(1) Campaigning for Human Rights online

INTERNATIONAL ROMA DAY – 8 APRIL
Established in 1990, the International Roma Day celebrates diversity and Romani culture and identity of 12 million European Roma and provides a moment to reflect and take action against hate speech targeting Roma and antigypsyism that Roma and Travellers in Europe are wildly subject to. Follow the actions for the day on the campaign blog and read the Advisory Council on Youth’s statement on the International Roma Day here.

EUROPEAN COURT OF HUMAN RIGHTS
The European Court of Human Rights published a fact sheet on Hate Speech in March which addresses the two-track approach of the ECHR when dealing with cases of incitement to hatred and freedom of expression and highlights case law in that respect.

ECRI ON COMBATTING HATE SPEECH
The European Commission against Racism and Intolerance (ECRI) issued general policy recommendations on 21 March, encouraging speedy reactions by public figures to hate speech, promoting self-regulation of media, raising awareness of the dangerous consequences of hate speech, withdrawing financial and other support from political parties that actively use hate speech and criminalising its most extreme manifestations, while respecting freedom of expression. On the same occasion ECRI published a report on Cyberhate.

PARLIAMENTARY ASSEMBLY ALLIANCE
The list of members of the No Hate Speech Alliance of the Parliamentary Assembly of the Council of Europe has been updated and can be found here. The Alliance held their first national seminar on 4 April at the Italian Parliament in Rome. The event took stock of the situation of hate speech in Italy and discussed possible policies to counter it. The ECRI’s general policy recommendations on hate speech and practices from the Italian anti-discrimination agency and academic institutions were presented.

ONLINE CIVIL COURAGE INITIATIVE
Facebook launched an online campaign on hate speech and violent extremism recently. In a meeting with the German Chancellor Angela Merkel, Facebook CEO Mark Zuckerberg acknowledged that there's still room for the social network to improve its policing of hate speech. He committed to adding migrants to the groups that need protecting against hate speech on Facebook. For more information, read the article.

SEXIST HATE SPEECH ONLINE
On the occasion of International Women’s Day, 8 March, the report of the Seminar Combatting Sexist Hate Speech was published on the new site of the Gender Equality Unit. The report can also be found with all other seminar documents and media coverage on the Campaign site.

(2) Council of Europe – main developments

For up-to-date CoE news please check the CoE website and the CoE Journal.

At the Ministers’ Deputies meeting on 30 March, the Ministers’ Deputies observed a minute of silence in memory of the victims and in solidarity with Belgium, following the terrorist attacks in Brussels on 22 March. They also adopted a statement on the terrorist attacks in both Turkey and Belgium, condemning them in the strongest of terms.

At the meeting, the Ministers’ Deputies also adopted the new Council of Europe Internet Governance Strategy for 2016-2019, which aims at tackling the challenges to human rights, democracy and the rule of law in the rapidly evolving online environment. The Strategy has a focus on promoting the role of youth work in fostering online participation, media and digital literacy of youth, including young people who are marginalised and hard to reach.
In its previous meeting on 15-16 March, the Ministers’ Deputies adopted the Council of Europe Action Plan on Building Inclusive Societies (2016-2019) which aims to assist member States in managing Europe’s diversity through policies fostering mutual understanding and respect. The Action Plan is organised around activities in the fields of education, anti-discrimination and effective integration. Special attention is devoted to the integration and participation in societies of all their members in particular of children, youth, and migrants. Moreover, the No Hate Speech Movement and the implementation of the Recommendation on access to social rights for young people from disadvantaged neighbourhoods (Enter!) are the key youth sector initiatives included in the Action Plan.

On the occasion of the International Day for the Elimination of Racial Discrimination (21 March), the PACE Committee on Equality and Non-Discrimination adopted a statement on the rise of Antisemitism, Islamophobia, Anti-gypsyism, xenophobia and intolerance towards migrants and refugees in Europe. On this occasion the Committee also expressed it strong support for the No Hate Parliamentary Alliance and called on all members of the PACE as well as members from observer and partner for democracy delegations to join the Alliance and actively participate in its activities.

The PACE’s Social Affairs Committee has spelled out a series of measures to prevent the radicalisation of children and young people by fighting the root causes. Approving a report by Sevinj Fataliyeva (Azerbaijan), the committee said prevention was key to stopping young people being drawn to violent extremism, and should begin “at an early age when values and beliefs are formed”. The report is due to be discussed by the Assembly in April.

The Congress of Local and Regional Authorities once again invited a number of young people to take an active part in its 30th session on 20-24 March with the purpose of creating a space for dialogue between the selected youth delegates and local and regional elected representatives and to enable young people to express their views on the issues being debated. A new criterion introduced this year was that the youth delegates must be able to take part in both the 30th and the 31st sessions in order to allow for a more meaningful and impactful participation in the Congress’ work.

The Commissioner for Human Rights published on 17 March his most recent Issue Paper on ‘Missing persons and victims of enforced disappearance in Europe’ which underlines that women and children/youth are especially affected by this phenomenon, States are urged to take appropriate measures to address the situation, considering their special needs.

In the context of the Committee of Ministers’ thematic debate on “Rising extremism, radicalisation and xenophobia in the fight against terrorism: building inclusive societies as a cure and the need for collective action”, held on 15 March, the Conference of INGOs submitted a written contribution to the debate which emphasised the importance of protecting young people from various forms of radicalisation and the need to support local neighbourhood associations which run social activities for young people to prevent this phenomena.

The North-South Centre of the Council of Europe invites you to propose (young) nominees for the North-South Prize 2016 in the following areas: defence and promotion of human rights and pluralist democracy, the development of intercultural dialogue and the reinforcement of the North-South partnership and solidarity. The Inter-Parliamentary Union (IPU) launched the report ‘Youth participation in national parliaments 2016’ on 16 March, revealing the chronic under-representation of young people in the world’s parliaments at a time when the global youth population is the largest it has ever been in history. The level shows almost no improvement in figures from a previous IPU study conducted in 2014. Young people under 30 make up less than 2 per cent of the world’s MPs and only four countries - Sweden, Ecuador, Finland and Norway – have 10% or more MPs below 30 years of age. The IPU report also notes that young women face a double layer of inequality – both because they are young and because they are women. Read more
