Main tasks

1. Taking into account the strong political commitment of member states with regard to preventing and combating transnational organised crime and the serious risks to human rights, democracy and the rule of law posed by transnational organised crime, there is a need for the Council of Europe to provide an inter-governmental platform for the assessment of the character and dimensions of transnational organised crime in a pan-European context and the development of common policies and exchange of best practices with regard to the prevention and combating thereof. This Committee shall, in particular, carry out the following tasks:
 - the identification of relevant and emerging transnational organised crime issues which require criminal law response ;
 - the development, in close co-ordination with strategic partners, of pan-European strategies, and where possible, common policies on preventing and combating transnational organised crime;
 - the collection, assessment and exchange of best practices in the prevention of, and fight against, transnational organised crime from all Council of Europe member states;
 - the preparation of a White Paper for consideration by the Committee of Ministers, after validation by the CDPC, on trends and developments in transnational organised crime in the Council of Europe member states, focusing on identifying possible gaps in the criminal law cooperation and providing recommendations as to possible action by the Council of Europe in this regard.
2. In discharging its tasks, the Restricted Group of Experts shall consider the previous and current work carried out in this field by the relevant international and supranational organisations, notably the European Union, and the previous work of the Council of Europe in this area.
