeholders that could attend the meeting, such as: Local authorities’ representatives, Economic private actors, Consumers associations, Volunteers associations, Civil Protection/rescue services, Police/law enforcement bodies, Environmental associations, Citizens, Schools/universities, Experts (in a specific field);

- Trainers may decide to use a “creative” technique, like color coded origami “stakeholders mouth” so to assign roles and make sure that the role-play does not go beyond the “simulation context” – “stakeholders’ mouths” allow participants to a simulation game to express opinions from a specific stakeholder perspective, and not by a subjective one;

- Trainers encourage participants to highlight criticalities and possible solutions for the CBC case, as resulted from the “simulation meeting”.

22.5 Plenary Feedback (45 minutes)

- Participants are invited to present their cooperation case (i.e. criticalities and possible solutions) to the other groups;
- In this exchange the debate is facilitated by the trainers.
  - Trainers invite participants to elect a representative for each group, that can illustrate the overall work of the “role-play”;
  - Trainers facilitated debates and Q&As between presenting groups and the other participants.
23 MODULE 23 – CITY-TO-CITY COOPERATION (C2C) (180 MINUTES)

23.1 INTERACTIVE INTRODUCTION

- Participants are introduced to the key elements of C2C, according to the CoE Toolkit;
- Participants engage in a facilitated debate on C2C, based on the inputs received and on their own experience/perceptions on the topic.
  - Trainers briefly present the key elements of C2C according to the CoE Toolkits;
  - Trainers guide participants through a small debate on C2C, aimed at confronting the received inputs with the participants’ own experience in the field (trainers take notes on the main insights).

23.2 INDIVIDUAL EXERCISE 1 – IDENTIFYING SHARED PROBLEMS

- Participants are invited to think about problems they face in their municipalities, that might be overcome by means C2C;
- Participants share their views in a brief plenary session (not more than 1 min per person);
- Based on the identified problems, participants form “areas of cooperation” - operationally clustering the ideas and providing clusters with a title.
  - Trainers invite participants to brainstorm in silence on the topic. They invite participants to use post-it so to facilitate further parts of the session;
  - Trainers invite each participant to express their concerns/identified problems. Trainers take the post –it (or take note on what is being discussed), and gradually creates clusters of “problems”;
  - Trainers take a moment to agree upon the idea in which cluster with participants, and invite participant to give titles to the clusters.

23.3 GROUP EXERCISE 1 – IDENTIFYING ADVANTAGES AND RISKS OF COOPERATION

- Participants are invited to work in thematic groups (i.e. corresponding to the identified clusters) and to brainstorm on possible advantages and risks of the cooperation.
  - Trainers dive participants in to groups, by making them chose the cluster which most represents their previously “identified problem”;
  - Trainers invite participants to take note of advantages and risks – where risks are identified, trainers ask participants to brainstorm on possible solutions.

23.4 GROUP EXERCISE 2 – IDENTIFYING THE GOALS AND RESOURCES OF COOPERATION

- Participants work in groups so to set achievable goals to their cooperation (e.g. considering previously identified risks to the cooperation, debating on existing and/or potential resources, etc.).
  - Trainers invite the groups (same as prior session) to debate upon and to identify possible goals of their cooperation;
  - Trainers may choose to introduce participants to the idea of SMART Objectives;
  - Trainers advice participants on how to take note on the most important ideas – trainers may choose to nominate a “facilitator” within the group, which coordinates the debate.
23.5 GROUP EXERCISE 3—IDENTIFYING FUTURE PARTNERS OF THE COOPERATION

- Participants are invited to debate in their groups on what actors would need to be involved in the cooperation project, so that set goals may be achieved.
  - Trainers invite participants to debate in groups on the future partners of cooperation;
  - Trainers may choose to present a case study of C2C, so to illustrate how transnational and multidisciplinary partnerships may have a great positive impact on local problems (e.g. trainers may select one case-study from the C2C Toolkit of the CoE meeting”

23.6 GROUP EXERCISE 4—IDENTIFYING FUTURE COOPERATION STRUCTURES

- Participants are informed, in a plenary session, on existing/possible C2C structures.
- Participants are then invited to debate, in their groups, on the most appropriate structure for their C2C project.
  - Trainers illustrate to participants the possibilities for initiating a C2C cooperation relation. Trainers may use the Case studies illustrated in the C2C CoE Toolkit, and may also choose to inform participants of possibilities of C2C within EU or International Organizations programmes/funds;
  - Trainers invite participants to debate and choose one appropriate structure.

23.7 PLENARY FEEDBACK

- Participants are invited to present their cooperation case, illustrating all aspects that were raised during the sessions of the day (i.e. obstacles and possible solutions, resources, partners, structure, etc.) to the other groups.
  - Trainers invite participants to elect a representative of each group that can illustrate the overall work of the sessions;
  - Trainers facilitated debates and Q&As between presenting groups and the other participants.
24 MODULE 24 – EQUAL OPPORTUNITIES AND GENDER BALANCE

24.1 INTERACTIVE INTRODUCTION (30 MINUTES)
- Participants are divided in small groups (3/4 people) to discuss on Section 5.1 image;
  - Trainers divide participants in groups and handout materials;
  - Trainers facilitate a plenary debate on insights from each group, making notes on a flipchart;
- Participants are introduced to the concept of equality and all its implications.
  - Trainers introduce the definition of equality and their implications for LAP, also based on participants’ feedback on previous exercise.

24.2 INDIVIDUAL EXERCISE – UNDERSTANDING GENDER MAINSTREAMING (40 MINUTES)
- Participants work individually to fill in Section 5.2 Table;
  - Trainers ask to work individually and give them the relevant handouts;
- Participants are made aware of gender imbalances at CoE Countries level and are introduced to the concept of Gender Mainstreaming.
  - Trainers illustrate facts related to the Table filled by participants as an introduction to the importance of gender mainstreaming. The contents of this session are listed below:
    1. Women represent 40% of members of parliaments in Europe.

Women represent only 26% of members of parliaments in Europe. Council of Europe Recommendation Rec(2003)3 on the balanced participation of women and men in political and public decision making provides that “the representation of either women or men in any decision-making body in political or public life should not fall below 40%”.

2. Women and men receive the same salary for the same work in most countries of the Council of Europe.

Statistics and research show that women and men are in different situations in most areas of life. This is particularly true in relation to access to resources. Data show that in most Council of Europe countries, women earn on average only 60% to 75% of men’s wages. In addition, the average gender pension gap in the 28 EU member states is as high as 39%, which is the result of gender inequalities in employment over the life cycle. Beyond wages, there is also a gender gap in relation to access to other assets. For example, women represent only 30% of agricultural holders on average in 34 European countries. Men also have more access to symbolic resources like networks and contacts, which can impact on employment or decision-making opportunities.

3. Public policies are mostly gender-neutral in most Council of Europe Countries.

4. A gender neutral policy implies that its effects will impact everybody - women and men, girls and boys - in the same way.

In most areas of life, regarding paid and unpaid work, access to resources and to power, women and men are in different situation. Public policies therefore need to take this into account, in order to reach their aims.

1 Based on the Council of Europe Handbook for Gender Equality Rapporteurs, 2016 (pp. 35-36).
For example, reducing the generic length of a hospital stay in a country may be a legitimate aim, but it will have a differentiated and heavier impact on women. In this case, the care needs not covered any more by hospitals will have to be taken over by families, in practice, mostly women. In the same way, promoting part-time work for women only may improve work-life balance for women in the short term, but it will not help to close gender gaps in relation to employment, pay or pensions. It is also counter-productive as it does not encourage the equal sharing of unpaid care work between women and men.

5. Gender roles are socially constructed; they change over time and differ between and within cultures.

The term “gender” refers to socially constructed roles, behaviours, activities and attributes that a given society considers appropriate for women and for men. Gender roles are not biologically determined. They depend on what is expected, allowed and valued in a women or a man in a given context. There can be significant differences in gender roles depending on country, social class, family status, age, and ethnic or religious background. In addition, gender roles are not neutral. Existing differences and inequalities between women and men impact on gender roles. Gender roles are therefore often characterised by a hierarchy of values, rights or decision-making power between men and women, and differing possibilities of making choices. For example, the value given to care work in society (traditionally attributed to women) is lower than the value attributed to technical work. Gender equality aims at less stereotyped gender roles, whereby women and men can play an equal role in the public and private sphere and have equal access to and control over resources.

6. Gender-mainstreaming requires the equal participation of women and men in all programmes and activities.

Ensuring the equal participation of women and men in all programmes and activities is a principle of justice and an aspect of gender mainstreaming. However, the mere presence of women is not enough to ensure the integration of a gender equality perspective in the content of a policy, activity or project. To do this, a gender analysis and consequent integration of gendered aspects is needed. For example, the equal presence of girls and boys in an educational activity will not guarantee their equal participation in practice (speaking time etc.) nor the fact that the activity will be adapted to the needs of girls and boys, nor that the activity will promote more equality between girls and boys.

7. Mainstreaming a gender equality entails completely new duties and practices for ministries and civil servants.

When carried out duly and in a planned manner, in particular if support tools and training have been made available, gender mainstreaming does not necessarily entail unreasonable amounts of extra work. However, some reading and/or training may be necessary at the beginning. Gender mainstreaming entails a change of approach in policy-making and challenging existing practices and stereotypes.

8. Gender mainstreaming and specific policies for the advancement of women and positive actions are mutually exclusive.
Gender mainstreaming is a tool with the final aim to reach real equality between women and men. In most national and international policy contexts, including the Council of Europe, gender equality policies comprise a so-called “dual approach” combining gender mainstreaming and specific policies for the advancement of women including positive actions.

9. All ministries have duties in relation to the integration of a gender equality perspective.

Most ministries are implementing policies that affect people; therefore, these policies are likely to affect women and men. In this context, taking into account the situation and needs of all people is a condition for effective good policy making. The idea behind gender mainstreaming is also to transform the (unequal) gendered way in which most public institutions have been working and to ensure that all policy making takes into account both women’s and men’s interests and concerns.

10. Data and statistics on people, in general, should be broken down by sex only if sex-disaggregated information is readily available.

Data and statistics on people should always be broken down by sex, and if possible, other factors, such as age. If it is unreasonably hard to access the information, it is advisable to find out why. If sex-disaggregated statistics are not available at all, aiming at making them available or raising awareness about existing gaps are legitimate and important policy goals and a first step towards gender mainstreaming.

24.3 Group Exercise 1—Gender Equality—An Empirical Perspective (30 Minutes)
- Participants work in small groups to identify in their own experiences (personal or within their organisation) the circumstances in which the lack of gender perspectives determined discrimination.
  - Trainers divide participants in groups;
  - Trainers facilitate a plenary session debate on the insights gathered by groups.

24.4 Group Exercise 2—Matching Good Governance Principles with the European Charter for Equality (30 Minutes)
- Participants individually read the articles of Part III of the Charter;
- Participants work in groups to match articles of the Charter with the Principles of Good Governance to which they may pertain;
- Participants share insights from their work in plenary session.
  - Trainers hand out material (Section 5.3 Table) and facilitate discussion among groups in a plenary session.

24.5 Group Exercise 3—Actions for Ensuring Gender Mainstreaming in Participation (30 Minutes)
- Participants work in groups to identify possible action to be implemented at organisation level so to ensure gender mainstreaming in public participation policies;
- Participants share insights from their work in plenary session.
  - Trainers ask participants to work in groups to fill in Section 5.4 Table).

24.6 Homework—The List of Signatories of The European Charter for Equality
- Participants can check if their organisation has already signed the Charter and analyse all the materials to understand implications of the signature as well as procedures to become a signatory, if interested.
