Data collection 2025

Report prepared by the CEPEJ for the attention of the European Commission

Methodological Note

The methodology used for this report is fully based on the methodology used by the CEPEJ for its evaluation cycles. The data is collected by using a questionnaire, which is filled out by the CEPEJ's Dashboard correspondents (the main contact points within the judicial systems of the beneficiaries for this exercise). Their responses are statistically processed, analysed, and validated under the supervision of the CEPEJ Evaluation Working Group (CEPEJ-GT-EVAL). The CEPEJ works in full transparency with all beneficiaries during the whole process.

Data collection, validation and analysis

The CEPEJ Secretariat collects quantitative and qualitative data. Comments are also collected to provide additional information on the specificities of the beneficiaries' judicial system and to better contextualise the data.

From a methodological point of view, and with a commitment to quality, consistency and comparability of the supplied data, data collection is primarily assigned to the CEPEJ's Dashboard correspondents. The Dashboard correspondents are the unique interlocutors of the CEPEJ Secretariat when collecting and controlling data. The beneficiaries are liable for the quality of data provided in the survey.

According to the CEPEJ methodology, an extensive work is carried out by the CEPEJ Secretariat to verify the quality of the data submitted by the correspondents. This quality check process requires a certain amount of time in order to guarantee the reliability of the quantitative and qualitative data, which will eventually be presented to the European Commission (EC).

The data validation process has been implemented according to the CEPEJ's methodology. Nevertheless, the Beneficiary correspondent is responsible for the reliability and quality of the provided.

The first year of data collection for the Dashboard Western Balkans is 2019. This is considered as the base year to be presented in each consecutive cycle. The reference year for the current report's data is 2025. Evolutions/trends and variations using previous data collection are presented where relevant. CEPEJ will focus on up to 5 cycles (including the base year) in all the deliverables throughout the duration of the project.

The report is composed of two parts:

- Part 1- Comparative tables and graphs for all Western Balkans beneficiaries with summary overviews and comments per indicator (1 files)
-Part 2- Beneficiary profiles, with one profile per beneficiary (6 files).

This structure was discussed and agreed upon with the EC during previous cycles. Following discussions with the EC, the beneficiary profiles have been revised in the current cycle. In previous editions, the profiles were divided into two separate sections (Parts A and B). As agreed with the EC, and in order to streamline and optimise the profiles, the information previously presented in Part B has now been integrated into Part A. The profiles have also been redesigned to provide an improved visual presentation of the findings. The delivery date is 31 May for Part 1 and 30 June for Part 2.The delivery date is 31 May for Part 1, and 30 June for Part 2.

It should be noted that the content of the Beneficiary profiles was elaborated by the CEPEJ Secretariat based on the comments provided by the beneficiaries alongside the data. AI-assisted tools were used, where appropriate, to support the summarisation of lengthy comments

The quality of data

The reader should always interpret the presented statistical figures together with the respective narrative comments.

The CEPEJ has chosen to process and show only the data which offered a high level of quality and accountability. Hence, it decided to disregard those replies that significantly varied between exercises and for which there was no relevant explanation provided by the Dashboard correspondent, to give sufficient guarantees of quality and reliability. For some issues covered by this study, no data could be provided. When a data is shown as “NA” (i.e., “Not available”), it means that the data was not available, the data could not be collected as such or no data meeting the quality and reliability requirements was provided by the deadline. As a consequence, there might be some instances where data are shown as “NA” while there was data presented in the previous CEPEJ exercises. This is critical to ensure a high level of data quality.

Definitions and abbreviations

- NA: data not available.
- NAP: data non applicable.
- CR: Clearance Rate. The Clearance rate is the ratio obtained by dividing the number of resolved cases by the number of incoming cases in a given period, expressed as a percentage. It demonstrates how the court, or the judicial system is coping with the in-flow of cases and allows comparison between systems regardless of their differences and individual characteristics.
- DT: Disposition Time. The Disposition Time is the calculated time necessary for a pending case to be resolved, considering the current pace of work. It is reached by dividing the number of pending cases at the end of a particular period by the number of resolved cases within that period, multiplied by 365.The Disposition Time is the ratio between pending cases and resolved cases (in days). It shows the theoretical duration for a court to solve all the pending cases.

- ICT Indices: The six ICT indices (CMS, Courts decisions DB, Statistical tools, Writing assistance tools, Electronic submission and Online consultation) range from 0 to 10 points. Their calculation is based on the features and deployment rates of each beneficiary. The methodology for calculation provides points for each feature in each case matter. They are summarised and multiplied by the deployment rate as a weight. In this way, if the system is not fully deployed, the value is decreased even if all features are included.

Numbers indicated between brackets following the letter Q (for example Q12) refer to the questions of the CEPEJ Dashboard Western Balkans questionnaire.

Methodological disclaimer

1) Since data are standardised based on the population and GDP per capita, it should be noted that the provided figures for the population, Bosnia and Herzegovina, North Macedonia and Kosovo* refer to the previous year, while the population data for Montenegro are based on the 2023 census. The provided figures for the GDP per capita for Bosnia and Herzegovina, Montenegro, and North Macedonia and Kosovo also refer to the previous year.

2) The comparisons of data between beneficiaries with various size, economic and legal situations is a delicate task and should be approached with great caution. Indeed, the specificities of each system, which might explain differences in the data, should be taken into account (e.g., different judicial structures, the approach of the courts organisation, use of statistical tools to evaluate the systems, etc.). This is especially true when a particular region like the Western Balkans is compared to the European Union. Since the Western Balkans region presents its own peculiarities (e.g., per capita GDP, budget distribution, litigiousness rate, number of tasks handled by the judges, number of judges etc.), the comparison with the European Union region might be misleading. As requested by the European Commission, this report presents the EU median, where relevant. However, the EU median should not be considered as a benchmark for the Western Balkans region, but it should rather be considered as a "reference only".

Furthermore, it is crucial to notice that the data for calculating the 2025 EU median have not been collected yet. Hence, the 2024 EU median is included in this report. Yet, the reference year for the Dashboard Western Balkans is 2025. These statistics should be referred to for orientation only since they are not for the same reference year. For this reason, they are not comparable and should not be jointly analysed.

3) Some of the data might be updated or changed after each delivery (31 May and 30 June), in case of comments provided by the beneficiaries. According to the CEPEJ methodology, only the final version of the report can be disseminated, i.e., after considering the comments by the beneficiaries. Before then, all the collected data remain confidential.

4) Changes requested by beneficiaries after the delivery of this report may appear in future reports, since the CEPEJ's database is regularly updated. For this reason, previous cycles' data presented in this report might be different from data presented in the reports for the previous cycles.

5) It should also be noted that the summary statistics (minimum, maximum, average and median values) are presented in this report as an orientation only. Kosovo is not included in these summary statistics. Indeed, the group of beneficiaries is too small for the summary to be statistically meaningful. These statistics are calculated by using quantitative data, hence excluding the "NA" or "NAP" answers. Furthermore, in case data are available only for one or two beneficiaries, the summary statistics would not be useful even as an orientation. Consequently, they are shown as "-".

6) When using the data provided by the CEPEJ in public reports, EC should always mention "Source: CEPEJ data". CEPEJ will only be able to produce comparison data tables and graphs between member States of the Council of Europe. If the EC wants to compare data between the six beneficiaries by constructing new charts and tables adding Kosovo, it should be made clear that it is of its responsibility even if the source of the data is the CEPEJ. This should be mentioned under each relevant table and/or graph.

* This designation is without prejudice to positions on status, and is in line with UNSCR 1244 and the ICJ Opinion on the Kosovo Declaration of Independence.

Kosovo is not included in the calculation of summary statistics*

Bosnia and Herzegovina, Kosovo* and North Macedonia the population figures refer to the year preceding the reference year. Montenegro: the population figures 2023, 2024 and 2025 are based on the 2023 census

Bosnia and Herzegovina, Kosovo, Montenegro and North Macedonia: the GDP per capita refers to the year preceding the reference year.

North Macedonia: a census was conducted in 2021; as a result, the population figure is lower than in previous cycles. Albania: a census was conducted in 2023; as a result, the population figure is lower than in previous cycles.

North Macedonia: because of the 2021 census, the number of inhabitants changed significantly between 2020 and 2021. Albania: because of the 2023 census, the number of inhabitants changed significantly between 2023 and 2024. As a result, variations in indicators standardised by the number of inhabitants may be partly due to the change in population figures.
In Albania and Montenegro, mandatory representation in court is not counted under the legal aid budget. Since 2023, Serbia has included mandatory representation in court under its legal aid budget, which explains the increase in the budget.

The exchange rate is 1 Eur = 103.88 ALL, resource Bank of Albania 29.12.2023
Explanations for the variations:
Salaries + 74%
Changes and increases in salaries budget come as a result of changes in legislation on salary specifically:
Law no. 33/2023 “For a change in the law no. 96/2016 on the status of judges and prosecutors in the Republic of Albania", changed, which changed the salaries of magistrates.
Decision no. 325, dated 31.5.2023 “For the approval of the structure of wages, salary levels and other allowances above salary of deputy minister, cabinet officers, prefect, sub-prefect, civil employees and employees in some institutions of Public Administration” and Decision no. 326, dated 31.5.2023” For employees' salaries supporters and employees of other specialties of different in some institutions of public administration”, of the Council of Ministers.
The change in the official exchange rate, which from 1 euro = 115 lek in 2022, became 1 euro = 103.8 lek in 2023.
Investments in computerisation + 884%
IT maintenance +252%
In the framework of the implementation of new software systems, the High Judicial Council has focused its investments in the purchase of electronic equipment.
The change in the official exchange rate, which from 1 euro = 115 lek in 2022, became 1 euro = 103.8 lek in 2023.
Court building maintenance -50%
As part of the implementation of the new judicial map, which ended in 2023, the courts have been in the process of restructuring, which has led to a decrease in funds for building

The training in courts is divided in 2 different parts, the training of magistrates is done by the School of Magistrates with their own budge, while the training of all non-magistrate staff is done by the HJC, for different reasons the budget this year has been planned as 0.

Q08 (2025): In the others section 7 are included: (Office supplies and stationery; Transportation expenses; Per diem allowances; Other operational expenses;Taxes and duties; Membership fees in international prosecutors' organizations; Economic assistance for employees; Other investments such as Purchase of vehicles; Air conditioners; Office furniture etc).
The legal amendments undertaken during 2023, implemented pursuant to the Constitutional Court Decision, No. 35, resulted in additional financial obligations for the General Prosecution Office, which were primarily reflected in the 2024 budget. These obligations relate to the settlement of salary-related liabilities for magistrates and judicial police officers. Therefore, a temporary increase in the budget was recorded in 2024, attributable to the incorporation of these accumulated liabilities from previous years. Accordingly, the percentage decrease in the budget from 2024 to 2025 does not constitute an actual reduction in salaries, but rather reflects the normalization of expenditure following the elevated level recorded in 2024, which was influenced by the implementation of the Constitutional Court decision.
Q08 (2023): The data for the implemented budget "Implemented budget" for the year 2023 are approximate and were obtained from the AFMIS system until 22.01.2024. This figure is not final as the Treasury Office responsible for confirming this data will publish this figure in February 2024.
In the first column, we planned the budget at the beginning of the year.
In the second column, we have the actual realization of budget funds during the year 2023.
The revised budget during the year is 32,016,181 euros due to institutional needs.
The increase in this budget has come as a result of additions during the year 2023 of funds for personnel expenses for the payments of magistrates and officers in implementation of the Decision
no. 35 of the Constitutional Court for wrongly calculated salaries.

Q09-0 (2025): The increase in the Approved and Implemented Legal Aid (LA) budget is mainly due to the increase in the salaries of the employees working within the system of state-guaranteed free legal aid. This adjustment was made in line with the broader public administration salary policy and has directly affected the overall budget allocated and implemented for legal aid.
Q09-0 (2024): The legal aid implemented budget has increased by 8.6% compared to the previous year.
Cases brought to the court, we have referred to cases of secondary legal assistance (payment of lawyers, experts who have provided secondary legal services). The rest is considered as providing advice and any other financial commitment in function of the institution's activity. The further increase is related to the fact of the opening of the primary legal aid service provision centers throughout the Republic of Albania and the changes in the legislation on employee salaries.
Q09 (2025): The increase in the Approved and Implemented Legal Aid (LA) budget is mainly due to the increase in the salaries of the employees working within the system of state-guaranteed free legal aid. This adjustment was made in line with the broader public administration salary policy and has directly affected the overall budget allocated and implemented for legal aid.
The budget related to mandatory representation in court (ex officio lawyers) is not included in the figures reported under Q09.
Q09 (2023): We emphasize that the planning of funds is done based on the number of decisions received by the court, while the liquidation of payments is done after all the procedural steps of judicial representation have been completed. Trials take time, especially in the nowadays conditions regarding the absence of judges due to the vetting process. This is reflected in the delays until the arrival of the liquidation practice in the Directorate.
Q09-1 (2024): The answer is NAP (Not Applicable) since no donor funds were directly allocated to prosecution offices of general jurisdiction for the year 2024 as part of prosecution annual budget.
Q09-1 (2022): During 2022 there have been no external donor’s contributions, included in courts’ budgets.
Q09-2 (2024): The answer is NAP (Not Applicable) since no donor funds were directly allocated to prosecution offices of general jurisdiction for the year 2024 as part of prosecution annual budget.
Q09-2 (2022): The exact answer is NAP we have not had any external donor fund.

Bosnia and Herzegovina
Q06 (2025): It is not possible to indicate the approved budget for the judicial system because data on the approved budget for legal aid is not available.
Q07 (General Comment): Data on the approved budget are classified according to the economic classification adopted by the ministries of finance. The data regarding the approved budget is classified in a way that allows obtaining data only on the following elements that relate to question 7:
-TOTAL - Annual budget allocated to the functioning of all courts, and -1. Annual public budget allocated to (gross) salaries. The classification used for budget approval does not allow to obtain data on other elements referred to in question 7.
The reports on execution budgets make it possible to distinguish budget figures for all the elements in the table. The amounts of all items are calculated using the budget execution reports as the best possible estimation.
Other
The budget allocated for other purposes includes funds allocated for employee benefits such as sick leave, maternity leave and various other benefits. Also, the budget allocated for other purposes includes provisions for deposits. Provisions for retained bails and deposits are reported as long-term provisions for costs that will occur with great certainty in the coming years on the basis of retained bails and deposits. All of these costs can vary significantly from year to year.

Q07 (2025): 2. Computerization: In 2025, all courts in Bosnia and Herzegovina had to acquire new licenses for the Microsoft Windows operating system because support for the old operating system had ended. The significant deviation in this budget item is due to the significant expenditures on licenses for the new operating system, as well as investments in new computers that are needed to make the new operating system work.
7. Other:
Due to the introduction of new operating systems, old computers were replaced in 2025 in all courts, which significantly increased depreciation costs in courts that fall into this "other" category.

Q07 (2024): 7. Other

Q07 (2023): Q4.
5. Annual public budget allocated to investments in new (court) buildings.
In 2023, a large investment in court buildings in the area of the Posavina Canton was realized. Since no investments in new buildings were recorded in other courts in Bosnia and Herzegovina, there was a significant increase in the allocated budget for this purpose compared to 2022.
7. Other

Provisions for retained bails and deposits are reported as long-term provisions for costs that will occur with great certainty in the coming years on the basis of retained bails and deposits. All of these costs can vary significantly from year to year.

Q07 (2022): There are two reasons why the amounts allocated for judicial expenses and training in 2022 are higher compared to the amounts allocated in 2021. First, after operating at a limited capacity in 2021 due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the courts continued to operate at full capacity in 2022. Secondly, due to inflation, a significant increase in the prices of services was recorded in 2022, and therefore the services of expertise, interpretation and training have become more expensive. In several courts, the amount of funds allocated for these purposes increased by more than 100% in 2022 compared to 2021
As regards investment in new buildings, the amount of funds allocated for the construction of new court buildings fluctuates from year to year, because it directly depends on the amount of funds donated for this purpose.

Q08 (General Comment): Gross salaries (1.1., 1.2, 1.3):
Data on gross salaries broken down by categories (e.g., prosecutors versus other staff – 1.1, 1.2, 1.3) cannot be presented because the structure of budget accounts in prosecutor's offices in Bosnia and Herzegovina does not allow the separation of the requested categories.
Computerization:
Currently, it is not possible to provide comprehensive and reliable information for this category.
Training:
The annual public budget used for training of public prosecution services was calculated on the basis of the data of the prosecutor's offices on the funds spent in the reporting year for the procurement of professional literature and the like. These amounts can vary significantly from year to year. This figure does not include the funds spent by judicial training centers and international donors for prosecutors' trainings.
Other:
The amount entered into the questionnaire does not represent additional or undefined costs, but rather a technical difference arising from limitations between the budget systems of prosecutor's offices in Bosnia and Herzegovina and the CEPEJ methodology. Certain budget items in the budgets of prosecutor's offices include different types of costs which, under the CEPEJ classification, fall into multiple categories, while part of the capital and operational costs cannot be clearly separated between categories.

Q08 (2024): The annual public budget allocated to training of public prosecution services was calculated on the basis of the data of the prosecutor's offices on the funds spent in the reporting year for the procurement of professional literature and the like. These amounts can vary significantly from year to year. This figure does not include the funds spent by judicial training centers and international donors for prosecutors' trainings.
Q08 (2022): Some prosecution offices allocated a smaller amount of funding in connection with the training in the reporting year. However, the disparities in training funding for 2022 compared to 2021 are not significant considering the small value of absolute amounts the prosecution offices generally allocate for this purpose.
Q09-0 (General Comment): The legal aid is financed through the budgets of individual courts (e.g. funds for legal aid are mainly used to pay for the services of ex officio appointed attorneys in criminal cases) and the budgets of legal aid institutions that are government bodies independent from the courts. The accounting methodology does not make it possible to distinguish the amount of budget funds earmarked by the courts for legal aid from other funds, which are planned within the same line in the court budget. However, it is possible to differentiate the amount of funds spent for legal aid in the implemented court budget. On the other hand, the lawyers employed by the government legal aid institutions provide legal aid in different legal fields (i.e. representation in criminal, civil, administrative court proceedings; provision of legal advice outside of court or other proceedings), therefore it is not possible to split the planned or implemented budget funds of the legal aid institutions between different legal fields. In conclusion, it is only possible to make the calculation of the annual implemented public budget allocated to legal aid without dividing it among criminal and other than criminal cases.

However, it is possible to differentiate the amount of funds spent for legal aid in the implemented court budget. On the other hand, the lawyers employed by the government legal aid institutions provide legal aid in different legal fields (i.e. representation in criminal, civil, administrative court proceedings; provision of legal advice outside of court or other proceedings), therefore it is not possible to split the planned or implemented budget funds of the legal aid institutions between different legal fields. In conclusion, it is only possible to make the calculation of the annual implemented public budget allocated to legal aid without dividing it among criminal and other than criminal cases.

Q09-0 (2025): The stated amount of EUR 15,746,664 (approved budget) refers to the costs of lawyers appointed ex officio.
The exact total amount of expenditures for free legal aid (column other than criminal cases) is not centrally available. The presented figures are only partially based on the amounts reimbursed by the Ministry of Justice and therefore do not reflect the full financial scope of the system.
Article 41 of the Law on Free Legal Aid ("Official Gazette of the Republic of Serbia", No. 87/2018) stipulates that, upon completion of the provision of free legal aid, the drafting of a notarial document, or mediation in dispute resolution, a request for payment shall be submitted together with supporting evidence and a final calculation (paragraph 1).
Furthermore, in cases where the costs are jointly borne by the Republic of Serbia and a local self-government unit, the local self-government unit pays the full amount of the fee to the service provider and subsequently claims reimbursement of 50% from the competent ministry (paragraph 2).
Accordingly, while the actual direct expenditure from the budget of the Ministry of Justice amounted to EUR 46,554, the amount of EUR 93,108 was reported in line with the recommendation of CEPEJ evaluators, who suggested that the reported figure should reflect the estimated total cost of the system rather than only the Ministry's reimbursed share. For this reason, and by recommendation of CEPEJ evaluators, the reimbursed amount was doubled in order to present the overall estimated expenditure corresponding to both the Ministry's contribution and the participation of local self-government units.
At the same time, the reported data still does not capture the total nationwide costs of the free legal aid system. It should therefore be emphasized that the actual overall expenditures are likely significantly higher due to the substantial financial participation of local self-government units.
Q09-0 (2023): Annual approved public budget for the High Judicial Council for mandatory defense 11536009 EUR.
In question 012 we counted only free legal aid. I see now we made a mistake.
Q09 (2025): The stated amount of EUR 15,652,468 (implemented budget) refers to the costs of lawyers appointed ex officio.

Q09 (2022): Please note that the total amount refers only to the cases of granted free legal aid according the Law on free legal aid. This amount does not cover the free legal aid that was provided according to the Criminal Procedure Code (mandatory defense, etc.)
Q013: TOTAL - Annual implemented public budget allocated to legal aid (1 + 2) - 92056 euros. A greater number of cases of free legal aid in 2022 resulted in a greater amount of money spent on the provided free legal aid. The amount for 2022 is higher compared to the previous two years, taking into account that during 2022 all measures against covid-19 were canceled.

Q09-1 (2023): The agency for free legal aid has had a genuine cooperation with international organizations over the years. During the year 2023, we can single out the close cooperation with GIZ, USAID, EUKOJUST, OSCE and UNHCR, cooperation which has also resulted in support to FLAA in different activities such as: realization of workshops for the drafting of by-laws, trainings, organization of awareness campaigns, preparation and printing of brochures, holding workshops, info legal sessions and meetings, realization of focus groups with citizens, drafting and publishing of analyses, manuals and other documents etc.

-Prosecutorial system is constantly being supported by international partners, donors and projects through trainings, events, roundtables and donations. The sum in the table includes all of these activities.
-For FLAA funds have been allocated for the extension of free legal aid in municipalities where there is no regional office and mobile office for providing free legal aid and raising the professional capacities of officials.
During 2022, FLAA was also supported by the donor USAID - JAK through these activities:

The exchange rate is 1 Eur = 103.88 ALL, resource Bank of Albania 29.12.2023
Explanations for the variations:
Salaries + 74%
Changes and increases in salaries budget come as a result of changes in legislation on salary specifically:
Law no. 33/2023 “For a change in the law no. 96/2016 on the status of judges and prosecutors in the Republic of Albania", changed, which changed the salaries of magistrates.
Decision no. 325, dated 31.5.2023 “For the approval of the structure of wages, salary levels and other allowances above salary of deputy minister, cabinet officers, prefect, sub-prefect, civil employees and employees in some institutions of Public Administration” and Decision no. 326, dated 31.5.2023” For employees' salaries supporters and employees of other specialties of different in some institutions of public administration”, of the Council of Ministers.
The change in the official exchange rate, which from 1 euro = 115 lek in 2022, became 1 euro = 103.8 lek in 2023.
Investments in computerisation + 884%
IT maintenance +252%
In the framework of the implementation of new software systems, the High Judicial Council has focused its investments in the purchase of electronic equipment.
The change in the official exchange rate, which from 1 euro = 115 lek in 2022, became 1 euro = 103.8 lek in 2023.
Court building maintenance -50%
As part of the implementation of the new judicial map, which ended in 2023, the courts have been in the process of restructuring, which has led to a decrease in funds for building

(General Comment): Data on the approved budget are classified according to the economic classification adopted by the ministries of finance. The data regarding the approved budget is classified in a way that allows obtaining data only on the following elements that relate to question 7:
-TOTAL - Annual budget allocated to the functioning of all courts, and -1. Annual public budget allocated to (gross) salaries. The classification used for budget approval does not allow to obtain data on other elements referred to in question 7.
The reports on execution budgets make it possible to distinguish budget figures for all the elements in the table. The amounts of all items are calculated using the budget execution reports as the best possible estimation.
Other
The budget allocated for other purposes includes funds allocated for employee benefits such as sick leave, maternity leave and various other benefits. Also, the budget allocated for other purposes includes provisions for deposits. Provisions for retained bails and deposits are reported as long-term provisions for costs that will occur with great certainty in the coming years on the basis of retained bails and deposits. All of these costs can vary significantly from year to year.

(2025): 2. Computerization: In 2025, all courts in Bosnia and Herzegovina had to acquire new licenses for the Microsoft Windows operating system because support for the old operating system had ended. The significant deviation in this budget item is due to the significant expenditures on licenses for the new operating system, as well as investments in new computers that are needed to make the new operating system work.
7. Other:
Due to the introduction of new operating systems, old computers were replaced in 2025 in all courts, which significantly increased depreciation costs in courts that fall into this "other" category.

(2024): 7. Other
The budget allocated for other purposes includes funds allocated for employee benefits such as sick leave, maternity leave and various other benefits. All of these costs can vary significantly from year to year.

(2023): Q4.
5. Annual public budget allocated to investments in new (court) buildings.
In 2023, a large investment in court buildings in the area of the Posavina Canton was realized. Since no investments in new buildings were recorded in other courts in Bosnia and Herzegovina, there was a significant increase in the allocated budget for this purpose compared to 2022.
7. Other
The budget allocated for other purposes includes funds allocated for employee benefits such as sick leave, maternity leave and various other benefits. Also, the budget allocated for other purposes includes provisions for deposits. Provisions for retained bails and deposits are reported as long-term provisions for costs that will occur with great certainty in the coming years on the basis of retained bails and deposits. All of these costs can vary significantly from year to year.

(2022): There are two reasons why the amounts allocated for judicial expenses and training in 2022 are higher compared to the amounts allocated in 2021. First, after operating at a limited capacity in 2021 due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the courts continued to operate at full capacity in 2022. Secondly, due to inflation, a significant increase in the prices of services was recorded in 2022, and therefore the services of expertise, interpretation and training have become more expensive. In several courts, the amount of funds allocated for these purposes increased by more than 100% in 2022 compared to 2021
As regards investment in new buildings, the amount of funds allocated for the construction of new court buildings fluctuates from year to year, because it directly depends on the amount of funds donated for this purpose.

Montenegro

North Macedonia
(2025): For computerisation - This decrease is result of decreased expenses from 2024 for servicing of software FEMIDA
For Justice expenses - This increase is result of increased expenses for translation in court procedures and increased expenses for post services
For other -This increase is result of not possibility to classify some expenses on categories from 1 - 6 Concerning Other expenses, the decrease is attributed to the reduction of budget lines for payments related to final decisions on labor disputes initiated by employees in the judiciary and a decrease in travel expenses.

(2024): Investments in new court buildings are expenses for renovating a few existing courts(new facades, replacement of windows, reconstruction of installations, etc.). For Investments in new court buildings, the observed discrepancy is due to a smaller number of reconstructions of courts in 2024 compared to 2023. Regarding the Investments in computerisation, the increase is the result of the introduction of a new system for audio recording in courtrooms and the procurement of 365 PC units. Concerning Other expenses, the decrease is attributed to the reduction of budget lines for payments related to final decisions on labour disputes initiated by employees in the judiciary and a decrease in travel expenses.

(2023): After the investments in ICT made in the previous year, additional resources were allocated to maintain the new system. Regarding investments in new court buildings, the increase is attributable to expenses for renovating a few existing courts.

2. North Macedonia in 2022 allocated huge budget to investments in computerization (replacement of all old servers in all the courts and in the Judicial Council with new servers, 308 new computers, new laptops, 212 new printers, 64 new scanners, new softwares (for example: for evaluation of judges).
4. Maintenance of the court buildings and operating costs in 2022 are higher due to new prices of gas and electricity in our country and on the world level, as a consequences from COVID-19 and war in Ukraine.
5. In 2022, the renovation of the new building of Administrative court was finished. That was the second phase of the plan with smaller allocated budget for finishing the project, since the budget of first phase of the plan was larger and implemented in 2021.
7. All the prices and costs in 2022 are higher due to inflation. Please, see also explanation for category 4.

Question 08

Albania

(2025): In the others section 7 are included: (Office supplies and stationery; Transportation expenses; Per diem allowances; Other operational expenses;Taxes and duties; Membership fees in international prosecutors' organizations; Economic assistance for employees; Other investments such as Purchase of vehicles; Air conditioners; Office furniture etc).
The legal amendments undertaken during 2023, implemented pursuant to the Constitutional Court Decision, No. 35, resulted in additional financial obligations for the General Prosecution Office, which were primarily reflected in the 2024 budget. These obligations relate to the settlement of salary-related liabilities for magistrates and judicial police officers. Therefore, a temporary increase in the budget was recorded in 2024, attributable to the incorporation of these accumulated liabilities from previous years. Accordingly, the percentage decrease in the budget from 2024 to 2025 does not constitute an actual reduction in salaries, but rather reflects the normalization of expenditure following the elevated level recorded in 2024, which was influenced by the implementation of the Constitutional Court decision.

(2023): The data for the implemented budget "Implemented budget" for the year 2023 are approximate and were obtained from the AFMIS system until 22.01.2024. This figure is not final as the Treasury Office responsible for confirming this data will publish this figure in February 2024.
In the first column, we planned the budget at the beginning of the year.
In the second column, we have the actual realization of budget funds during the year 2023.
The revised budget during the year is 32,016,181 euros due to institutional needs.
The increase in this budget has come as a result of additions during the year 2023 of funds for personnel expenses for the payments of magistrates and officers in implementation of the Decision
no. 35 of the Constitutional Court for wrongly calculated salaries.

Bosnia and Herzegovina

(General Comment): Gross salaries (1.1., 1.2, 1.3):
Data on gross salaries broken down by categories (e.g., prosecutors versus other staff – 1.1, 1.2, 1.3) cannot be presented because the structure of budget accounts in prosecutor's offices in Bosnia and Herzegovina does not allow the separation of the requested categories.
Computerization:
Currently, it is not possible to provide comprehensive and reliable information for this category.
Training:
The annual public budget used for training of public prosecution services was calculated on the basis of the data of the prosecutor's offices on the funds spent in the reporting year for the procurement of professional literature and the like. These amounts can vary significantly from year to year. This figure does not include the funds spent by judicial training centers and international donors for prosecutors' trainings.
Other:
The amount entered into the questionnaire does not represent additional or undefined costs, but rather a technical difference arising from limitations between the budget systems of prosecutor's offices in Bosnia and Herzegovina and the CEPEJ methodology. Certain budget items in the budgets of prosecutor's offices include different types of costs which, under the CEPEJ classification, fall into multiple categories, while part of the capital and operational costs cannot be clearly separated between categories.

(2024): The annual public budget allocated to training of public prosecution services was calculated on the basis of the data of the prosecutor's offices on the funds spent in the reporting year for the procurement of professional literature and the like. These amounts can vary significantly from year to year. This figure does not include the funds spent by judicial training centers and international donors for prosecutors' trainings.

(2022): Some prosecution offices allocated a smaller amount of funding in connection with the training in the reporting year. However, the disparities in training funding for 2022 compared to 2021 are not significant considering the small value of absolute amounts the prosecution offices generally allocate for this purpose.

Montenegro
(2025): The total amount of funds allocated for gross salaries of employees in the State Prosecutor's Offices and the Secretariat of the Prosecutorial Council amounted to €9,419,424.98, of which €7,528,256.54 was allocated for net salaries.

*Program 12005- Work of the Prosecutor's Office – €12,585,902.90 (17 activities, i.e. 17 state prosecutor's offices)
*Program 12024- Regulation and management in the justice system – €1,099,302.96 (2 activities, i.e. the Secretariat of the Prosecutorial Council and the Prosecutorial Council).
After the transfer of funds from the current budget reserve and the redirection of funds by the Ministry of Finance, the current budget amounted to €14,478,380.05. Namely, by the decision of the Government of Montenegro, €42,000.00 was redirected from the current budget reserve to the Special State Prosecutor's Office, €14,000.00 for fuel and €28,000.00 for vehicle maintenance costs. The Ministry of Finance diverted €751,174.19, which was the amount of expenses based on the court collection of creditors.

(2023): difference between approved and implemented is because there were additional transfers from state budget to Prosecution during a budget year

North Macedonia
(2025): Other - travel expenses, per diem etc.

(2023): The increase in the total budget is due to increased salaries

Serbia

Question 09-0

Albania
(2025): The increase in the Approved and Implemented Legal Aid (LA) budget is mainly due to the increase in the salaries of the employees working within the system of state-guaranteed free legal aid. This adjustment was made in line with the broader public administration salary policy and has directly affected the overall budget allocated and implemented for legal aid.

(2024): The legal aid implemented budget has increased by 8.6% compared to the previous year.
Cases brought to the court, we have referred to cases of secondary legal assistance (payment of lawyers, experts who have provided secondary legal services). The rest is considered as providing advice and any other financial commitment in function of the institution's activity. The further increase is related to the fact of the opening of the primary legal aid service provision centers throughout the Republic of Albania and the changes in the legislation on employee salaries.

Bosnia and Herzegovina

(General Comment): The legal aid is financed through the budgets of individual courts (e.g. funds for legal aid are mainly used to pay for the services of ex officio appointed attorneys in criminal cases) and the budgets of legal aid institutions that are government bodies independent from the courts. The accounting methodology does not make it possible to distinguish the amount of budget funds earmarked by the courts for legal aid from other funds, which are planned within the same line in the court budget. However, it is possible to differentiate the amount of funds spent for legal aid in the implemented court budget. On the other hand, the lawyers employed by the government legal aid institutions provide legal aid in different legal fields (i.e. representation in criminal, civil, administrative court proceedings; provision of legal advice outside of court or other proceedings), therefore it is not possible to split the planned or implemented budget funds of the legal aid institutions between different legal fields. In conclusion, it is only possible to make the calculation of the annual implemented public budget allocated to legal aid without dividing it among criminal and other than criminal cases.

Montenegro

(2025): Regarding the issue of free legal aid, the allocated budget amounted to €144,617.00, of which €90,357.30 was spent in 2025, while the remaining amount was returned to the Budget of Montenegro.

(2022): in 2022 no separate amount for legal aid for courts was allocated, but that was a part of the budget section 4146 - lawyer services. In 2022 for legal aid the amount implemented is 108.776 Eur

North Macedonia

(2025): The increase in the budget is due to the increase of the costs for mandatory legal representation in criminal proceedings

(2024): This discrepancy is result of decrease of budget within of Ministry of Justice dedicated to free legal aid

Serbia

(2025): The stated amount of EUR 15,746,664 (approved budget) refers to the costs of lawyers appointed ex officio.
The exact total amount of expenditures for free legal aid (column other than criminal cases) is not centrally available. The presented figures are only partially based on the amounts reimbursed by the Ministry of Justice and therefore do not reflect the full financial scope of the system.
Article 41 of the Law on Free Legal Aid ("Official Gazette of the Republic of Serbia", No. 87/2018) stipulates that, upon completion of the provision of free legal aid, the drafting of a notarial document, or mediation in dispute resolution, a request for payment shall be submitted together with supporting evidence and a final calculation (paragraph 1).
Furthermore, in cases where the costs are jointly borne by the Republic of Serbia and a local self-government unit, the local self-government unit pays the full amount of the fee to the service provider and subsequently claims reimbursement of 50% from the competent ministry (paragraph 2).
Accordingly, while the actual direct expenditure from the budget of the Ministry of Justice amounted to EUR 46,554, the amount of EUR 93,108 was reported in line with the recommendation of CEPEJ evaluators, who suggested that the reported figure should reflect the estimated total cost of the system rather than only the Ministry's reimbursed share. For this reason, and by recommendation of CEPEJ evaluators, the reimbursed amount was doubled in order to present the overall estimated expenditure corresponding to both the Ministry's contribution and the participation of local self-government units.
At the same time, the reported data still does not capture the total nationwide costs of the free legal aid system. It should therefore be emphasized that the actual overall expenditures are likely significantly higher due to the substantial financial participation of local self-government units.

(2023): Annual approved public budget for the High Judicial Council for mandatory defense 11536009 EUR.
In question 012 we counted only free legal aid. I see now we made a mistake.

Kosovo*
(2025): FLAA comment: Based on the Law No. 08/L-332 on Budgetary Allocations for the Budget of The Republic of Kosovo for the year 2025, a budget of €563,418.0 was allocated to the Free Legal Aid Agency, while by the end of the year the final budget was €621,237.86, of which €611,654.43 were implemented. The budget was allocated in the following categories: Salaries and allowances 374,278.29 € goods and services 236,959.57 €; and utilities 10,000.00 €.

(2024): KPC COMMENT: In our budget categories we don't have separate category for budget for lawyers, but the budget code is named "legal representation cost" which include lawyers and experts. The total budget approved for this category was 1,218,303€ which we divided in 2 and the budget approved for lawyers being 609,151.5€.
FREE LEGAL AID AGENCY COMMENT: Based on the budget law No. 08/L-260, a budget of 537,831.00 € was allocated to the Free Legal Aid Agency in the following categories: Salaries and allowances 307,831.00 € goods and services 220,000.00 €;, and utilities 10,000.00 €.

(2022): Budget increased

Question 09

Albania

(2025): The increase in the Approved and Implemented Legal Aid (LA) budget is mainly due to the increase in the salaries of the employees working within the system of state-guaranteed free legal aid. This adjustment was made in line with the broader public administration salary policy and has directly affected the overall budget allocated and implemented for legal aid.
The budget related to mandatory representation in court (ex officio lawyers) is not included in the figures reported under Q09.

(2023): We emphasize that the planning of funds is done based on the number of decisions received by the court, while the liquidation of payments is done after all the procedural steps of judicial representation have been completed. Trials take time, especially in the nowadays conditions regarding the absence of judges due to the vetting process. This is reflected in the delays until the arrival of the liquidation practice in the Directorate.

Montenegro

(2025): In 2025, the courts had an individually allocated amount for the provision of free legal aid, which is contained within account 4146-lawyer services and amounted to €144,617.02

(2024): Courts in 2024 had an individually determined amount for providing BPP, it is contained within account 4146-advocate services and it amounted to €145,517.85. In 2024, €91,801.16 was realized for free legal aid. The remaining funds in the amount of €53,716.69 were returned to the State Treasury.

(2023): Not including ex officio mandatory representation. Legal aid is different specific category

(2022): in 2022 no separate amount for legal aid for courts was allocated, but that was a part of the budget section 4146 - lawyer services. In 2022 for legal aid the amount implemented is 108.776 Eur

North Macedonia

(2025): The increase in the budget is due to the increase of the costs for mandatory legal representation in criminal proceedings

(2024): The amount of the approved budget was exceeded due to an increased number of requests and amounts, and payments were made from other lines of the budget of the Ministry, through repurposing.

(2023): In 2023, more criminal cases brought to court were concluded. The rise in the budget allocated to criminal cases may also be attributed to the complexity of these cases and their longer durations, resulting in higher expenses for lawyers.

(2022): Implementation of the new Law on free legal aid was one of the strategic goals. Campaigns in 2022 through the whole country to raise awareness of beneficiaries about their rights to free legal aid were very successful. These Numbers are the proof for improvement of usage of free legal aid system in our country.

(2023): Official data obtained from the Sector for financial affairs in the MOJ
Annual implemented public budget for the High Judicial Council for mandatory defense 11469009 EUR.
In question 012 we counted only free legal aid. I see now we made a mistake.

(2022): Please note that the total amount refers only to the cases of granted free legal aid according the Law on free legal aid. This amount does not cover the free legal aid that was provided according to the Criminal Procedure Code (mandatory defense, etc.)
Q013: TOTAL - Annual implemented public budget allocated to legal aid (1 + 2) - 92056 euros. A greater number of cases of free legal aid in 2022 resulted in a greater amount of money spent on the provided free legal aid. The amount for 2022 is higher compared to the previous two years, taking into account that during 2022 all measures against covid-19 were canceled.

North Macedonia: because of the 2021 census, the number of inhabitants changed significantly between 2020 and 2021. Albania: because of the 2023 census, the number of inhabitants changed significantly between 2023 and 2024. As a result, variations in indicators standardised by the number of inhabitants may be partly due to the change in population figures.

North Macedonia: because of the 2021 census, the number of inhabitants changed significantly between 2020 and 2021. Albania: because of the 2023 census, the number of inhabitants changed significantly between 2023 and 2024. As a result, variations in indicators standardised by the number of inhabitants may be partly due to the change in population figures.

North Macedonia: because of the 2021 census, the number of inhabitants changed significantly between 2020 and 2021. Albania: because of the 2023 census, the number of inhabitants changed significantly between 2023 and 2024. As a result, variations in indicators standardised by the number of inhabitants may be partly due to the change in population figures.

2.12 Policies on gender equality

Table 2.12.1 Existence of measures or institutional bodies specific to the judiciary to ensure gender equality among judicial professionals, especially in recruitment and promotion in 2025 (Q50)

Beneficiaries	Existence of measures or institutional bodies specific to the judiciary to ensure gender equality among judicial professionals, especially in recruitment and promotion in 2025
Albania	The criteria for the recruitment of new judges are provided for in Articles 28 and 32 of Law No. 96/2016, while the criteria for promotion are provided for in Article 48. In both provisions, the guarantee of gender equality is not provided for as a criterion.
Bosnia and Herzegovina	In October 2020, the HJPC adopted the Strategy on Improving Gender Equality in the Judiciary of BiH, based on which all judicial institutions developed their respective implementation plans. The implementation of these plans began in 2022 and the HJPC BiH has since been regularly monitoring their progress and issuing recommendations aimed at further improvement. The Strategy was created within the Project Improving Court Efficiency and Accountability of Judges and Prosecutors in BiH - Phase 2, financed by the Government of Sweden, in cooperation with the Swedish National Courts Administration The Strategy is available here: https://pravosudje.ba/vstvfo/E/141/article/95500
Montenegro	In Montenegro, there is no separate body exclusively task for gender equality issues within the judiciary. Gender equality is ensured by general public policies and where prescribed by laws and regulations.
North Macedonia	The Strategy for Gender Equality 2022-2027 as a new key document was adopted in 2022. According to the new Strategy one of the priority areas is Policy and Decision making. It is necessary to increase the number of women in decision-making positions in the executive branch, political parties, media, sports, local self-government, and also in all areas where no legal solutions or quotas are established and where women's participation is very low, according to the Commitment 50 -50. The increase in the number of women decision-makers should be done through incentive measures, and awareness rising, as well as binding legal measures. It is especially important to encourage women to participate in the decision-making structures in the local self-government units, where decisions and measures are made that directly affect the quality of life in the local self-government units. Also, in 2022 we must emphasize some important achieved activities for implementation of Istanbul Convention and Law on the prevention and protection from violence against women and domestic violence. Amendments of the Criminal Code and new criminal offenses in compliance with Istanbul Convention were adopted in 2023. Also, new bylaws for generating statistics in courts and public prosecution offices for domestic violence was adopted by the Minister of Justice in December 2022. At the end, the most important, the first Law on payment of monetary compensation to victims of criminal offenses (Law on state compensation) was adopted in November 2022. Implementation of this Law started from May 2023.

Serbia	Reply by Supreme court: Pursuant to the Law on Gender Equality („Official Gazette RS“, 52/21), all public authorities, including the judiciary, are required to provide equal opportunities for women and men in recruitment, promotion and the performance of duties. Within the Serbian judiciary, there is no specialized body dedicated exclusively to gender equality in the courts or public prosecutor’s offices. However, key institutions bear responsibility for safeguarding equal opportunities— primarily the High Judicial Council and the State Prosecutorial Council. In addition, the Ministry of Justice, together with independent bodies such as the Commissioner for the Protection of Equality, oversees the implementation of laws and policies on gender equality. According to Article 64 of the Law on Gender Equality („Official Gazette RS“, No. 52/21), public authorities with more than 50 employees and engaged workers are obliged to designate, from among their staff, a person responsible for gender equality, in accordance with their act on internal organization and job classification In the Supreme Court, there is a person responsible for gender equality who monitors the implementation of policies and measures aimed at achieving and improving gender equality within the scope of the court. This person also monitors the gender composition of judges, employees, and other individuals engaged in work at the court, and prepares reports on the established situation. Reply by HJC: Article 52 of the Law on Judges (“Official Gazette of RS", No. 10/2023) stipulates that during the selection and nomination of candidates for a judge, discrimination on any basis is prohibited. Article 2 of the - Rulebook on the procedure for the election of a judge and the president of the court ("Official Gazette of RS", No 34/24) stipulates that during the selection and nomination of candidates for a judge, discrimination on any basis is prohibited. Reply by HPC: No measures exist for this purpose.
Kosovo*	There are legal provisions that ensure the gender representation during recruitment and promotion in the prosecutorial system: Article 7, paragraph 5 and article 20 paragraph 6 of Law on Kosovo Prosecutorial Council: https://gzk.rks-gov.net/ActDetail.aspx?ActID=2709 Article 7 Duties and responsibilities of the Council 1. The Council exercises the following duties and responsibilities: 1.5. ensures the implementation and oversights the requirements for admission to the prosecution office, which should be made in accordance with the principles of merit, equal opportunities, gender equality, non-discrimination and equal representation, on the basis of public vacancy and after verifying candidates’ capacity to act; Article 20 Recruitment and selection of candidates 6. Giving priority to candidates with equal qualifications from under-represented communities will be implemented while the percentage of non-majority community prosecutors in Kosovo is below fifteen per cent (15%) and/or while the percentage of prosecutors who are members of the Kosovo Serb community is below eight percent (8%)

Q31 (2024): New judges were appointed in first instance in 2023

Q31 (2023): -In regard of the number of judges

Referred to the decision of Council of Ministers no. 495, dated 21.07.2022 "On the reorganization of judicial districts and territorial powers of the courts", on 01.07.2023 the process of implementing the New Judicial Map was completed, reorganizing the number of courts operating in the Republic of Albania from 38 courts to 20 courts.

Occurring in the conditions of a transitional year, due to the implementation of the New Judicial Map and due to the redistribution of the number of 408 magistrates (judges), referring to decision no. 553, dated 29.12.2022 "On the appointment of the number of magistrates in the Court of Appeal with General Jurisdiction", decision no. 146, dated 29.03.2023 "On determining the number of magistrates in the Courts of First Instance with General Jurisdiction" and decision no. 286, dated 29.05.2023 "On the determination of the number of magistrates in the Administrative Courts of the First Instance" of the Supreme Judicial Council, the comparison of data in specific courts becomes difficult.

However, the main factor in the reduction of the number of magistrates (judges) is attributed to the transitional re-evaluation process, and more specifically, in terms of losses from the system as a result of the transitional re-evaluation process, it is worth noting that 24 decision-making for dismissal from office resulted from The Appeal Chamber belonging to the year 2023, as well as resulting in 53 judges (magistrates) dismissed from office, with decision-making by the Independent Qualification Commission, of which 11 magistrates (judges) dismissed by the Independent Qualification Commission during 2023, who are waiting for the development of the process in The Appeal Chamber, meanwhile maintaining the status of a judge due to the suspension and simultaneously benefiting according to the law of 75% of the salary.

Also, in 2023, there are 6 magistrates (judges) who have left office, of which 2 magistrates (judges) have resigned from office and 4 magistrates (judges) have left due

Inviolability of salary and other financial benefits of the magistrate
The slight decrease in salaries expressed in euro is due to exchange rate fluctuations, specifically the depreciation of the euro against the national currency (Albanian Lek). It does not reflect any actual change in nominal salary levels, which have remained unchanged during the reference period.
Q45 (2024): The changes in the salaries of the magistrates come as a result of the new salary of the magistrate pursuant to Law no. 33, dated 25.05.2023 "On an amendment to the law 96/2016 "On the status of judges and prosecutors in the Republic of Albania as amended, and the, Decision of Council of Ministers no. 325, dated 31.05.2023 "On the approval of the salary structure, salary levels and other salary increments of the deputy minister, cabinet officials, prefect, sub-prefect, civil servants and employees in some public administration institutions".
Q45 (2023): Law no. 96/2016, “On the status of judges and prosecutors in the republic of Albania”, articles 11-22, foresee the financial treatment of the magistrates, (judges and prosecutors), giving specific details on how the salaries are calculated, seniority bonuses in the exercise of the function, bonuses for the leading functions, bonuses for difficulties at work, compensation for delegated magistrates, proficiency allowances, home loans and other benefits, etc.

Q45 (2022): The difference in amount from one year to another comes for two reasons:
the values are set in the Euro currency, which brings changes in the amount from year to year depending on the exchange rate at the time of reporting, since judges' salaries are calculated in Lek.
the maximum salary that is reported is the salary that is actually given to the judge who is paid more in the system and not the potential salary that the salary can go higher. This means that the maximum salary given, because it also includes the element of seniority at work, which of course changes every year.
Q46 (General Comment): The criteria for the quality assessment of the public prosecutor's work are set by the Law no. 96/2016, "On the status of judges and prosecutors in the Republic of Albania", as amended, and Regulation "On the ethical and professional assessment of prosecutors", approved by Decision no. 95, dated 09.05.2022, of High Prosecutorial Council. These criteria are summarised in 4 indicators:
a) professional skills; b) organizational skills; c) ethics and commitment to professional values; d) personal skills and professional commitment.
High Prosecutorial Council is responsible for carrying out the ethic and professional evaluation of all prosecutors and head of prosecution offices.
The aim of the ethical and professional performance evaluation of magistrates is to: a) Continuously improve the ethical and professional skills of magistrates; b) Establish consistent standards for the quality and quantity of the work of magistrates; c) Announce the Councils' decisions in relation to decisions on the status of magistrates in connection with the development of their career based on their merits; ç) Provide information to the Councils and the School of Magistrate with regard to training needs of magistrates and to facilitate the planning of the training; d) Identify the magistrates who may have particular professional skills relevant for the justice system; dh) Contribute to the improvement of the organizational structure of courts and prosecution offices as well as the working conditions for magistrates.

Bosnia and Herzegovina

Q31 (General Comment): The number of court presidents is included in the number of judges.

There are 3 courts of general jurisdiction in Bosnia and Herzegovina that are included in the Supreme Court category.

Firstly, at entity level, there are the Federation of Bosnia and Herzegovina Supreme Court and the Republika Srpska Supreme Court.

Both courts are competent to decide within the respective entity on legal remedies concerning decisions of the immediately lower courts.

Secondly, there is the Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina at the State level. Its competencies are regulated by the Law on the Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina and are related to criminal, administrative and appellate jurisdiction. However, the Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina has no jurisdiction over the decisions adopted by the entity – level Supreme Courts. Within its criminal jurisdiction, the Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina tries cases pertaining to the specific category of crimes laid down by the laws of Bosnia and Herzegovina, which include war crimes, organized crime, economic crime and corruption cases. The administrative jurisdiction means that the Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina adjudicates cases pertaining to the decisions issued by the State institutions and other organizations in charge of public functions, such as property disputes related to the performance of public functions between the State and the entities, breaches of the election law, etc. Its Appellate Division only decides appeals against the decisions of the Court's first instance divisions. Accordingly, there are three Prosecutor's Offices representing criminal cases before the courts that are included in the Supreme Court category: the Prosecutor's Office before the Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina; the Prosecutor's Office before the Federation of Bosnia and Herzegovina Supreme Court; the Prosecutor's Office before the Republika Srpska Supreme Court.

Q32 (General Comment): Lay judges are citizens who hear and decide criminal cases together with professional judges. Lay judges are appointed by the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina and they play a role in the Bosnia and Herzegovina judicial system, due to application of previously valid criminal procedural laws that required their participation. The procedural laws have been changed in a way that participation of lay judges is not required any longer, but due to a backlog of cases, their participation is still needed. Concretely, courts adjudicate the criminal law cases by panels that include lay judges if the proceedings were instituted before the currently valid Criminal Procedure Codes came into force.

Q32 (2025): In 2025, the trend of decreasing the number of non-professional judges continued, in line with a decrease in the number of old pending criminal cases in courts.

A judicial associate may proceed and decide non-contentious matters, enforcement matters, including payment orders, and small claims cases in accordance with the law and as assigned by the court president. Q39-1 (General Comment): In December 2021, the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina adopted the guidelines requiring the chief prosecutors in the country to prescribe internal procedure for issuing specific instructions. The guidelines read as follows: The chief prosecutor gives mandatory individual instructions for taking procedural and substantive prosecutorial decisions in accordance with the law. The instructions must be issued in writing and entered in the case file. The prosecutor is obliged to act in accordance with the individual instructions given by the chief prosecutor unless following such instructions would mean a violation of the law. If the prosecutor disagrees with the individual instructions, he will submit his dissenting opinion to the chief prosecutor. The chief prosecutor, after obtaining the opinion of the collegiate of the prosecutor's office, makes an elaborate decision in relation to the prosecutor's dissenting opinion. The relevant statistics with regards to the implementation of the above mentioned the HJPC guidelines are provided under Q39-2.

Q41 (General Comment): Total number of open positions:
Public advertisements for filling vacant positions in prosecutors' offices and courts in Bosnia and Herzegovina cannot contain an indication of the gender that the successful candidate must meet. Accordingly, only data on the number of vacant positions for which a recruitment procedure was initiated in the reporting year by the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina are available.
Total number of applicants:
As for the total number of applicants, the data is available only in relation to the question about the total number of applicants in the reference year. However, the total number of applicants cannot be divided according to the number of applications for judge and prosecutorial positions because almost all submissions include applications for vacant positions in both courts and prosecutor's offices.

Q43 (General Comment): Part-time work: In case the judges or prosecutors meet requirements, which are determined by the general labor legislation, it is possible for the judges and prosecutors to be permitted to work part-time (i.e. half of full-time working hours) for a certain period of time in order to provide care to their children.
Q45 (General Comment): First of all, the work experience affects the amount of net and gross salaries. The following assumptions were used for the above stated calculations of the salaries of judicial office folders (i. e. judges and prosecutors): three-year working experience of judge/prosecutor at the beginning of his/her career; twenty-year working experience of a judge/prosecutor of the supreme court or the highest appellate instance. There are somewhat different general regimes for the salary contributions in different jurisdictions in Bosnia and Herzegovina, these regimes apply to the salaries of the judicial office holders as well. Having in mind the aforementioned factors, the above stated calculations of the salaries are made as the weighted average salary based on the number of judges/prosecutors. The method used to calculate net and gross salaries for judges/prosecutors is based on the basic salary amount as prescribed by law together with allowances added to the net salary subject to years of employment, and other contributions for the calculation of gross salaries. Deviations occur due to the application of different legal regulations on entity level, i.e. specifically with reference to judicial office positions in one of the jurisdictions in Bosnia and Herzegovina (i.e. the Brcko District of Bosnia and Herzegovina), where there are far more judges than prosecutors, which directly impacts the calculation of overall indicators.
Q45 (2025): Salaries of public prosecutor at the beginning of his/her career: the increase exceeding 20% threshold is the result of the growth in the average salary in Bosnia and Herzegovina in 2025 (in conjunction with the adjustment mechanism foreseen by the legislation on salaries of judges and prosecutors), as well as the fact that the calculation encompassed 20 first instance prosecutors with the least years of service in either relevant jurisdictions in Bosnia and Herzegovina (i.e. 8 prosecutors in one jurisdiction and 12 prosecutors in another jurisdiction).

Q45 (2022): Due to the changes in the Dashboard Western Balkans Questionnaire for 2022, the amount of salaries of judges and public prosecutors in Bosnia and Herzegovina at the Highest Appellate Instance is significantly higher in 2022 compared to the relevant figure included in the Dashboard Western Balkans Questionnaire for 2021.
Q46 (2025): Please consult the description of the system for evaluating the work of judges and prosecutors in Bosnia and Herzegovina in relation to the question
Q47 (General Comment): According to the Law on the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina, the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina adopts two sets of criteria - criteria for evaluating the performance of judges and criteria for evaluating the performance of prosecutors. The evaluation of the work results of all judges and prosecutors is carried out once a year. The performance of judges is assessed by the president of the court, whereas the chief prosecutor evaluates the work of prosecutors in accordance with the criteria established by the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina.
In December 2024, the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina adopted new criteria for evaluating the work of judges and prosecutors. With the adoption of the new criteria, analytical evaluation was introduced into the evaluation system for judicial function holders. This involves a qualitative element of work evaluation („Analytical evaluation of prosecutor's work“ and „Analytical quality of judge's work and decisions“) which will enable a better assessment of the professional competencies of each judge and prosecutor. Thus, a reform of the evaluation system was initiated, which had previously been predominantly based on the assessment of results according to quantitative indicators. This reform was undertaken after the recommendations of experts engaged by the European Commission for the preparation of a 'Peer Review on the evaluation of the work of judges and prosecutors' from 2017 were accepted, suggesting that it is necessary to strengthen quality criteria in the evaluation system. The presidents of courts and chief prosecutors will evaluate the work of the holders of judicial functions according to new criteria during the first quarter of 2026.
The criteria and points structure for the annual performance evaluation of judges are as follows: Quantity of work (i.e. annual quota) – up to 30 points, Percentage of realization of individual case resolution plan - up to 10 points, Analytical quality of judge's work and decisions – up to 10 points, Statistical quality of decisions (i.e. confirmation rate) – up to 50 points.
The criteria and points structure for the annual performance evaluation of prosecutors are as follows: Quantity of work (i.e. annual quota) – up to 30 points, Percentage of realization of individual case resolution plan - up to 10 points, Analytical evaluation of prosecutor's work - 10 points, Statistical quality of decisions – up to 50 points.
The statistical quality of decisions issued by a judge is evaluated based on the following sub-criteria:
a)the percentage of reversed decisions compared to the total number of decisions upheld, modified and reversed by a higher instance court;
b)the percentage of reversed and modified decisions compared to the total number of cases in which a final decision was rendered to which a legal remedy may be filed with the higher instance court.
The chief prosecutor determines the analytical evaluation of the prosecutor's work based on a reasoned assessment of the prosecutor's work according to the following elements: a) the ability to determine the established facts relevant for making prosecutorial decisions; b) the ability to handle complex cases; c) timeliness in making decisions and compliance with legal deadlines; d) the ability to organize and efficiently conduct investigations in a proactive manner; e) the professional level of prosecutorial decisions, demonstrated legal knowledge, and use of legal remedies.

Q48 (General Comment): Number of lawyers: Bar associations from Bosnia and Herzegovina submitted data on the number of lawyers registered in their official registers at the end of the reporting year. Only lawyers enrolled in the public registry of lawyers have the right to represent and defend all physical and legal persons before courts, administrative authorities and all other institutions in the state.
Number of enforcement agents:
Courts from Bosnia and Herzegovina submitted data on the number of enforcement agents at the end of the reporting year. Enforcement agents are court employees who, by order of the court, take immediate actions in the enforcement proceedings. The enforcement proceedings are managed by the individual judge.
Number of notaries:
Notary chambers from Bosnia and Herzegovina submitted data on the number of notaries registered in their official registers at the end of the reporting year.
Number of judicial experts:
The relevant ministries of justice keep records of appointed expert witnesses. This directory is a public register.
Q49 (General Comment): In criminal cases the suspect/accused has the right to present his/her own defence or to be defended by a defence counsel who has to be a lawyer or, in some parts of the state, a legal aid official employed by a legal aid institution. Only in cases specified by the law defence by a defence counsel is mandatory. Many of the criminal cases dealt with by the highest courts fall under the terms of mandatory defence by a defence counsel. Civil society organisations, family members or trade unions cannot represent a client before courts in criminal cases. As for the victims, they can represent themselves while the criminal procedure legislation does not contain an explicit general provision on the right of victims to have a representative in criminal proceedings; however, criminal procedure laws include several provisions that indirectly foresee this possibility for victims without stating that these representatives can only be lawyers.
Litigants can represent themselves in civil and administrative cases. They can also be represented by family members (spouse, life partner or by a relative by blood or by marriage), legal aid officials (employed by legal aid institutions or legal aid NGOs) or by trade union employee in labour cases.
Self-representation before the highest instance courts in civil cases is restricted in the revision cases (extraordinary legal remedy). Request for revision can be submitted to the highest instance courts by either a lawyer or by a litigant or his agent provided they have the same qualifications as lawyers (bar exam).

In addition, the new Rules for the Evaluation of State Prosecutors are applied: https://tuzilastvo.me/wp-content/uploads/2025/06/Pravila-za-ocjenjivanje-drzavnih-tuzilaca-NOVO.pdf
Amendments to the Law on the State Prosecutor's Office introduced changes to the criteria and sub-criteria for evaluating the work of state prosecutors (the Law was published in the Official Gazette of Montenegro, No. 54/2024 of 11 June 2024, and entered into force on 19 June 2024). This required the adoption of new Rules on the Evaluation of State Prosecutors and Heads of State Prosecutor's Offices, which entered into force on 27 May 2025.
On 28 November 2025, a new Commission for the Evaluation of the Work of State Prosecutors was established. On 16 December 2025, the Commission adopted the Plan for the Evaluation of State Prosecutors, under which evaluations will be carried out in 2026. The procedure for evaluating state prosecutors and heads of state prosecutor's offices is currently ongoing, in accordance with the Evaluation Plan. It is planned that 63 state prosecutors will be evaluated in 2026, including 51 state prosecutors and 12 heads of state prosecutor's offices.
Furthermore, the mandate of the members of the Prosecutorial Council expired on 5 August 2025, while the members from among distinguished legal professionals were elected on 19 November 2025. Consequently, it was not possible to establish the Commission for the Evaluation of the Work of State Prosecutors earlier, nor to adopt the Evaluation Plan in accordance with Article 2 of the Rules on the Evaluation of State Prosecutors and Heads of State Prosecutor's Offices ("Official Gazette of Montenegro", No. 48/25). As a result, the evaluation of state prosecutors and heads of state prosecutor's offices was suspended during 2025.
The performance evaluation of a state prosecutor is important for the promotion process to a higher state prosecutor's office, as well as for assignment to a permanent position. Namely, state prosecutors are first elected for a four-year term, and after receiving a satisfactory evaluation, they can be assigned to a permanent position.

Q49 (2025): Only where is mandatory according to the law, it is exclusively exercised by lawyers.
In Montenegro, legal representation before courts is not necessarily performed exclusively by attorneys-at-law. Depending on the type of proceedings and the status of the party, representation may also be carried out by the parties themselves, legal representatives, or other authorized persons, in accordance with the applicable legislation.
Natural persons may represent themselves in civil proceedings or authorize another person through a power of attorney, while legal entities are represented by their authorized representatives or attorneys-at-law.
In criminal proceedings, defendants are represented by defense counsels, and mandatory legal representation applies in cases prescribed by law.

Q45 (2023): Salaries increased due to a decision of the Constitutional Court. Decision of the Constitutional Court effects several laws governing the salaries of appointed and elected officials, judges, and public prosecutors followed a specific methodology for calculating salaries. However, the Constitutional Court overturned the provision that specified the fixed amount as the legally established basis. Consequently, a new methodology defined in the law is still in force where the coefficient defined by law is multiplied by the average monthly salary in the state. Q49 (2025): In Kosovo, legal representation before courts varies depending on the type of procedure.
In civil proceedings, a party may represent themselves or appoint any person with full legal capacity as a representative, not necessarily a lawyer. Such a non-lawyer representative may perform most procedural actions; however, explicit authorization is required for more significant acts, such as withdrawal of the claim, settlement, or filing and waiving legal remedies. An exception applies to legal entities, whose representatives may perform these acts without special authorization. Additionally, a lawyer may be substituted by a trainee, but only before the court of first instance.
In criminal proceedings, the defendant may defend themselves or be represented by a defence counsel, but the counsel must be a licensed lawyer and a member of the Bar Association in Kosovo. For some cases, representation by a lawyer is mandatory, as provided below.
Under the Criminal Procedure Code of Kosovo (Law No. 08/L-032), legal representation in criminal proceedings is as follows:
1.Mandatory Legal Representation (Article 56) oDefendants must have a lawyer in specific cases: vulnerable defendants (mute, deaf, blind, or with mental incapacity), from arrest to pre-trial detention, for offenses punishable by ≥5 years imprisonment, in extraordinary procedures, when entering a plea agreement, or when tried in absentia. oIf no lawyer is appointed, a public defender is assigned at public expense. 2.Legal Representation at Public Expense Upon Request (Article 57) oDefendants who cannot afford a lawyer may request a public defender if the offense is punishable by ≥3 years or when required by the interests of justice. oRequests can be made at any stage; assigned lawyers must have appropriate experience. Summary:
•Mandatory legal representation applies only in cases specified in Article 56. •In other criminal cases, defendants may choose legal counsel voluntarily, including requesting a public defender under Article 57. •This framework ensures defendants' rights are protected while allowing flexibility for voluntary representation.

Albania

(2024): New judges were appointed in first instance in 2023

(2023): -In regard of the number of judges
Referred to the decision of Council of Ministers no. 495, dated 21.07.2022 "On the reorganization of judicial districts and territorial powers of the courts", on 01.07.2023 the process of implementing the New Judicial Map was completed, reorganizing the number of courts operating in the Republic of Albania from 38 courts to 20 courts.
Occurring in the conditions of a transitional year, due to the implementation of the New Judicial Map and due to the redistribution of the number of 408 magistrates (judges), referring to decision no. 553, dated 29.12.2022 "On the appointment of the number of magistrates in the Court of Appeal with General Jurisdiction", decision no. 146, dated 29.03.2023 "On determining the number of magistrates in the Courts of First Instance with General Jurisdiction" and decision no. 286, dated 29.05.2023 "On the determination of the number of magistrates in the Administrative Courts of the First Instance" of the Supreme Judicial Council, the comparison of data in specific courts becomes difficult.
However, the main factor in the reduction of the number of magistrates (judges) is attributed to the transitional re-evaluation process, and more specifically, in terms of losses from the system as a result of the transitional re-evaluation process, it is worth noting that 24 decision-making for dismissal from office resulted from The Appeal Chamber belonging to the year 2023, as well as resulting in 53 judges (magistrates) dismissed from office, with decision-making by the Independent Qualification Commission, of which 11 magistrates (judges) dismissed by the Independent Qualification Commission during 2023, who are waiting for the development of the process in The Appeal Chamber, meanwhile maintaining the status of a judge due to the suspension and simultaneously benefiting according to the law of 75% of the salary.
Also, in 2023, there are 6 magistrates (judges) who have left office, of which 2 magistrates (judges) have resigned from office and 4 magistrates (judges) have left due

Bosnia and Herzegovina

(General Comment): The number of court presidents is included in the number of judges.
There are 3 courts of general jurisdiction in Bosnia and Herzegovina that are included in the Supreme Court category.
Firstly, at entity level, there are the Federation of Bosnia and Herzegovina Supreme Court and the Republika Srpska Supreme Court.
Both courts are competent to decide within the respective entity on legal remedies concerning decisions of the immediately lower courts.
Secondly, there is the Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina at the State level. Its competencies are regulated by the Law on the Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina and are related to criminal, administrative and appellate jurisdiction. However, the Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina has no jurisdiction over the decisions adopted by the entity – level Supreme Courts. Within its criminal jurisdiction, the Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina tries cases pertaining to the specific category of crimes laid down by the laws of Bosnia and Herzegovina, which include war crimes, organized crime, economic crime and corruption cases. The administrative jurisdiction means that the Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina adjudicates cases pertaining to the decisions issued by the State institutions and other organizations in charge of public functions, such as property disputes related to the performance of public functions between the State and the entities, breaches of the election law, etc. Its Appellate Division only decides appeals against the decisions of the Court's first instance divisions. Accordingly, there are three Prosecutor's Offices representing criminal cases before the courts that are included in the Supreme Court category: the Prosecutor's Office before the Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina; the Prosecutor's Office before the Federation of Bosnia and Herzegovina Supreme Court; the Prosecutor's Office before the Republika Srpska Supreme Court.

(General Comment): Lay judges are citizens who hear and decide criminal cases together with professional judges. Lay judges are appointed by the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina and they play a role in the Bosnia and Herzegovina judicial system, due to application of previously valid criminal procedural laws that required their participation. The procedural laws have been changed in a way that participation of lay judges is not required any longer, but due to a backlog of cases, their participation is still needed. Concretely, courts adjudicate the criminal law cases by panels that include lay judges if the proceedings were instituted before the currently valid Criminal Procedure Codes came into force.

Bosnia and Herzegovina

(General Comment): The number of heads of prosecution offices is included in the number of prosecutors.
There are 3 courts of general jurisdiction in Bosnia and Herzegovina that are included in the Supreme Court category.
Firstly, at entity level, there are the Federation of Bosnia and Herzegovina Supreme Court and the Republika Srpska Supreme Court.
Both courts are competent to decide within the respective entity on legal remedies concerning decisions of the immediately lower courts.
Secondly, there is the Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina at the State level. Its competencies are regulated by the Law on the Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina and are related to criminal, administrative and appellate jurisdiction. However, the Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina has no jurisdiction over the decisions adopted by the entity – level Supreme Courts. Within its criminal jurisdiction, the Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina tries cases pertaining to the specific category of crimes laid down by the laws of Bosnia and Herzegovina, which include war crimes, organized crime, economic crime and corruption cases. The administrative jurisdiction means that the Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina adjudicates cases pertaining to the decisions issued by the State institutions and other organizations in charge of public functions, such as property disputes related to the performance of public functions between the State and the entities, breaches of the election law, etc. Its Appellate Division only decides appeals against the decisions of the Court's first instance divisions. Accordingly, there are three Prosecutor's Offices representing criminal cases before the courts that are included in the Supreme Court category: the Prosecutor's Office before the Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina; the Prosecutor's Office before the Federation of Bosnia and Herzegovina Supreme Court; the Prosecutor's Office before the Republika Srpska Supreme Court.

Albania

(2025): Law 96/2016 “On the status of judges and prosecutors” provides for the following:
Article 16
Reward for skills
Article 17
Home loan
Article 21
Supplementary pension and other benefits
Article 22
Inviolability of salary and other financial benefits of the magistrate
The slight decrease in salaries expressed in euro is due to exchange rate fluctuations, specifically the depreciation of the euro against the national currency (Albanian Lek). It does not reflect any actual change in nominal salary levels, which have remained unchanged during the reference period.

(2024): The changes in the salaries of the magistrates come as a result of the new salary of the magistrate pursuant to Law no. 33, dated 25.05.2023 "On an amendment to the law 96/2016 "On the status of judges and prosecutors in the Republic of Albania as amended, and the, Decision of Council of Ministers no. 325, dated 31.05.2023 "On the approval of the salary structure, salary levels and other salary increments of the deputy minister, cabinet officials, prefect, sub-prefect, civil servants and employees in some public administration institutions".

(2023): Law no. 96/2016, “On the status of judges and prosecutors in the republic of Albania”, articles 11-22, foresee the financial treatment of the magistrates, (judges and prosecutors), giving specific details on how the salaries are calculated, seniority bonuses in the exercise of the function, bonuses for the leading functions, bonuses for difficulties at work, compensation for delegated magistrates, proficiency allowances, home loans and other benefits, etc.

(2022): The difference in amount from one year to another comes for two reasons:
the values are set in the Euro currency, which brings changes in the amount from year to year depending on the exchange rate at the time of reporting, since judges' salaries are calculated in Lek.
the maximum salary that is reported is the salary that is actually given to the judge who is paid more in the system and not the potential salary that the salary can go higher. This means that the maximum salary given, because it also includes the element of seniority at work, which of course changes every year.

Bosnia and Herzegovina

(General Comment): First of all, the work experience affects the amount of net and gross salaries. The following assumptions were used for the above stated calculations of the salaries of judicial office folders (i. e. judges and prosecutors): three-year working experience of judge/prosecutor at the beginning of his/her career; twenty-year working experience of a judge/prosecutor of the supreme court or the highest appellate instance. There are somewhat different general regimes for the salary contributions in different jurisdictions in Bosnia and Herzegovina, these regimes apply to the salaries of the judicial office holders as well. Having in mind the aforementioned factors, the above stated calculations of the salaries are made as the weighted average salary based on the number of judges/prosecutors. The method used to calculate net and gross salaries for judges/prosecutors is based on the basic salary amount as prescribed by law together with allowances added to the net salary subject to years of employment, and other contributions for the calculation of gross salaries. Deviations occur due to the application of different legal regulations on entity level, i.e. specifically with reference to judicial office positions in one of the jurisdictions in Bosnia and Herzegovina (i.e. the Brcko District of Bosnia and Herzegovina), where there are far more judges than prosecutors, which directly impacts the calculation of overall indicators.

(2025): Salaries of public prosecutor at the beginning of his/her career: the increase exceeding 20% threshold is the result of the growth in the average salary in Bosnia and Herzegovina in 2025 (in conjunction with the adjustment mechanism foreseen by the legislation on salaries of judges and prosecutors), as well as the fact that the calculation encompassed 20 first instance prosecutors with the least years of service in either relevant jurisdictions in Bosnia and Herzegovina (i.e. 8 prosecutors in one jurisdiction and 12 prosecutors in another jurisdiction).

(2022): Due to the changes in the Dashboard Western Balkans Questionnaire for 2022, the amount of salaries of judges and public prosecutors in Bosnia and Herzegovina at the Highest Appellate Instance is significantly higher in 2022 compared to the relevant figure included in the Dashboard Western Balkans

(2024): The salary of a state prosecutor at the beginning of his career is calculated according to the coefficient of 15.56, while the salary of a state prosecutor at the Supreme State Prosecutor's Office is calculated according to the coefficient of 22.48, in accordance with Article 22 of the Law on wages of employees in the public sector

(2023): Increase of salaries 2023 is a result of the adoption of new so called "Branch collective agreement for the administration and judiciary" (the agreement between employers and unions) which foresees possibilities of increase of basic salary for overtime and on-call and similar types of out of operating hours work

(2025): Housing and travel expenses and bonuses on salaries. The decrease from 2024 is result of the fact that in 2024 were paid bonuses on the salaries to judges. In 2025 such bonuses on the salaries were not paid.

(2023): Salaries increased due to a decision of the Constitutional Court. Decision of the Constitutional Court effects several laws governing the salaries of appointed and elected officials, judges, and public prosecutors followed a specific methodology for calculating salaries. According to this methodology, salaries were determined by multiplying a coefficient defined by law with a fixed amount specified as the legally established basis. However, the Constitutional Court overturned the provision that specified the fixed amount as the legally established basis. Consequently, a new methodology defined in the law is still in force where the coefficient defined by law is multiplied by the average monthly salary in the state. This change has led to a rapid increase in salaries for judges, prosecutors, and other appointed and elected individuals.

(2022): In 2022 public prosecutors in the PPO for organized crime had an additional financial benefits of 35% of the salary every month. In 2022 the highest gross/net annual salary of the public prosecutor for organized crime was 26.179 /17.135 euros.
Also, in 2022 there were additional financial benefits for judges, 15-30%.

Serbia

Question 46

Albania
(General Comment): The criteria for the quality assessment of the public prosecutor’s work are set by the Law no. 96/2016, “On the status of judges and prosecutors in the Republic of Albania”, as amended, and Regulation "On the ethical and professional assessment of prosecutors", approved by Decision no. 95, dated 09.05.2022, of High Prosecutorial Council. These criteria are summarised in 4 indicators:
a) professional skills; b) organizational skills; c) ethics and commitment to professional values; d) personal skills and professional commitment.
High Prosecutorial Council is responsible for carrying out the ethic and professional evaluation of all prosecutors and head of prosecution offices.

Prosecutor's Office Comment:
Law on the State Prosecutor's Office ("Official Gazette of Montenegro," Nos. 11/2015, 42/2015, 80/2017, 10/2018, 76/2020, 59/2021, 54/2024, and 92/2025), Article 1 and Articles 86–100.
In addition, the new Rules for the Evaluation of State Prosecutors are applied: https://tuzilastvo.me/wp-content/uploads/2025/06/Pravila-za-ocjenjivanje-drzavnih-tuzilaca-NOVO.pdf
Amendments to the Law on the State Prosecutor's Office introduced changes to the criteria and sub-criteria for evaluating the work of state prosecutors (the Law was published in the Official Gazette of Montenegro, No. 54/2024 of 11 June 2024, and entered into force on 19 June 2024). This required the adoption of new Rules on the Evaluation of State Prosecutors and Heads of State Prosecutor's Offices, which entered into force on 27 May 2025.
On 28 November 2025, a new Commission for the Evaluation of the Work of State Prosecutors was established. On 16 December 2025, the Commission adopted the Plan for the Evaluation of State Prosecutors, under which evaluations will be carried out in 2026. The procedure for evaluating state prosecutors and heads of state prosecutor's offices is currently ongoing, in accordance with the Evaluation Plan. It is planned that 63 state prosecutors will be evaluated in 2026, including 51 state prosecutors and 12 heads of state prosecutor's offices.
Furthermore, the mandate of the members of the Prosecutorial Council expired on 5 August 2025, while the members from among distinguished legal professionals were elected on 19 November 2025. Consequently, it was not possible to establish the Commission for the Evaluation of the Work of State Prosecutors earlier, nor to adopt the Evaluation Plan in accordance with Article 2 of the Rules on the Evaluation of State Prosecutors and Heads of State Prosecutor's Offices ("Official Gazette of Montenegro", No. 48/25). As a result, the evaluation of state prosecutors and heads of state prosecutor's offices was suspended during 2025.
The performance evaluation of a state prosecutor is important for the promotion process to a higher state prosecutor's office, as well as for assignment to a permanent position. Namely, state prosecutors are first elected for a four-year term, and after receiving a satisfactory evaluation, they can be assigned to a permanent position.

(General Comment): Reply by HJC:
According to Law on Judges (“Official Gazette of RS", No. 10/2023 and 9/2026) the purpose of evaluation is to evaluate, maintain and improve the quality of work, with the observance of independence of a judge, in order to strengthen public trust in the work of judges and the courts.
The work of a judge and a president of court is being regularly evaluated once in five years, except in case of the judge and the president of the Supreme Court and the judge above the age of 60. The work of the judge above the age of 60 shall be evaluated at the personal request of the judge or at the proposal of the president of the court.

The implementation of this Rulebook will start on January, 2026. Until the day of starting with the implementation of aforementioned Rulebook, the High Judicial Council continued to conduct evaluations using the previous Rules on the Criteria, Standards, Procedure and Bodies for the Evaluation of the Work of Judges and Court Presidents, which were assessed not to be in conflict with the new legal provisions.
According to previous Rules on the Criteria, Standards, Procedure and Bodies for the Evaluation of the Work of Judges and Court Presidents criteria for evaluation of judges’ performance are quality and quantity. Standards for evaluating quality of judges’ performance shall be the percentage of repealed decisions and time for drafting decisions. Quality evaluation is performed by determining individual grade for each standard, and based on determined individual grades, final evaluation grade of judges’ performance quality is determined.
Standard for quantity evaluation of judges’ performance is monthly caseload quota, and for judges not having sufficient number of pending cases, standard for quantity evaluation shall be the total number of closed cases against the total number of pending cases.
Yes, evaluation results are directly linked to promotion or career progression for judges.

Question 47

Bosnia and Herzegovina

(General Comment): According to the Law on the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina, the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina adopts two sets of criteria - criteria for evaluating the performance of judges and criteria for evaluating the performance of prosecutors. The evaluation of the work results of all judges and prosecutors is carried out once a year. The performance of judges is assessed by the president of the court, whereas the chief prosecutor evaluates the work of prosecutors in accordance with the criteria established by the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina.
In December 2024, the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina adopted new criteria for evaluating the work of judges and prosecutors. With the adoption of the new criteria, analytical evaluation was introduced into the evaluation system for judicial function holders. This involves a qualitative element of work evaluation („Analytical evaluation of prosecutor's work“ and „Analytical quality of judge's work and decisions“) which will enable a better assessment of the professional competencies of each judge and prosecutor. Thus, a reform of the evaluation system was initiated, which had previously been predominantly based on the assessment of results according to quantitative indicators. This reform was undertaken after the recommendations of experts engaged by the European Commission for the preparation of a 'Peer Review on the evaluation of the work of judges and prosecutors' from 2017 were accepted, suggesting that it is necessary to strengthen quality criteria in the evaluation system. The presidents of courts and chief prosecutors will evaluate the work of the holders of judicial functions according to new criteria during the first quarter of 2026.
The criteria and points structure for the annual performance evaluation of judges are as follows: Quantity of work (i.e. annual quota) – up to 30 points, Percentage of realization of individual case resolution plan - up to 10 points, Analytical quality of judge's work and decisions – up to 10 points, Statistical quality of decisions (i.e. confirmation rate) – up to 50 points.
The criteria and points structure for the annual performance evaluation of prosecutors are as follows: Quantity of work (i.e. annual quota) – up to 30 points, Percentage of realization of individual case resolution plan - up to 10 points, Analytical evaluation of prosecutor's work - 10 points, Statistical quality of decisions – up to 50 points.
The statistical quality of decisions issued by a judge is evaluated based on the following sub-criteria:
a)the percentage of reversed decisions compared to the total number of decisions upheld, modified and reversed by a higher instance court;
b)the percentage of reversed and modified decisions compared to the total number of cases in which a final decision was rendered to which a legal remedy may be filed with the higher instance court.
The chief prosecutor determines the analytical evaluation of the prosecutor's work based on a reasoned assessment of the prosecutor's work according to the following elements: a) the ability to determine the established facts relevant for making prosecutorial decisions; b) the ability to handle complex cases; c) timeliness in making decisions and compliance with legal deadlines; d) the ability to organize and efficiently conduct investigations in a proactive manner; e) the professional level of prosecutorial decisions, demonstrated legal knowledge, and use of legal remedies.

Bosnia and Herzegovina

(General Comment): In criminal cases the suspect/accused has the right to present his/her own defence or to be defended by a defence counsel who has to be a lawyer or, in some parts of the state, a legal aid official employed by a legal aid institution. Only in cases specified by the law defence by a defence counsel is mandatory. Many of the criminal cases dealt with by the highest courts fall under the terms of mandatory defence by a defence counsel. Civil society organisations, family members or trade unions cannot represent a client before courts in criminal cases. As for the victims, they can represent themselves while the criminal procedure legislation does not contain an explicit general provision on the right of victims to have a representative in criminal proceedings; however, criminal procedure laws include several provisions that indirectly foresee this possibility for victims without stating that these representatives can only be lawyers.
Litigants can represent themselves in civil and administrative cases. They can also be represented by family members (spouse, life partner or by a relative by blood or by marriage), legal aid officials (employed by legal aid institutions or legal aid NGOs) or by trade union employee in labour cases.
Self-representation before the highest instance courts in civil cases is restricted in the revision cases (extraordinary legal remedy). Request for revision can be submitted to the highest instance courts by either a lawyer or by a litigant or his agent provided they have the same qualifications as lawyers (bar exam).

Montenegro

(2025): Only where is mandatory according to the law, it is exclusively exercised by lawyers.
In Montenegro, legal representation before courts is not necessarily performed exclusively by attorneys-at-law. Depending on the type of proceedings and the status of the party, representation may also be carried out by the parties themselves, legal representatives, or other authorized persons, in accordance with the applicable legislation.
Natural persons may represent themselves in civil proceedings or authorize another person through a power of attorney, while legal entities are represented by their authorized representatives or attorneys-at-law.
In criminal proceedings, defendants are represented by defense counsels, and mandatory legal representation applies in cases prescribed by law.

North Macedonia

(General Comment): This matter is regulated in procedural laws. According to the Article 71 from the Law on criminal procedure, only a licensed attorney may act as a counsel for the defense.

Regarding juveniles
According to Article 49 of the Law on Juvenile Criminal Offenders and Criminal Protection of Juveniles („Official Gazette RS“, No. 85/2005), a juvenile must have defense counsel present at the first hearing as well as throughout the entire proceedings. If a minor, his legal representative or relatives do not appoint a defense counsel, one shall be assigned ex officio by the juvenile judge. The defense counsel for a juvenile may only be an attorney who has acquired special knowledge in the field of children's rights and juvenile delinquency. According to Article 154 of the same Law, a minor as an injured party must have a legal representative from the first hearing of the defendant. In the event that the minor does not have a legal representative, one shall be appointed by decision of the president of the court among attorneys who have acquired special knowledge in the field of children's rights and the criminal-law protection of minors. According to Article 56 of the Criminal Procedure Code („Official Gazette RS“, No. 72/11,…62/21), if the injured party is a minor or a person who has been fully deprived of legal capacity, his or her legal representative is authorized to make all statements and undertake all actions that the injured party is entitled to under this Code. The legal representative may (2025): In Kosovo, legal representation before courts varies depending on the type of procedure.

Kosovo*

In civil proceedings, a party may represent themselves or appoint any person with full legal capacity as a representative, not necessarily a lawyer. Such a non-lawyer representative may perform most procedural actions; however, explicit authorization is required for more significant acts, such as withdrawal of the claim, settlement, or filing and waiving legal remedies. An exception applies to legal entities, whose representatives may perform these acts without special authorization. Additionally, a lawyer may be substituted by a trainee, but only before the court of first instance.
In criminal proceedings, the defendant may defend themselves or be represented by a defence counsel, but the counsel must be a licensed lawyer and a member of the Bar Association in Kosovo. For some cases, representation by a lawyer is mandatory, as provided below.
Under the Criminal Procedure Code of Kosovo (Law No. 08/L-032), legal representation in criminal proceedings is as follows:
1.Mandatory Legal Representation (Article 56) oDefendants must have a lawyer in specific cases: vulnerable defendants (mute, deaf, blind, or with mental incapacity), from arrest to pre-trial detention, for offenses punishable by ≥5 years imprisonment, in extraordinary procedures, when entering a plea agreement, or when tried in absentia. oIf no lawyer is appointed, a public defender is assigned at public expense. 2.Legal Representation at Public Expense Upon Request (Article 57) oDefendants who cannot afford a lawyer may request a public defender if the offense is punishable by ≥3 years or when required by the interests of justice. oRequests can be made at any stage; assigned lawyers must have appropriate experience. Summary:
•Mandatory legal representation applies only in cases specified in Article 56. •In other criminal cases, defendants may choose legal counsel voluntarily, including requesting a public defender under Article 57. •This framework ensures defendants' rights are protected while allowing flexibility for voluntary representation.

As of 2024, in Kosovo, enforcement cases have been moved from non-litigious to litigious matters.

North Macedonia: because of the 2021 census, the number of inhabitants changed significantly between 2020 and 2021. Albania: because of the 2023 census, the number of inhabitants changed significantly between 2023 and 2024. As a result, variations in indicators standardised by the number of inhabitants may be partly due to the change in population figures.

North Macedonia: because of the 2021 census, the number of inhabitants changed significantly between 2020 and 2021. Albania: because of the 2023 census, the number of inhabitants changed significantly between 2023 and 2024. As a result, variations in indicators standardised by the number of inhabitants may be partly due to the change in population figures.

North Macedonia: because of the 2021 census, the number of inhabitants changed significantly between 2020 and 2021. Albania: because of the 2023 census, the number of inhabitants changed significantly between 2023 and 2024. As a result, variations in indicators standardised by the number of inhabitants may be partly due to the change in population figures.

Q52 (2025): The increase in the number of cases pending adjudication for more than two years (from 2,436 in 2024 to 5,575 in 2025) may be explained by a combination of factors, including judicial vacancies within the court system; the accumulation of case backlog, which has led to a higher number of cases exceeding the two-year adjudication threshold; the prioritization of categories of cases subject to urgent deadlines; the complexity of cases, which necessitates multiple hearings and procedural steps, thereby prolonging their examination; and procedural delays, such as the postponement of hearings, difficulties in notifying the parties, and delays in the preparation of expert reports, all of which have also contributed to the extended duration of proceedings.

Q52 (2023): Regarding the number of administrative pending cases older than two years that have almost doubled from the previous cycle is a Consequence of the transitional period which are related to the implementation of the new judicial map as well as the vetting process.

Q53 (2025): The decline in the number of newly filed cases before the courts, as well as the reduction in the number of adjudicated cases concerning criminal contraventions, may be attributed to a combination of legal, institutional, and social factors, including:
The enhanced role of administrative mechanisms – Law enforcement authorities, such as the police, have increasingly relied on administrative measures (e.g., the imposition of fines), thereby diminishing the necessity for judicial proceedings.
The prioritization of cases within the criminal justice system – There is a discernible shift towards the adjudication of criminal offences of greater social harmfulness, resulting in a reduced focus on contraventions. Moreover, the substantial caseload of other, more pressing matters (whether criminal or civil) may further slow the pace of examination of contravention cases.
Citizens' behavior – A decline in the number of complaints and reports relating to contraventions.
External (socio-economic) factors – Migration and demographic changes may also have an impact on the overall volume of cases.
Q53 (2024): 3.Other criminal cases "Administrative criminal cases" and "Anti-mafia law cases". From the data reflected here, anti-mafia law cases are 11 pending on January 1, 2024, 54 new cases, 49 adjudicated, 16 awaiting adjudicatory on December 31, 2024; 3 older than two years. The rest are administrative criminal cases.
Q53 (2023): Based on the table of statistics collected from the reporting of the courts "other cases" refers to "administrative criminal cases".
Q53 (2022): Other Criminal cases: a) criminal administrative cases (exe: probation requests, security measures etc) b) cases related to anti-mafia law.
The number of resolved cases during 2022 is believed to have been caused by the decrease of the number of judges in the second instance due to different factors such as resignations, vetting process, promotions. In addition, the inequal distribution of cases between courts is another factor contributing to the problem.
Q54 (2025): For Administrative law cases - The reduction of the backlog of pending cases – the courts have focused on decreasing the number of pending cases, thereby increasing the number of cases adjudicated.
The increase in the number of judges from 2024 to 2025 has directly contributed to enhanced adjudicatory capacity and to the acceleration of case processing.
The factors that may have contributed to the increase in the number of new cases filed at the appellate level include a more frequent exercise of the right of appeal by parties against first-instance court decisions, as well as an increase in the number of complex criminal cases, which tend to generate greater disputes and, consequently, a higher number of appeals.

Q54 (2023): The increase in the number of administrative resolved cases In 2023, the number of judges effectively in office is 8.3 judges marking an increase of 49% but again far from the full number of the corps of 13 judges. Also, the number of non-judge staff increased by 46% during 2023, reaching in 67 non-judge support staff.

Q54 (2022): The decrease in the number of resolved cases during 2022 is believed to have been caused by the decrease of the number of judges in the second instance due to different factors such as resignations, vetting process, promotions. In addition, the inequal distribution of cases between courts is another factor contributing to the problem.
As regards administrative cases, during 2022 the Administrative Appeal Court has functioned with 43% of judges.

Q55 (2024): 3. Other criminal cases "Administrative criminal cases" and "Anti-mafia law cases". From the data reflected here, anti-mafia law cases are 1 pending trial on January 1, 2024, 18 new cases, 19 adjudicated, 0 pending trial on December 31, 2024; there are no anti-mafia law cases older than two years. The rest are administrative criminal cases.

Q55 (2023): Based on the table of statistics collected from the reporting of the courts "other cases" refers to "administrative criminal cases".
Q55 (2022): Other Criminal cases: a) criminal administrative cases (exe: probation requests, security measures etc) b) cases related to anti-mafia law.
Long disposition time is due to the lack of judges and uneven distribution of workload.
Q56 (2025): The clearance of the accumulated backlog of cases (carried-over cases) – the court is adjudicating pending cases from previous years, not only newly filed cases for the current year; the prioritization of older or less complex cases, as well as the stabilization or reduction of the incoming caseload, has guided the court towards reducing the backlog through their adjudication.
For civil (and commercial) contentious cases (including enforcement cases and, where possible, excluding administrative law cases—see category 3):
"Completed data for general civil cases with opposing parties and commercial cases with opposing parties."
For non-litigious cases (civil and commercial non-litigious cases, registry cases, and other non-litigious matters):
"Completed data for civil cases without opposing parties."
Q56 (2022): Due to the state of the management system of cases used by the Supreme Court, it is impossible to realize the specification of the typology of civil cases according to the subcategories of the corner.
The registration of cases in the High Court is done similarly to other courts at the national level, both manually in registers and through the digital ICMIS system.
This information is directly related to the judges effectively on duty, which has changed. The number of judges in the High Court has increased in 2022, resulting in an increase in the number of cases adjudicated. It is to be also considered the number of judges graduated from 2020-2022, who are part of the judicial system . In addition, in response to the needs of courts, the HJC has used various legal mechanisms such as assignment of judges to another court and delegation scheme.
The total number of "other than criminal cases" while the number of civil litigious cases and non-litigious cases is NA due to the aggregation of data into three major divisions: civil, criminal, and administrative, which we have from the statistics provided by the Supreme Court.
Q57 (2025): The clearance of the accumulated case backlog (carried-over cases) – the court is adjudicating pending cases from previous years, not only newly filed cases from the current year; the prioritization of older or less complex cases; and the stabilization or reduction of the incoming caseload have collectively guided the court towards reducing the backlog through adjudication.

Q60 (2025): The average time required for the resolution of civil cases overall, administrative cases overall, and criminal cases overall has been calculated for each category using the following formula:
(total number of cases pending at the end of the year / total number of cases adjudicated during the year) × 365.
For Civil and commercial litigious cases the requested data concerning the average length of proceedings (Disposition Time – DT indicator) at the first and second instance levels for general civil cases with opposing parties and commercial cases with opposing parties cannot be provided, as their calculation would reflect an inaccurate situation.
In the absence of a breakdown into sub-sections, the analysis has been conducted at the level of the civil section as a whole, in accordance with the CEPEJ methodology. Under this approach, the DT indicator (average case disposition time) is approximately 297 days at the first instance level and approximately 2,318 days at the second instance level.
Also for Criminal cases (severe and misdemeanour) the requested data concerning the average length of proceedings (Disposition Time – DT indicator) at the first and second instance levels for criminal cases, including felonies and misdemeanors, cannot be provided, as their calculation would reflect an inaccurate situation.
In the absence of a breakdown into sub-sections, the analysis has been conducted at the level of the criminal section as a whole, in accordance with the CEPEJ methodology. Under this approach, the DT indicator (average case disposition time) is approximately 87 days at the first instance level and approximately 920 days at the second instance level.

Q60 (2022): In the present condition of the CMS system, we cannot calculate the exact average length of proceedings. We use the disposition time as a proxy.
Q62 (2025): Regarding categories such as suspended, transferred, joined/split, or reopened cases, these categories are treated dynamically within the prosecution case management system and do not always represent a definitive exit from the caseflow. Therefore, they may not always be directly reflected as ‘processed cases’, since their procedural status may change during the reporting period. For example, cases initially dismissed may later be returned by the court for further investigation, or cases sent for trial may be returned during the preparatory hearing phase for additional investigative actions, thus re-entering the active caseflow.
So, in line with the solution suggested, these categories may be reflected under ‘discontinued for other reasons’, in order to ensure horizontal consistency of the data.

Q62-c (2025): GPO-Article 328 of the Criminal Procedure Code Dismissal of charge or case 1. Upon termination of preliminary investigations, where it is proceeded against criminal misdemeanours, the prosecutor shall decide on dismissing the charge or case when: a) it is clear that the fact does not exist; b) the fact is not provided for by law as a criminal offence; c) the victim has not lodged a complaint or waives it, in cases where the proceedings are initiated on his request;)
ç the person cannot be taken as defendant or he may not be punished; d) there exists a reason that extinguishes the criminal offence or for which the criminal proceedings should not be initiated or continued; dh) it is proven that the defendant has not committed the offence or it is not proven that the defendant has committed the offence; e) the defendant has been adjudicated by a final court decision for the same act;)
ë the defendant dies; f) in other cases provided for by the law.
2. The prosecutor shall, within 5 days of the decision on dismissal being made, notify the defendant, his defence lawyer, the victim and their heirs, when their identity and domicile results from the proceeding acts, as well as the person having filed the criminal report or complaint, thus making known the right to get to know the acts, to take copies thereof and to file an appeal before the court.
Article 329/a Request for dismissal of a charge or case 1. Upon termination of the preliminary investigations, when it is being proceeded for crimes and when any of the cases provided for in paragraph 1 of Article 328 of this Code occurs, the prosecutor asks the judge of the preliminary hearing to dismiss the charge or the case.
2. In cases where the prosecutor has filed a request to send the case to trial, the request for dismissal of the charge or case, shall be adjudicated jointly with the request for sending the case to trial. 3. All acts and documents contained in the investigation file shall be attached to the request of the prosecutor, including also the acts carried out before the judge of preliminary investigations, as well as material evidence, unless they are stored in another location.
4. The request is notified to the defendant, their defence lawyer, the victim or their heirs, when their identity and residence emerge from proceedings acts, as well as to the person who has filed the criminal report or the complaint. They have the right to have access to the acts and evidence, and to take copies of them.
GPO-The prosecutor plays a central role in initiating and negotiating these 2 institutions, a penalty order and a plea agreement, which may be concluded with the defendant only when the legal conditions set out in the Criminal Procedure Code are met. Once the agreements are reached, they are submitted to the court for judicial review, and the court has the authority to approve or reject them. The data presented in the table reflect the number of requests submitted by prosecutors to the court, not the court's decisions.The data entered in the table (point 3.2), refers only to the requests of the prosecutor in front of the court, pursuant to the Criminal Procedure Code, articles Article 406/a- 406/ç for the penalty order and articles 406/d-406/f for the guilty plea agreement.
Specifically;
"Article 406/a
Request for approval of the penalty order
1. When the defendant is accused for committing a misdemeanour, the prosecutor, within three months from the registration of the name of the person to whom the criminal offence is attributed, shall issue a reasoned penalty order determining the punishment and request its approval by the court, if he deems that a prison sentence shall not apply.

Q62-c (2024): 2. Incoming/received cases- Proocedings registered for the year 2024.
3.1.1 -In albanian legislation this figure refers to suspension of investigation Art. 326 of Criminal Procedure Code Suspension of the investigation
“1. In case the defendant is unknown, or when the defendant suffers from a serious illness which prevents further investigations, the prosecutor shall decide the suspension of investigations....”
3.1.2- In albania legislation the legal defition in this table, refers to non initiation of investigation by the prosecutor, Art. 290 of the Albanian CPC. “Criminal proceedings shall not commence when:
A the person has died;
B the person has no criminal responsibility or has not reached the criminal liability age;
C the complaint of the victim is lacking or he/she withdraws the complaint;
Ç the act is not provided by law as a criminal offence or when it is clearly proven that the act does not exist;
D the criminal offence has been extinct;
Dh an amnesty has been issued;
E in all other cases provided for by the law.”
Following the clarification provided by the General Prosecutor's Office of Albania, it is important to note that the data reported under 3.1.2 ("Discontinued by the public prosecutor due to the lack of an established offence or a specific legal situation") do not represent criminal proceedings that were initiated and later discontinued. According to Article 290 of the Albanian Criminal Procedure Code, the figures reported under 3.1.2 refer to criminal complaints or referrals for which a decision was made not to initiate proceedings, and that were therefore never registered as official cases.
Furthermore, these cases are not included under "incoming cases" in the questionnaire, as they do not enter the official procedural flow. This methodological difference explains the apparent inconsistency in the data, as these complaints are not aligned with the CEPEJ definition of "discontinued cases".

Also, in Article 40, of the Law "On the organization and functioning of the Prosecution in the Republic of Albania", as amended, the prosecution has an independent budget, as part of the state budget and is provided in a separate item.

Q63 (General Comment): GPO- According to the Criminal Procedure Code of the Republic of Albania, the prosecutor plays a central and leading role in the criminal process, from the moment information about a criminal offence is received until the case is brought before the court. The prosecutor conducts criminal prosecution and represents the accusation before the court on behalf of the State. The prosecutor directs and controls preliminary investigations, supervises the activity of the judicial police, and is entitled to carry out any investigative action deemed necessary for establishing the acussation.
In this context, the prosecutor is the authority that decides on the initiation or non-initiation of criminal proceedings, the dismissal of the case or the charges, as well as on requesting that the case be brought to trial, in accordance with the cases and criteria provided by law. The prosecutor may also conclude cooperation agreements with collaborators of justice, reach agreements on the admission of guilt and the determination of the sentence, or submit a request to the court for the approval of a penal order. The prosecutor initiates where the law does not require a complaint by the victim, criminal prosecution ex officio.
The prosecutor exercises his or her functions independently, in accordance with the rules provided by law. Prosecutors of first instance exercise these functions during preliminary investigations and first-instance proceedings, and by prosecutors of appeal and the High Court in appealed cases. With regard to the judicial police, the Criminal Procedure Code establishes a clear relationship of functional subordination. The judicial police are obliged to become aware of criminal offences, prevent further consequences, identify perpetrators, and conduct investigations; however, all investigative actions are carried out under the orders and delegation of the prosecutor. Judicial police officers act as auxiliary bodies in support of the exercise of criminal prosecution.
The judicial police are accountable to the prosecutor for the activities carried out during criminal proceedings, are obliged to carry out the tasks assigned by the prosecutor, and must promptly inform the prosecutor of the results of the actions undertaken.
The prosecutor is therefore the authority that leads, supervises, and takes the key decisions throughout the criminal process, while the judicial police perform auxiliary and executive investigative functions under the functional authority of the prosecutor. This framework ensures a balance between the efficiency of investigations, procedural legality, and the independence of the prosecutor in the exercise of his or her constitutional and legal functions.

Q230 (2025): The judicial system operates within an overall Information and Communication Technology (ICT) strategic framework. All major ICT-related projects within the judicial system are aligned with and based on the strategic decisions, policies, and governance directions approved by the Steering Board of the Justice Technology Centre (ICT).
The High Judicial Council (HJC) ensures that every significant project related to the judicial information systems is designed, implemented, and governed in accordance with these decisions. The resolutions and strategic guidelines adopted by the ICT Steering Board constitute the core ICT governance reference for the justice sector and provide a unified, coordinated, and sustainable approach to digital transformation.
All relevant decisions and strategic documents of the ICT Steering Board are publicly available on the official website:

Q231 (2025): The judicial system currently operates a Case Management System (CMS) that is used for the registration and management of judicial proceedings.
At present, courts use existing case management solutions to support core activities such as case registration, assignment, procedural tracking, and basic reporting. However, these systems have limitations in terms of functionality, interoperability, and standardization across different courts and jurisdictions.
For this reason, the High Judicial Council (HJC) is leading the transition toward a new, fully integrated Case Management System (JURONIX). The new system is designed to replace the existing fragmented solutions with a unified, modern, and nationwide platform that will manage the entire lifecycle of judicial proceedings, enhance efficiency, ensure data integrity, and enable secure interaction with external stakeholders and other justice institutions.

Q231 (2022): Regarding the option "centralized or interoperable database" the answer changed from "yes" to "no", tbecause during 2022, due to cyber-attacks in Albania, some institutions such as the Civil Status Office and the National Business Center have disconnected interoperability with the case management system.
The status of integration with statistical tool changed from "integrated" to "not connected" because HJC has approved new statistical formats which have not yet been integrated with the case management system. These integrations are expected to end with the finalization of the new judicial map.

Q232 (2025): At present, three main systems are operational and functionally linked to the management of judicial cases.
Currently it turns out that out of 20 courts in the Albanian territory, 18 of them are using the ICMIS system, 2 of them using the ARKIT system. While, only two courts, respectively Tirana Judicial District Court and the Special Court of First Instance for Corruption and Organized Crime are using the ARKIT system

1. ICMIS (Integrated Case Management Information System)
   - Used primarily by courts of general jurisdiction.
   - Supports case registration, procedural tracking, scheduling, assignment of cases, and basic reporting.
   - While it covers essential case management functions, it has limitations in terms of interoperability, scalability, and support for fully digital case files.
2. ArkIT
   - Used mainly by administrative courts and for specific case registration and document management workflows.
   - Supports administrative and archival aspects of case handling.
   - Operates largely as a standalone system with limited integration with other judicial platforms.
3. FTR / RDA System (Digital Audio Recording System)
   - Used across courts for audio (and in some cases video) recording of court hearings.
   - Although it is not a standalone CMS, it operates in direct functional relation to judicial cases and hearings, as recordings are associated with specific cases and sessions.
   - Currently, it functions as a separate system and requires manual or semi-manual linkage with case management processes.

The coexistence of multiple systems has resulted in fragmentation of case-related data and workflows, increased manual effort, and limited end-to-end digital case management.
To address these challenges, the High Judicial Council (HJC) is implementing JURONIX, a new integrated Case Management System designed to consolidate and replace ICMIS and ArkIT, while also integrating the FTR/RDA system. This will enable seamless linkage of audio/video recordings with digital case files, ensuring a unified, efficient, and fully digital management of judicial proceedings

Q232 (2024): The Case Management Systems with which the Albanian courts operate are CMIS and ARKIT.
A broad consensus has been achieved in the Albanian judiciary about the need to replace both existing case management systems used by Albanian courts (ARK-IT and ICMIS, with their variants and their 2 and 36 local installations respectively) with a single new generation, state-of-the-art system.
The Centre for the IT in the Judiciary of Albania has adopted in December 2021, upon proposal of the High Judicial Council (HJC), a Road Map for the development of the new Albanian Court Case Management System. Among these, the relevant decisions of the Information Technology Centre in the High Judicial Council were approved in order to start work on the development of a new Court Case Management System. However, it’s obvious that the systems used in the Albanian courts are almost obsolete despite frequent updates with new features. Additionally, each of the courts have their own servers installed locally which are not unified. The internal network architecture across the courts is specific to each court and is not standardized and unified yet. The renewal of the licenses of the various software components used by the courts is managed by each court in particular. This also applies to security programs that must be used on each of the court servers.
In terms of security, the case management system operates offline and can only be accessed locally by court users. Each court through the institutions of the IT is responsible for guaranteeing security and implementing policies that protect the system from possible threats.

The internal network architecture across the courts is specific to each court and is not standardized and unified yet. The renewal of the licenses of the various software components used by the courts is managed by each court in particular. This also applies to security programs that must be used on each of the court servers.
In terms of security, the case management system operates offline and can only be accessed locally by court users. Each court through the institutions of the IT is responsible for guaranteeing security and implementing policies that protect the system from possible threats.
Q233 (2025): The currently running Case Management Systems (CMS) were initially developed in earlier phases, and since their first deployment they have undergone continuous improvements, incremental enhancements, and functional updates on an annual basis.
Rather than a single major redesign at one specific point in time, the CMS solutions have followed an evolutionary development model, which includes:
- Periodic functional upgrades in response to legal, procedural, and organizational changes;
- Ongoing technical improvements to address performance, security, and usability requirements;
- Continuous maintenance services, including the resolution of newly identified errors, bugs, and operational issues.

This approach has ensured the operational continuity of the systems and their adaptation to emerging needs. However, despite these regular developments and maintenance activities, the existing CMS platforms have reached structural and technological limitations, which is why the judicial system is now transitioning toward a new, fully integrated and modern Case Management System.

Q233 (2024): Thanks to the developments occurred in the field of Information Technology, for more than 15 years from now, services offered by courts are easily accessible online by citizens, media representatives, as well as other civil society actors. Since 2005, two different electronic case management systems have been operating in the Albanian courts (ARKIT and ICMIS). Currently it turns out that out of 20 courts in the Albanian territory, 18 of them are using the ICMIS system, 2 of them using the ARKIT system. While, only two courts, respectively Tirana Judicial District Court and the Special Court of First Instance for Corruption and Organized Crime are using the ARKIT system

Q233 (2022): THE ARKIT system has been used since 2002, and the ICMIS system has been used since 2007.

Q234 (2025): There are concrete and formally approved plans for a significant change in the judicial IT landscape in the coming period, including the replacement of the existing Case Management Systems.
The High Judicial Council (HJC) has initiated and approved the implementation of a new, unified and integrated Case Management System (JURONIX). This system is planned to replace the current CMS platforms (ICMIS and ArkIT) and to integrate other key judicial IT solutions, including the Digital Audio Recording System (FTR/RDA).
The transition to JURONIX represents a major structural and technological change, aiming to:
- Standardize judicial workflows across all courts;
- Enable full digital case files and end-to-end electronic case management;
- Improve interoperability with other justice institutions;
- Enhance security, auditability, and data quality.

The upcoming period will therefore focus on development, piloting, gradual rollout, and user training, ensuring a controlled transition while maintaining continuity of judicial operations.

Q234 (2024): Preliminary steps (Governance structure setup, Preliminary decisions, Decision on migration of data from existing systems, etc);
Phase 1 (case handling, statistics, decisions);
Phase 2 (e-filing etc. for criminal cases);
Phase 3 (e-filing etc. for civil and admin. cases);
Legislation;
System support, operation and maintenance;
Taking into account that a newly developed judicial case management system should nowadays necessarily include a full digitization of all procedures, and considering the inherent complexity of such endeavor, a 5-year timeline for the completion of the whole project is proposed.

Q07a (2025): A CMS for public prosecution services does not exist, therefore the option NAP has been selected.
Q07b (2025): With the current systems, interoperability with other systems is no longer possible.
Q07c (2025): The advanced search engine in the judicial case management systems is functional for the data currently available. Therefore, we are proceeding with the selection of this functionality.

Q52 (General Comment): The second instance courts of general jurisdiction have subject matter over the first instance administrative law cases. Therefore, the statistics incorporated in the table for Q 52 include data on the caseload of second instance courts regarding the first instance administrative law cases.

Q52 (2025): In 2025, a significant decrease was recorded at the Municipal Court in Sarajevo in the number of new first instance litigious cases related to unpaid utility bills, which was one of the main reasons for the reduction in the total number of incoming civil and litigious cases compared to 2024, as well as a decrease in the number of unresolved cases in this case category in the reporting year.
In accordance with that, the number of first instance pending civil and litigious cases at the end of 2025 that were more than two years old was reduced to some extent. It is important to note that the majority of the pending civil and commercial litigious cases older than two years were litigious small claims cases related to unpaid utility bills.
The total number of new non-litigious cases brought before courts slightly increased in several major courts in 2025, contrary to the situation in previous years. Courts, overall, continued to resolve non-litigious cases with a clearance rate of more than 100%, thus reducing backlogs. As in the previous years, the majority of case flow in terms of general civil non-litigious cases was consisted of enforcement cases that the state-owned utility companies initiate to recover unpaid bills for utility services. (e.g. heating, water, electricity, garbage collection, television subscription etc.). In addition, majority of the pending general non-litigious cases older than two years were cases related to the unpaid utility bills, i.e. the non-litigious enforcement cases. This backlog of old cases is concentrated in the several courts in the biggest cities in Bosnia and Herzegovina.
As in the previous years, several courts in their annual reports indicated that they did not have sufficient capacity to handle the workload that increased in the reference year within the project aiming to achieve harmonization between land register and cadaster data, which partly leads to a still high number of unresolved cases at the end of the reporting year. Besides, the largest first-instance court in the capital city of Bosnia and Herzegovina received and resolved a much higher of non-litigious land-registry cases and related matters in 2025, due to the resumption of the project for harmonizing the cadaster and land registry. Overall, this has resulted in an exceptionally large increase in workload in 2025 when it comes to non-litigious land-registry cases.
In 2025, statistical data regarding the handling of registration of business entities and related matters remained stable compared to 2024. Most courts managed to achieve a clearance rate of 100% during the reporting period.
Non-judge court staff deal with a substantial part of the caseload in terms of registry cases and land registry matters. After the number of new first instance administrative law cases slightly increased in 2024, that number continued to grow somewhat in 2025, which in several courts caused the clearance rate to fall below 100%, leading to an increase in the total number of pending cases in this case category. A mitigating factor was that some courts in 2025 managed to achieve clearance rates for first instance administrative law cases of more than 100% despite the increase in the number of new cases.

Q52 (2024): In 2024, there was a relatively significant increase in the number of new first instance litigious cases related to the unpaid utility bills. However, this did not lead to a significant increase in the number of unresolved first instance civil and commercial litigious cases at the end of the reporting year. In addition, the number of pending cases at the end of 2024 that were more than two years old did not change considerably. It is important to note that the majority of the pending civil and commercial litigious cases older than two years were litigious small claims cases related to the unpaid utility bills. The total number of new non-litigious cases brought before courts was smaller, which confirmed the downward trend in previous years. As in previous years, the majority of case flow in terms of general civil non-litigious cases was consisted of enforcement cases that the state-owned utility companies initiate to recover unpaid bills for utility services. (e.g. heating, water, electricity, garbage collection, television subscription etc.)
As in the previous years, several courts in their annual reports indicated that they did not have sufficient capacity to handle the workload that increased in the reference year within the project aiming to achieve harmonization between land register and cadaster data, which partly leads to a still high number of unresolved cases at the end of the reporting year. Besides, the largest first-instance court in the capital of Bosnia and Herzegovina received and resolved a smaller number of non-litigious land-registry cases and related matters in 2024, due to the temporary halt of the project for harmonizing the cadaster and land registry. Overall, this has resulted in an exceptionally large decrease in workload when it comes to non-litigious land-registry cases last year.
Regarding the registration of business entities and related matters, several first-instance courts have received more new cases compared to the previous year. They mostly managed to handle the increased caseload during the reporting period.
Non-judge court staff deal with a substantial part of the caseload in terms of registry cases and land registry matters. In addition, majority of the pending general non-litigious cases older than two years were cases related to the unpaid utility bills, i.e. the non-litigious enforcement cases. This backlog of old cases is concentrated in the several courts in the biggest cities in Bosnia and Herzegovina.
The overwhelming majority of the first instance administrative law cases are concentrated in the several courts in the biggest cities in Bosnia and Herzegovina. Several of those courts saw a slight increase in the number of incoming administrative cases during 2024. However, courts with jurisdiction over first instance administrative cases managed to have clearance rate above 100% in 2024, reducing the number of pending as well as older cases at the end of the year.

Q52 (2023): There has been a significant decrease in the influx of first instance civil and commercial litigious cases over recent years. This trend continued in 2023. In comparison to 2022, the number of pending cases at the end of 2023 that were more than two years old did not change significantly. It is important to note that the majority of the pending civil and commercial litigious cases older than two years are litigious small claims cases related to the unpaid utility bills.
The total number of new non-litigious cases brought before both courts was smaller, which confirms the downward trend in recent years. The majority of general civil non-litigious cases are enforcement proceedings that the state-owned utility companies initiate to recover unpaid bills for utility services. (e.g. heating, water, electricity, garbage collection, television subscription etc.).
As in the previous years, several courts in their annual reports indicated that they did not have sufficient capacity to handle the workload that increased in the reference year within the project aiming to achieve harmonization between land register and cadastre data. Non-judge court staff deal with a substantial part of the caseload in terms of registry cases and land registry matters. In addition, majority of the pending civil and commercial litigious cases and general non-litigious cases older than 2 years were cases related to the unpaid utility bills, i.e. the non-litigious enforcement cases. This backlog of old cases is concentrated in the several courts in the biggest cities in Bosnia and Herzegovina.
The overwhelming majority of the first administrative law cases are concentrated in the several courts in the biggest cities in Bosnia and Herzegovina. In addition, courts with jurisdiction over first instance administrative cases managed to have clearance rate above 100% in 2023, reducing the number of pending cases at the end of the year.

Q52 (2022): There has been a significant decrease in the influx of first instance civil and commercial litigious cases over recent years. In 2020, the number of incoming cases dropped additionally compared to 2019, due to Covid-19 restrictions. In 2021, however, the number of incoming first instance civil and commercial litigious cases rose by 13% compared to 2020. Still, that number was smaller than the number of new first instance civil and commercial litigious cases received in 2019 and 2018. This trend continued in 2022., except that one of the biggest first-instance courts received a large number of relatively simple litigious small claims cases, which resulted in an increase in the total number of cases received compared to 2021. This was a one-time increase in the influx of cases, related specifically to this court's territorial jurisdiction, leading to the increase in the number of pending cases even though most of the courts surpassed the 100% clearance rate in the reference year. The number of pending cases that are more than two years old has decreased significantly, due to this report covering 2020, in which courts received a smaller number of cases because of the Covid-19 restrictions. Finally, it is important to note that the majority of the pending civil and commercial litigious cases older than two years are litigious small claims cases related to the unpaid utility bills.
The decreased number of incoming non-litigious cases was filed in the courts in 2022 in comparison to 2021. The majority of general civil non-litigious cases are enforcement proceedings that the state-owned utility companies initiate to recover unpaid bills for utility services. (e.g. heating, water, electricity, garbage collection, television subscription etc.).
As in the previous years, several courts in their annual reports indicated that they did not have sufficient capacity to handle the workload that increased in the reference year within the project aiming to achieve harmonization between land register and cadastre data. This backlog of old cases is concentrated in the several courts in the biggest cities in Bosnia and Herzegovina.
It is important to note an additional information on the inconsistency for general non-litigious pending cases between an end to 2021 and the beginning of 2022. Namely, the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina instructed one of the courts to correct technical mistakes made in the case management system about the registration of non-litigious enforcement cases the public companies had initiated with the courts previously for unpaid utility bills. The court increased the number of pending cases by implementing the instructions of the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina.
The overwhelming majority of the administrative law cases are concentrated in the several courts in the biggest cities in Bosnia and Herzegovina. Several courts saw an increase in the influx of administrative cases during 2022, resulting in a surge in the number of pending cases at the end of the year; in addition, the number of pending administrative cases in some of the largest courts has escalated as some of the judges specialized in administrative cases were absent due to sick leave or they were retired during the year.

Q53 (General Comment): As of 2022, i.e. the Evaluation of the judicial systems 2024 (2022 data), the statistics for severe criminal cases and other cases for this question include data for criminal cases from the first instance jurisdiction of second instance courts. In addition, since 2025 statistical data on the investigation phase of criminal proceedings in Bosnia and Herzegovina, which falls under the competence of the prosecutor's offices, are not included in the other criminal cases category; also, from 2025 onwards, these data do not include statistics on decisions of judges on motions/applications submitted to a judge by prosecutors during the preliminary phase of the criminal case, nor data on cases for the execution of final convictions in criminal cases, hence the huge discrepancies in the statistical data values for 2025 compared to 2024.
Severe criminal offences: a criminal offense is an unlawful act which violates or jeopardizes the protected values and which is, because of the danger it represents, defined by law as a criminal offense and for which a punishment is prescribed. Criminal sanctions are: punishments, suspended sentence, security measures and educational measures. Examples of serious criminal offenses are: criminal acts against state, homicide, organized crime, criminal acts against official duty (i.e. corruption cases), theft and other crimes against property, rape and other crimes against sexual integrity, traffic accidents where a person suffered grievous bodily injury or a significant damage and other crimes against public transportation etc.
Statistics on severe criminal offences include data on the cases in which the main part of the proceedings has started following the confirmation of indictment by court.
Minor offence or misdemeanor cases: minor offences are violations of public order or of regulations on economic and financial operations defined as such by laws or other regulations, whose characteristics are described and for which sanctions are prescribed. The following sanctions may be imposed upon a person found responsible for commission of a minor offence: fine; suspended sentence; reprimand; and protective measures. The following measures may be imposed because of being found responsible for a minor offence: confiscation of gains; obligation to compensate damages; penalty points; and deprivation of liberty to compel payment of a fine. Examples of minor offences: traffic offences, violations of public order, begging etc.
Statistics on misdemeanor offences include data on the cases in which the main part of the misdemeanor proceedings has started.
Since 2025 statistics regarding the execution phase of misdemeanor cases are not included in the other criminal cases category, hence the huge discrepancies in the statistical data values for 2025 compared to 2024.

Q53 (2025): Criminal cases: As of 2022, i.e. the Evaluation of the judicial systems 2024 (2022 data), the statistics for severe criminal cases and other cases for this question include data for criminal cases from the first instance jurisdiction of second instance courts. In addition, since 2025 statistical data on the investigation phase of criminal proceedings in Bosnia and Herzegovina, which falls under the competence of the prosecutor's offices, are not included in the other criminal cases category; also, from 2025 onwards, these data do not include statistics on decisions of judges on motions/applications submitted to a judge by prosecutors during the preliminary phase of the criminal case, nor data on cases for the execution of final convictions in criminal cases, hence the huge discrepancies in the statistical data values for 2025 compared to 2024.
The general trends for the first instance criminal cases in 2025 remain similar to the tendencies from the previous reporting cycle, the main characteristics being that there has been a slight increase in the number of incoming and resolved cases, but without achieving a 100% clearance rate and with a continued slight increase in the number of unresolved cases.
Misdemeanor cases:
In 2025, the number of unresolved first-instance misdemeanor cases increased significantly - by 14%, the main reason being a drastic increase in the number of incoming cases by 22% compared to the number of new cases of this type received by courts in 2024.
As in previous years, the most significant increase in the influx of new cases occurred in several courts in major towns in the country, due to the increased number of requests for initiating misdemeanor proceedings from various administrative authorities and police (i.e., traffic violations). The first-instance court in the capital of Bosnia and Herzegovina has been receiving a particularly large number of new misdemeanor cases initiated by the police against citizens who committed traffic offenses, which is largely caused by the improvements police has made in terms of technical resources for registering traffic offences. Although the courts achieved a 37% increase in the number of resolved first-instance misdemeanor cases in 2025 compared to 2024, the courts' clearance rate in the reporting year was still below 100%, reaching 91% regarding this indicator. It is important to note that courts must dispose of minor offence cases quickly in order to meet the very short statutory statute of limitations timeframes.
Since 2025 statistics regarding the execution phase of misdemeanor cases are not included in the other criminal cases category, hence the huge discrepancies in the statistical data values for 2025 compared to 2024.

Q53 (2024): Criminal cases: As of 2022, i.e. the Evaluation of the judicial systems 2024 (data 2022), the statistics for severe criminal cases and other cases for this question include data for criminal cases from the first instance jurisdiction of second instance courts. Regardless of the above change, the general trends for criminal cases in 2024 remain similar to the tendencies from the previous reporting cycles.
Misdemeanor cases:
The number of pending first-instance misdemeanor cases increased significantly during 2024 – by 33%, unlike the previous year during which the number of pending cases rose only by 1%. The number of incoming cases continued to expand in 2024 – by 31%. The most significant increase in the influx of cases occurred in several courts in major towns, due to the increased number of requests for initiating misdemeanor proceedings from various administrative authorities and police (i.e. traffic violations). The first-instance court in the capital of Bosnia and Herzegovina has received a particularly large number of new misdemeanor cases initiated by the police against citizens for committed traffic violations. Furthermore, the courts resolved more cases in 2024 than in the previous year. However, the courts failed to achieve 100% clearance rate in 2024 (i.e. 77%).

Q53 (2023): Criminal cases As of 2022, i.e. the Evaluation of the judicial systems 2024 (data 2022), the statistics for severe criminal cases and other cases for this question include data for criminal cases from the first instance jurisdiction of second instance courts. Regardless of the above change, the general trends for criminal cases in 2023 remain similar to the tendencies from the previous reporting cycles.
Misdemeanor cases:
The number of pending first-instance misdemeanor cases increased by 1% during 2023, unlike the previous reporting year (i.e. 2022) during which the number of pending cases decreased by 12%. The number of incoming cases in 2023 was higher by 7% compared to 2022. The most significant increase in the influx of cases occurred in several courts in major towns, due to the increased number of requests for misdemeanor proceedings from various administrative authorities and police (i.e. traffic violations). Furthermore, the courts resolved more cases in 2023 than in the previous year. However, the courts failed to achieve 100% clearance rate in 2023 (i.e. 99%).
Q53 (2022): There has been a significant decrease in the influx of first instance severe criminal law cases over recent years. In 2020, the number of incoming cases dropped additionally compared to 2019, due to Covid-19 restrictions. In 2021, however, the number of incoming first instance severe criminal law cases rose by 8% compared to 2020. Still, that number is smaller than the number of incoming first instance severe criminal law cases registered in 2019 and 2018. Statistics on first-instance criminal cases in 2022 indicate that the situation in the courts is, basically, consistent with the parameters from 2021.
Unlike previous years, the number of incoming cases decreased in 2022. Consequently, the number of pending cases in the first instance decreased at the end of 2022. The reduction in the influx of cases was recorded, predominantly, in the largest courts. This is not a consequence of legislative changes. It remains to be seen whether such indicators will continue to be achieved in the coming period.
Certain number of pending severe criminal cases, which are older than 2 years, cannot be resolved due to the procedural gridlock that the courts cannot resolve (e.g. an accused person is not traceable). The majority of pending other cases older than 2 years are misdemeanour cases in which courts are lacking effective mechanisms to enforce outstanding monetary fines pronounced in the minor offence proceedings.
Statistics on "Other cases" include inter alia: statistics on the preliminary criminal proceedings before the main trial, i.e. during the investigative procedure which is conducted by the prosecutor’s office (e.g. seizure of evidence, detention and similar measures, confirmation of indictment etc.), statistics on the court decisions brought outside of the main criminal trial (e.g. detention and similar measures, the change of monetary sanction to imprisonment etc), statistics on criminal proceedings related to the enforcement of convictions pronounced in criminal proceedings; statistics for minor offence cases regarding related to the court decisions brought outside of the main misdemeanour proceedings and for the enforcement of pronounced penalties.

Q54 (2025): Civil (and commercial) litigious cases: In 2025, the trend of decreasing total number of unresolved civil commercial cases at the second level continued, as well as a decrease in the number of unresolved cases older than two years. This trend was especially facilitated by the continuous reduction of backlog in several of the largest courts that have jurisdiction over civil commercial disputes at the second stage. It is important to note that as in 2024 one of the second-level courts received a large number of simple cases, which were all resolved during the reporting year, contributing especially to the increase in the improvement of results in terms of clearance rate in the reporting year.
Administrative cases: The number of unresolved cases in this category has increased significantly because one of the courts continued to receive an increased number of cases in 2025, as it did in 2024, under those circumstances, this court was unable to increase the number of resolved cases and achieved a clearance rate of 68%. Other courts from this group achieved better results, but it was not enough to reduce the negative result generated by the above-mentioned court.

Q54 (2024): Civil (and commercial) litigious cases: In 2024, the trend of decreasing total number of unresolved civil commercial cases at the second level continued, as well as a decrease in the number of unresolved cases older than two years. This trend was especially facilitated by the continuous reduction of backlog in several of the largest courts that have jurisdiction over civil commercial disputes at the second stage. It is important to note that one of the second-level courts received a large number of simple cases, which were resolved during the reporting year, resulting in an increase in the total number of received cases compared to 2023, but this did not lead to an increase in the number of unresolved cases during 2024.
Administrative cases:
The courts registered the increased numbers of incoming administrative cases in 2024 in contrast to the previous year; the workload increased particularly in one of the courts, which had to decide urgently on the huge number of the complaints against the election commission's decisions in relation to the 2024 local elections. In addition, other courts have also received a somewhat higher number of administrative cases in 2024 compared to 2023, which has contributed to a slight increase in the number of unresolved cases in the reporting year.

Q54 (2023): Civil (and commercial) litigious cases: The number of incoming second instance civil commercial litigious cases declined in 2023, following a massive one-time increase in the influx of cases in one of the courts in 2022. The influx of this category of court cases in 2023 is in balance with the influx of cases in 2021. In addition, there has been a significant decrease in the number of second instance civil commercial litigious cases over recent years. This trend continued in 2023. It is particularly facilitated by the continuous reduction of backlog in several of the largest courts that have jurisdiction over second instance civil commercial litigious cases.
Administrative cases: The number of incoming second-instance administrative law cases remained stable in 2023 compared to the influx of cases in 2022 and 2021. In 2023, the courts continued to reduce the number of second-instance administrative law cases in 2023, which is in line with historical trends for this category of court cases.

Q54 (2022): There has been a significant decrease in the influx of second instance civil commercial litigious cases over recent years. In 2020, the number of incoming cases dropped additionally compared to 2019, due to Covid-19 restrictions decreasing the number of first instance court decisions; therefore, the number of appeals initiating the second instance court cases in 2020 was much lower, compared to the previous years. In 2021, however, the number of incoming second instance civil commercial litigious cases was increased by 9% compared to 2020; nevertheless, that number is by far smaller than the number of incoming second instance civil commercial litigious cases registered in 2019 and 2018. This trend continued in 2022. However, one of the second-instance courts received a large number of simple cases, which were resolved during the same year, which resulted in an increase in the total number of cases received compared to 2021. This was a one-time increase in the influx of cases, related specifically to this court's territorial jurisdiction. Furthermore, the courts with the biggest caseload in the country have managed to surpass the 100% clearance rate for many consecutive years, including the reference year; consequently, the number of pending second instance civil commercial litigious cases was lesser at the end of 2022. No major legislative reforms in terms of the laws on civil and commercial procedure took place in the recent years. When it comes to administrative court cases, the number of pending cases has been further reduced in 2022, confirming indicators from 2021.

Q55 (General Comment): As of 2022, i.e. the Evaluation of the judicial systems 2024 (2022 data), the statistics for severe criminal cases and other cases for this question include data for criminal cases from the first instance jurisdiction of second instance courts. In addition, since 2025 statistical data on the investigation phase of criminal proceedings in Bosnia and Herzegovina, which falls under the competence of the prosecutor's offices, are not included in the other criminal cases category; also, from 2025 onwards, these data do not include statistics on decisions of judges on motions/applications submitted to a judge by prosecutors during the preliminary phase of the criminal case, nor data on cases for the execution of final convictions in criminal cases, hence the huge discrepancies in the statistical data values for 2025 compared to 2024.
Second instance courts have a dual subject matter in criminal matters. The second instance courts have first instance jurisdiction for criminal offences for which more than 10 years of imprisonment is prescribed, they also have second instance jurisdiction to decide on appeals against the decisions brought by the first instance courts for criminal offences for which up to 10 years of imprisonment is prescribed. The statistics of second instance courts on criminal law cases (Q55, i.e. incoming, resolved, pending, pending older than two years) include only second instance cases within the jurisdiction of the second instance courts, whereas the first instance cases within their jurisdiction are included in the statistics under the question Q52 First instance courts: number of criminal law cases. In addition, the statistics included under the question Q040 do not include data on severe criminal cases managed by the three courts that are included in the category of supreme courts under the Q57 Highest instance courts (Supreme Court): Number of criminal law cases. Their caseload in terms of criminal law consists of the first (i.e. one of the courts in this category has both first and second instance criminal jurisdiction), second and third instance severe criminal cases. The courts of appeal have jurisdiction only to deal with the second-instance misdemeanor cases. Severe criminal offences: a criminal offense is an unlawful act which violates or jeopardizes the protected values, and which is, because of the danger it represents, defined by law as a criminal offense and for which a punishment is prescribed. Criminal sanctions are prison punishments, suspended sentence, security measures and educational measures. Examples of serious offenses are criminal acts against state, homicide, organized crime, criminal acts against official duty (i.e. corruption cases), theft and other crimes against property, rape and other crimes against sexual integrity, traffic accidents where a person suffered grievous bodily injury or a significant damage and other crimes against public transportation etc.

The following measures may be imposed as a consequence of being found responsible for commission of a minor offence: confiscation of gains; obligation to compensate damages; penalty points; and deprivation of liberty to compel payment of a fine. Examples of minor offences are traffic offences, violations of public order, begging etc.
Statistics on misdemeanor offences include only data on the cases in which the main part of the misdemeanor proceedings has started.

Q55 (2025): Criminal cases: As of 2022, i.e. the Evaluation of the judicial systems 2024 (2022 data), the statistics for severe criminal cases and other cases for this question include data for criminal cases from the first instance jurisdiction of second instance courts. In addition, since 2025 statistical data on the investigation phase of criminal proceedings in Bosnia and Herzegovina, which falls under the competence of the prosecutor's offices, are not included in the other criminal cases category; also, from 2025 onwards, these data do not include statistics on decisions of judges on motions/applications submitted to a judge by prosecutors during the preliminary phase of the criminal case, nor data on cases for the execution of final convictions in criminal cases, hence the huge discrepancies in the statistical data values for 2025 compared to 2024.
The general trends for the second instance criminal cases in 2025 remain similar to the tendencies from the previous reporting cycle, with the only exception being that in percentage terms the number of pending cases older than 2 years from the date the case came to the second instance court has significantly increased, although in absolute terms that number of cases has not increased substantially.
Misdemeanor cases: In 2025, the total number of unresolved second-instance misdemeanor cases increased marginally in terms of absolute numbers, due to a somewhat weaker results in terms of clearance rate in some courts. Otherwise, in most courts, the caseflow of second-instance misdemeanor cases continues to be stable.

Q55 (2024): Criminal cases:
As of 2022, i.e. the Evaluation of the judicial systems 2024 (data 2022), the statistics for severe criminal cases and other cases for this question include only data for criminal cases from the second instance jurisdiction of relevant courts, whereas the statistics on cases generating from their first instance jurisdiction are included in the data for the first instance courts: number of criminal law cases. Regardless of the above change, the general trends for criminal cases for this question remain similar to the tendencies from the previous reporting cycles, with small increase in the number of pending cases being registered from year to year.
Misdemeanor cases:
The number of pending second-instance misdemeanor cases was decreased during 2023 by 39%, unlike the previous reporting year (i.e. 2023) during which the number of pending cases was increased by 13%. However, it is important to note that this modification was not significant in absolute terms. The number of incoming and resolved cases remained relatively stable in the reporting year compared to 2023.

Q55 (2023): Criminal cases:
As of 2022, i.e. the Evaluation of the judicial systems 2024 (data 2022), the statistics for severe criminal cases and other cases for this question include only data for criminal cases from the second instance jurisdiction of relevant courts, whereas the statistics on cases generating from their first instance jurisdiction are included in the data for the first instance courts: number of criminal law cases. This change may lead to some inconsistencies between data for 2023 and the previous reporting cycle. Regardless of the above change, the general trends for criminal cases for this question remain similar to the tendencies from the previous reporting cycles.
Misdemeanor cases:
The number of pending second-instance misdemeanor cases rose during 2023 by 13%, unlike the previous reporting year (i.e. 2022) during which the number of pending cases decreased by 10%. However, it is important to note that this modification was not significant in absolute terms. The number of incoming and resolved cases remained stable in the reporting year compared to 2022.

Q55 (2022): Second instance courts have a dual subject matter in criminal matters. The second instance courts have first instance jurisdiction for criminal offences for which more than 10 years of imprisonment is prescribed, they also have second instance jurisdiction to decide on appeals against the decisions brought by the first instance courts for criminal offences for which up to 10 years of imprisonment is prescribed. The statistics of second instance courts on criminal law cases (Q 40, i.e. incoming, resolved, pending, pending older than two years) include only second instance cases within the jurisdiction of the second instance courts. These statistics do not include data on severe criminal cases managed by the three courts that are included in the category of supreme courts; their caseload in terms of criminal law consists of the first (i.e. one of the courts in this category has both first and second instance criminal jurisdiction), second and third instance severe criminal cases. There has been a significant decrease of the first instance severe criminal cases over recent years to the second instance courts of the aforementioned category. The trend advanced in 2020 due to the decrease of activity of public prosecutors and judges in the context of measures implemented against the spread of Covid-19 virus. In addition, in 2020 the number of incoming second instance criminal cases dropped additionally compared to 2019, due to Covid-19 restrictions decreasing the number of first instance court decisions. As a result, the number of appeals initiating the second instance severe criminal cases in 2020 was much lower than in 2019 and 2018. The number of the first instance severe criminal cases remained stable in 2021 and 2022.

Q56 (2022): In 2022, the courts in this category maintained the trend from the previous reporting cycles to make a certain decrease of the number of pending non-criminal cases. Also, these courts continued to keep the low number of pending cases older than 2 years from the date the cases came to the courts, due to the consistent implementation of the principle to deal with cases chronologically within their respective backlog reduction plans.
Q57 (2022): In 2022, the courts in this category achieved a clearance rate of 100%, reversing the consequences of COVID-19 in 2020, when there was a temporary increase in the number of pending criminal cases.

Q58 (General Comment): Administrative cases (Administrative disputes):
In Bosnia and Herzegovina, an administrative dispute (i.e. administrative case) is a court procedure regulated by thematic legislation at four levels of government. It is a court procedure carried out by courts of general jurisdiction through which disputes between individuals (natural or legal persons) and administrative bodies or institutions are resolved. It is a special form of judicial procedure initiated by natural or legal persons and relates to challenging administrative decisions or actions made or taken by administrative bodies. The defendant in an administrative dispute is the competent administrative authority whose administrative act is being contested. An administrative dispute can also be initiated when the competent authority has not issued the appropriate administrative act regarding a party's request or appeal (i.e. administrative silence).
Under the conditions set in the above-mentioned legislation, a party can challenge a court decision by which an administrative dispute was resolved in the first instance by submitting a request for its review in the second instance court procedure.
As indicated in the general comments for Q52, courts of general jurisdiction handle administrative cases in the first and second instance. In the first instance, administrative cases are handled by the courts of general jurisdiction, which in other types of cases act as second instance courts (i.e., second instance civil and commercial litigious cases), while regarding other types of cases, these courts deal with both first instance and second instance cases (i.e., criminal cases) depending on the severity of punishment prescribed by criminal legislation. In the second instance, administrative cases on the appealed legal remedy are handled by courts classified in the group of highest instance courts, with that part of the caseload included in the answer to question Q54.
Civil and commercial litigious cases:
In Bosnia and Herzegovina, a civil and commercial litigious case is a court procedure regulated by civil procedure legislation at four levels of government. It is a court procedure initiated by a plaintiff with a civil lawsuit against defendant which is carried out by courts of general jurisdiction based on which courts conduct hearings and make decisions in civil law disputes with regard to matters such as: determination of ownership of real estate, claims for damages, non-fulfillment of contractual obligations, labor disputes, property disputes, interference with property, small claims disputes, commercial disputes, divorce proceedings and other family matters etc.
Under the conditions set in the above-mentioned legislation, a party can challenge a first instance court decision by submitting an appeal to the second instance court.
In addition, the parties may file the request for revision of the final second instance judgment within thirty (30) days from the day of the service of the judgment. The revision shall not be allowed if the value of the contested part of the final judgment does not exceed 15,000 €. In addition, the revision may also allow be allowed in all cases if it finds that deciding on revision is important for the application of law in other cases.
Exceptionally, in one of the jurisdictions in Bosnia and Herzegovina, commercial litigation cases (e.g. disputes between business companies, bankruptcy proceedings) are dealt with by specialized first-instance and second-instance commercial court, while these cases at the third instance are resolved by the relevant court of general jurisdiction.
Non litigious cases (civil and commercial non litigious cases, registry cases, other non-litigious)
The most relevant categories among civil and commercial non-litigious cases are non-litigious enforcement cases initiated by creditors on the basis of uncontested payment orders or court verdicts delivered in civil or commercial litigious cases, inheritance proceedings, non-contentious proceedings related to personal and family matters (e.g. establishing that

Q59 (General Comment): Q53
Severe criminal offences: a criminal offense is an unlawful act which violates or jeopardizes the protected values and which is, because of the danger it represents, defined by law as a criminal offense and for which a punishment is prescribed. Criminal sanctions are: punishments, suspended sentence, security measures and educational measures. Examples of serious criminal offenses are: criminal acts against state, homicide, organized crime, criminal acts against official duty (i.e. corruption cases), theft and other crimes against property, rape and other crimes against sexual integrity, traffic accidents where a person suffered grievous bodily injury or a significant damage and other crimes against public transportation etc.
Statistics on severe criminal offences include data on the cases in which the main part of the proceedings has started following the confirmation of indictment by court.
Minor offence or misdemeanor cases: minor offences are violations of public order or of regulations on economic and financial operations defined as such by laws or other regulations, whose characteristics are described and for which sanctions are prescribed. The following sanctions may be imposed upon a person found responsible for commission of a minor offence: fine; suspended sentence; reprimand; and protective measures. The following measures may be imposed because of being found responsible for a minor offence: confiscation of gains; obligation to compensate damages; penalty points; and deprivation of liberty to compel payment of a fine. Examples of minor offences: traffic offences, violations of public order, begging etc.
Statistics on misdemeanor offences include data on the cases in which the main part of the misdemeanor proceedings has started.
Since 2025 statistics regarding the execution phase of misdemeanor cases are not included in the other criminal cases category, hence the huge discrepancies in the statistical data values for 2025 compared to 2024.
As of 2022, i.e. the Evaluation of the judicial systems 2024 (2022 data), the statistics for severe criminal cases and other cases for this question include data for criminal cases from the first instance jurisdiction of second instance courts. In addition, the statistics included under the question Q55 do not include data on severe criminal cases dealt with by the three courts that are included in the category of supreme courts under the Q57 Highest instance courts (Supreme Court): Number of criminal law cases. Q60 (General Comment): Description of calculation method: The average length of court procedure is calculated as the average of time needed to resolve a case for cases resolved during the reporting year. The average length of court procedure for resolving the case is calculated separately for different phases of the court procedure - from the day of initiating the phase of the court procedure to its completion. The data are retrieved from the case management system.
Average total length of the total procedure:
The average length of the total procedure is calculated as the average of time needed to resolve a case for all cases resolved in the different phases of court procedure during the year. (e. g. The first instance civil case is resolved in 100 days from its lodging with the first instance court, second instance civil case is resolved in 120 days from its lodging with the second instance court, and third instance civil case was resolved in 120 days. The average length of the total procedure is calculated as follows: 100+120+120/3=113,3 days.)

Q60 (2025): In 2025, the average duration of resolved civil and commercial litigious proceedings decreased at all three levels of the court system compared to the values reported in 2024.
Average length of resolved cases in the first instance got reduced slightly (i.e. 6%), which is in line with this indicator at a value of about 500 days in the previous two reporting years (2023 and 2024), as well as in line with a certain decrease in the number of unresolved cases of this category in the reporting year.
Average length of resolved cases in the 2nd instance got reduced considerably (i.e.28%) because the backlog of old cases is continuously decreasing and new cases are being resolved faster, also, as in 2024, one of the courts from this group had to resolve a large number of new simple cases in a short period of time, as indicated in the commentary for Q54 Second instance courts (appeal): Number of 'other than criminal law' cases.
Average length of resolved cases in the 3rd instance got reduced substantially (i.e. 40%) mostly because one of the courts in this category drastically reduced the number of old cases, which allows that court to resolve new cases in a very short time, reducing the overall duration of proceedings at this level of the court system in 2025.

Q60 (2024): In 2024, data on the average duration of civil and commercial litigious proceedings remains mostly stable, with the exception of a significant reduction in the average length of second instance cases. This reduction is largely due to the fact that one of the courts had to resolve a large number of new cases in a short period of time, as indicated in the commentary for 039 Second instance courts (appeal): Number of 'other than criminal law' cases.
As in previous years, changes have been recorded in the data for this reporting year compared to the previous year regarding other types of court cases under 041 (Contested divorce cases, Termination cases, Insolvency cases, Robbery cases and Intentional homicide, Bribery cases, Influence peddling). It is important to place these differences in the following context. Primarily, the variations are registered within a relatively small number of cases, so the variations could be influenced significantly by the length of proceedings and other circumstances of individual cases (e.g. robberies and intentional homicides) or the registered variations are high percentage wise but they are not significant in absolute terms (e.g. litigious divorce cases, employment dismissal cases, insolvency cases). When it comes to the Bribery cases and Trading in influence cases, it is important to note that the prosecutors' offices and the courts in Bosnia and Herzegovina process very often the corruption cases as the cases of the Abuse of Office (i.e. An official or responsible person who, by taking advantage of his office or official authority and by exceeding the limits of his official authority or by failing to perform his official duty, acquires a benefit to himself or to another person or causes damage to another person or seriously violates the rights of another, shall be punished by imprisonment). The statistics included in the reply for the Question 41 do not include the court cases in which Bribery and Trading in influence are dealt with together in conjunction with the Organized crime and other criminal offences.

Q60 (2023): In 2023, an average duration of proceedings continued to get reduced for the resolved first and third instance civil and commercial litigious cases, which is consistent with the decrease in the number of pending cases for both case categories during the reporting year. Unlike 2022, the average duration of second-instance civil and commercial cases rose slightly in 2023. This occurred mostly because the courts with the biggest number of pending cases resolved certain number of very old cases during the reporting year. It is important to note that the backlog of old first instance litigious small claims cases for unpaid utility bills is concentrated in the several first instance courts in the biggest cities in Bosnia and Herzegovina.
As in previous years, as far as other types of court cases are concerned under the Question 41 (Litigious divorce cases, Employment dismissal cases, Insolvency cases, Robbery cases, and Intentional homicides, Bribery cases, Trading in influence), it is important to put these differences into the following context. Primarily, the variations are registered within a relatively small number of cases, so the variations could be influenced significantly by the length of proceedings and other circumstances of individual cases (e.g. robberies and intentional homicides) or the registered variations are high percentage-wise but they are not significant in absolute terms (e.g. litigious divorce cases, employment dismissal cases, insolvency cases). When it comes to the Bribery cases and Trading in influence cases, it is important to note that the prosecutors' offices and the courts in Bosnia and Herzegovina process very often the corruption cases as the cases of the Abuse of Office (i.e. An official or responsible person who, by taking advantage of his office or official authority and by exceeding the limits of his official authority or by failing to perform his official duty, acquires a benefit to himself or to another person or causes damage to another person or seriously violates the rights of another, shall be punished by imprisonment). The statistics included in the reply for the Question 41 do not include the court cases in which Bribery and Trading in influence are dealt with together in conjunction with the Organized crime and other criminal offences.

Q60 (2022): Generally, the relevant indicators regarding civil and commercial litigious cases for the reference year are consistent with the statistical information for such cases in 2021. It is important to note that the backlog of old litigious small claims cases for unpaid utility bills is concentrated in the several first instance courts in the biggest cities in Bosnia and Herzegovina.
The average duration of second-instance litigation and economic resolved cases decreased significantly due to the increase in the number of resolved cases in the largest courts of second instance in Bosnia and Herzegovina.
As in previous years, as far as other types of court cases are concerned under the Question 41 (Litigious divorce cases, Employment dismissal cases, Insolvency cases, Robbery cases, and Intentional homicides, Bribery cases, Trading in influence), it is important to put these differences into the following context. Primarily, the variations are registered within a relatively small number of cases, so the variations could be influenced significantly by the length of proceedings and other circumstances of individual cases (e.g. robberies and intentional homicides) or the registered variations are high percentage-wise but they are not significant in absolute terms (e.g. litigious divorce cases, employment dismissal cases, insolvency cases). When it comes to the Bribery cases and Trading in influence cases, it is important to note that the prosecutors' offices and the courts in Bosnia and Herzegovina process very often the corruption cases as the cases of the Abuse of Office (i.e. An official or responsible person who, by taking advantage of his office or official authority and by exceeding the limits of his official authority or by failing to perform his official duty, acquires a benefit to himself or to another person or causes damage to another person or seriously violates the rights of another, shall be punished by imprisonment). The statistics included in the reply for the Question 41 do not include the court cases in which Bribery and Trading in influence are dealt with together in conjunction with the Organized crime and other criminal offences.

Q61 (2025): Overall, the statistics on the case flow of specific cases in the first instance courts, which are concerned under Q61, remain relatively stable in the reference year (i.e. 2025) compared to the previous relevant reporting period (i.e. 2022). Primarily, the variations exist within a relatively small number of cases. In addition, the registered variations are high percentage wise but they are not significant in absolute terms. It is important to note that certain number of pending criminal cases (i.e. robbery cases, homicide cases), which are older than 2 years, cannot be resolved due to the procedural gridlock that the courts cannot resolve (e.g. an accused person is not traceable). When it comes to the Bribery, Trading in influence, it is important to note that the prosecutors' offices and the courts in Bosnia and Herzegovina process very often the corruption cases as the cases of the Abuse of Office (i.e. An official or responsible person who, by taking advantage of his office or official authority and by exceeding the limits of his official authority or by failing to perform his official duty, acquires a benefit to himself or to another person or causes damage to another person or seriously violates the rights of another, shall be punished by imprisonment). In addition, the statistics included in the reply for Q61 do not include the court cases in which Bribery, Trading in influence, and Money laundering are dealt with together in conjunction with Organized crime and other criminal offences.

Q62-a (General Comment): Traffic offence cases are dealt with by the courts under the legislation on misdemeanor proceedings. In general, the misdemeanor offences are determined by the law and other regulations as violations of public order punishable by fines. The police, not the prosecution, initiate and present traffic offence cases in the courts.
Q62-b (General Comment): Traffic offence cases are dealt with by the courts under the legislation on misdemeanor proceedings. In general, the misdemeanor offences are determined by the law and other regulations as violations of public order punishable by fines. The police, not the prosecution, initiate and present traffic offence cases in the courts.
Q62-b (2025): Out of 19 593 received cases in 2025 in this category, the prosecutors' offices in Bosnia and Herzegovina received 48% of cases in which their perpetrators could not be identified by the police when the case was filed (KTN cases), while the prosecutors' offices received 52% of cases in which a prosecutor needs to preliminarily establish if an illegal behavior constitutes a criminal act (KTA cases).
Prosecutors are not responsible for traffic offences.
Namely, in Bosnia and Herzegovina traffic offences (e.g. speeding) are dealt with by police as minor offences. When the legal conditions are met, the police submit a request to initiate misdemeanor proceedings against the perpetrator of the misdemeanor to the competent court of general jurisdiction.
Other minor offences are violations of public order or of regulations on economic and financial operations defined as such by laws or other regulations. The following sanctions may be imposed upon a person found responsible for commission of a minor offence: fine, suspended sentence, reprimand, and protective measures. The following protective measures may be imposed as a consequence of being found responsible for committing a minor offence: confiscation of gains; obligation to compensate damages; penalty points; and deprivation of liberty to compel payment of a fine.

Q62-c (2024): Around 84% of pending cases on 31 December 2024 were cases involving criminal acts in which their perpetrators could not be identified by police when the case was filed, cases in which a prosecutor needs to preliminarily establish if an illegal behavior constitutes a criminal act. Additionally, around 16% of pending cases were cases against known minor and adult perpetrators. These cases are considered to be more important for the society and the criminal justice system compared to the other group of cases (cases involving criminal acts in which their perpetrators could not be identified by police when the case was filed, cases in which a prosecutor needs to preliminarily establish if an illegal behavior constitutes a criminal act). The number of unresolved cases in prosecutor's offices at the end of 2023 is lower by about 18000 than the number of unresolved cases at the beginning of 2024. This inconsistency occurred because during 2024, the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina and some prosecutor's offices noticed in the Case Management System in prosecutor's offices that some prosecutors did not mark as completed cases that were resolved in previous years. Mostly these were cases involving criminal acts in which their perpetrators could not be identified by police when the case was filed, cases in which a prosecutor needs to preliminarily establish if an illegal behavior constitutes a criminal act. As a result, these cases were marked during the reporting year as resolved in the Case Management System in Prosecutor's Offices, which led to the aforementioned inconsistency in the data on the work of prosecutors' offices.

Q62-c (2023): Around 88% of pending cases on 31 December 2023 were cases involving criminal acts in which their perpetrators could not be identified by police when the case was filed, cases in which a prosecutor needs to preliminarily establish if an illegal behavior constitutes a criminal act. Additionally, around 12% of pending cases were cases against known minor and adult perpetrators. These cases are considered to be more important for the society and the criminal justice system compared to the other group of cases (cases involving criminal acts in which their perpetrators could not be identified by police when the case was filed, cases in which a prosecutor needs to preliminarily establish if an illegal behavior constitutes a criminal act).

Q63-0 (General Comment): The judicial system in in Bosnia and Herzegovina is consisted of both courts and prosecutor's offices, as mutually independent institutions in performing their powers. The law establishes prosecutor's offices and courts as autonomous institutions. Judges and prosecutors are considered to be judicial office holders. The High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina– an institution with mixed composition- appoints judges and prosecutors; it has identical competences over issues regarding both judges and prosecutors/courts and prosecutor's offices. The same legislation regulates salaries of public prosecutors and judges. Prosecutor's offices have their own respective budgets, adopted by parliaments in the procedure applicable to all other public institutions. Pursuant to the specific legislation regulating the legal status of prosecutors' offices in Bosnia and Herzegovina, they constitute independent authorities which prosecute perpetrators of criminal offenses and file legal expedients for the purpose of protecting legality and constitutionality. Public prosecution offices shall perform their functions on the basis of the constitution and the law. No one shall have the right to influence the public prosecutor's office in the execution of its constitutional and legal functions.

The basic right and the basic duty of the prosecutor is the detection and prosecution of perpetrators of criminal offenses. The prosecutor has have the following rights and duties: a) as soon as the prosecutor becomes aware that there are grounds for suspicion that a criminal offense has been committed, to take necessary steps to discover it and investigate it, to identify the suspect(s), guide and supervise the investigation, as well as direct the activities of authorized officials pertaining to the identification of suspect(s) and the gathering of information and evidence; b) to conduct an investigation in accordance with the law; c) to grant immunity in accordance with law; d) to request information from governmental bodies, companies and other physical and legal persons; e) to issue summonses and orders and to propose the issuance of summonses and orders in accordance with the law; f) to order authorized officials to execute an order issued by the court as provided by the law; g) to propose the issuance of a warrant for pronouncement of the sentence; h) to issue and defend indictment before the court; i) to file legal remedies; j) to perform other tasks as provided by the law.

The Chief Prosecutor shall have the right and duty to give mandatory instructions to the public prosecutor regarding his/her work, and may, apart from that: take certain actions which are in the competence of the public prosecutor; authorize a different public prosecutor to process individual cases that are within the competence of the public prosecutor; authorize a public prosecutor to perform individual activities that are within the competence of another public prosecutor. The Chief Prosecutor may perform criminal prosecution within the competence of a public prosecutor, and in doing so, s/he may: undertake necessary measures related to detection of crimes and identification of perpetrators with the purpose of directing preceding criminal proceedings; request investigation conduct; bring and represent indictment, i.e. indictment proposals and other proposals before competent court; file appeals against unlawful court decisions, i.e. withdraw already filed appeals.

The High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina has the following competencies: appointing Chief Prosecutors, Deputy Chief Prosecutors and prosecutors; receiving complaints against prosecutors, conducting disciplinary proceedings, determining disciplinary liability, and imposing disciplinary measures on prosecutors; deciding upon appeals in disciplinary proceedings; deciding upon suspensions of prosecutors; deciding upon issues of incompatibility of other functions performed by prosecutors; deciding upon the temporary assignment or transfer of prosecutors to another prosecutor's office; supervising the advanced professional training of prosecutors and advising the Centers for Judicial and Prosecutorial Training in their adoption of programmes of advanced professional training for prosecutors; determining the minimum amount of advanced professional training to be undertaken by every prosecutor each year; determining the induction training for candidates chosen for prosecutorial office and supervising the provision of such

Q63 (General Comment): PUBLIC PROSECUTOR:
Pursuant to the criminal procedure legislation in Bosnia and Herzegovina, the basic duty of the prosecutor is the detection and prosecution of perpetrators of criminal offenses. The prosecutor has the following powers: a) as soon as the prosecutor becomes aware that there are grounds for suspicion that a criminal offense has been committed, to take necessary steps to discover it and investigate it, to identify the suspect(s), guide and supervise the investigation, as well as direct the activities of authorized officials pertaining to the identification of suspect(s) and the gathering of information and evidence; b) to conduct an investigation in accordance with the law; c) to grant immunity in accordance with law; d) to request information from governmental bodies, companies and other physical and legal persons; e) to issue summonses and orders and to propose the issuance of summonses and orders in accordance with the law; f) to order authorized officials to execute an order issued by the court as provided by the law; g) to propose the issuance of a warrant for pronouncement of the sentence; h) to issue and defend indictment before the court; i) to file legal remedies; j) to perform other tasks as provided by the law.
According to the legislation in Bosnia and Herzegovina on the protection and treatment of children and minors in criminal proceedings, prosecutor may end the cases against juvenile offenders by imposing certain types of criminal sanctions - i.e. cases in which prosecutors impose educational measures against minor defendants without bringing them to court. In addition, for criminal offenses punishable by a fine or imprisonment of up to five years, the prosecutor may decide not to initiate preliminary proceedings even if there is evidence that the minor has committed a criminal offense, if he considers that it would not be appropriate to conduct proceedings against the minor, taking into account the nature of the criminal offense and the circumstances under which it was committed, the minor's previous life, and his personal characteristics. The prosecutor may act in the same manner in the case of a criminal offense punishable by imprisonment of more than five years if such action is in accordance with the principle of proportionality as stated in Article 9 of this law. To determine these circumstances, the prosecutor may request information from the parents, i.e., the guardian of the minor, other persons and institutions, and when necessary, may summon these persons and the minor for direct information. The prosecutor seeks the opinion of the guardianship authority on the appropriateness of initiating proceedings against the minor.
JUDGE:
The preliminary proceeding judge is a judge who acts during the investigative procedure in accordance with the criminal procedure legislation in Bosnia and Herzegovina. For example, the preliminary proceedings judge decides at the request of the prosecutor on the issuance of a search warrant.
POLICE: An authorised official person is a person having an appropriate authorisation within the police authorities in Bosnia and Herzegovina. In acordance with the criminal procedure legislation in Bosnia and Herzegovina, if there are grounds for suspicion that a criminal offense has been committed that carries a prison sentence of more than five (5) years, an authorized official shall immediately inform the prosecutor and shall under the Prosecutor’s direction take the steps necessary to locate the perpetrator, to prevent the suspect or accomplice from hiding or fleeing, to detect and secure the clues to the criminal offense and objects which might serve as evidence, and to gather all information that might be of use for the criminal proceedings. If there are grounds for suspicion that a criminal offense has been committed that carries a prison sentence of more than five (5) years, and the delay would pose a risk, an authorized official is obligated to carry out necessary actions in order to fulfil the above mentioned tasks. When carrying out these actions, the authorized official is obligated to act in accordance with the criminal procedure legislation. The authorized official shall be bound to inform the prosecutor on all taken Q64 (2025): The number of cases with an indictment filed based on a plea agreement was significantly lower in several prosecutor's offices in 2025 compared to 2024. These indicators are not the result of the application of any special guidelines or legislative changes. Otherwise, in 2025, the trend from previous years continued, with the overall number of criminal cases resolved through plea agreements between prosecutors and perpetrators of criminal offenses decreasing in Bosnia and Herzegovina.

Q230 (2022): The High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina has formed a working group for drafting a medium-term strategy for the development and implementation of information technologies in the judiciary.

Q231 (2022): Correction of technical mistake: The reply from the previous reporting cycles regarding the status of criminal case online should be changed from "Accessible to parties" to "Not accessible at all".
Q232 (2025): There are 2 CMS/TCMS version currently in use: -CMS/TCMS v3 which was implemented during 2024 and it has been in use in all judiciary institutions for most of the functionalities, -CMS/TCMS v1 which is still used in judiciary institutions for just a few administrative functionalities and for some of the statistical reports.
Both versions of CMS are based on a single database. Two versions of the application are being used, both accessing the same data, until the final transition to the CMS/TCMS v3 version is completed.
Q232 (2024): Currently there are 3 CMS/TCMS versions in use: CMS/TCMS v3 which is implemented during 2024 and is in use in all judiciary institutions except the Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina and the Municipal Court in Sarajevo (implementation planned for January 2025); CMS/TCMS v2 which is still used only in the Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina and the Municipal Court in Sarajevo; CMS/TCMS v1 which is still used in all judiciary institutions for a few administrative functionalities and for some of the reports.

Q232 (2023): Currently there are 3 CMS (courts)/TCMS (prosecutor's offices) versions in use: CMS/TCMS v1 that is used in all judiciary institutions for majority of functionalities, CMS/TCMS v2 used in all judiciary institutions for a few functionalities and CMS/TCMS v3 which is implemented in 7 pilot institutions, as it was planned.
Q233 (2025): CMS/TCMS v1 was developed more than 10 years ago, CMS/TCMS v3 was developed between 2 and 5 years ago.

Q233 (2023): CMS/TCMS v1 was developed more than 10 years ago, CMS/TCMS v2 was developed between 5 and 10 years ago, CMS/TCMS v3 was developed in the last 2 years.

Q233 (2022): Currently there are two running versions of the Case Management System in the judicial system of Bosnia and Herzegovina: -CMS v1 was developed more than 10 years ago,
-CMS v2 was developed between 2 and 5 years ago.
Both versions are used on the same database.
Q234 (2025): It is planned to completely shut down CMS/TCMS v1 during 2026.
It is planned to transfer from Oracle 11g to Oracle 19c database.

Q234 (2024): It is planned to completely shut down CMS/TCMS v1 and CMS/TCMS v2 during 2025.
Q234 (2023): CMS/TCMS v3 is based on a new WEB technologies and has been tested in 7 judiciary institutions from September to December 2023. The full-scale implementation will take place in 2024.
Q234 (2022): The new version of the Case Management System (version 3.0) will be tested in several courts and prosecutors' offices during 2023. It is based on new WEB technologies. The full-scale implementation of the new version of the Case Management System will take place in 2024.

Q01a (General Comment): The High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina has deployed the System for electronic filing of enforcement and small claims cases in all of the first instance courts (i.e. civil cases), that use it to register the new cases and receive documentation in the existing cases the utility companies submit electronically. It is important to note that the cases may be transferred from the System to the general case management system in courts, if certain procedural requirements have been met. However, the use of the System is optional for utility companies. Accordingly, the utility companies in certain local communities are yet to begin to send cases to the courts electronically.

Deployment Rate_ reasoning: As for 2025, all 61 competent courts in Bosnia and Herzegovina have the aforementioned System. The number of new court cases registered through the System in the reporting year was 104 925. The number of pending cases in the System at the end of 2025 was 1 201 870. Bearing in mind that the total number of new relevant cases received in the courts of first instance was 1 061 543 in 2025 (i.e. Q52, Civil + Non litigious cases), the deployment rate was 10% (i.e. 1-25%). Usage Rate_ reasoning: 43 (i.e. 70%) courts out of the aforementioned number of first instance courts registered new cases and/or received documentation in the existing cases using the System. Consequently, the usage rate was 50-75%.

Q04a (General Comment): The electronic consultation of court case files for the parties is possible in civil and administrative matters. The High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina approves the requests of parties in court cases for the issuance of a uniform access code. Detailed requirements for issuing the code are prescribed by the Rulebook on the Case Management System in Courts, which is adopted by the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina. The code can be used in the Online Case Access Module to get case information. The access through the Module is available to parties in court proceedings and their lawyers. The Module can be accessed through the website of the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina. In addition, lawyers can also use the mobile app to access cases in which they represent their clients. This is an official app developed by the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina. If the parties have multiple cases in the courts, they must apply for a single access code for each of these cases, but they are provided with a possibility to create a user account that allows access to all these cases in one place. The same possibility is given to lawyers for all civil and administrative cases in which they represent their clients.

Q07b (General Comment): Interoperability with other systems: There is an interoperability function between the Case Management System and the database of the Agency for Identification Documents, Registers and Data Exchange of Bosnia and Herzegovina, through which the two systems are connected ensuring exchange of data between police agencies and courts. Namely, courts, when registering new cases, take the personal data of the parties in those cases from the database of the Agency for Identification Documents, Registers and Data Exchange of Bosnia and Herzegovina, if the information on Unique Master Citizen Number of the parties in new cases is available to them. This information is then automatically displayed in the Case Management System. In this way, data from the official register for citizens in Bosnia and Herzegovina are registered into the Case Management System.

Q08a (General Comment): Writing tools are consisted of two groups of templates of various legal documents that can be used by judges, prosecutors and other staff (i.e. users) at the judicial institutions: (i) templates with headers and case details, which also include auto-generated text, and (ii) templates with headers and case details. Considering the needs of judges, prosecutors, and other staff it is estimated that that templates of 50 – 75% of relevant documents are made available in the Case Management System for all the users. As for the usage rate, it is estimated that 50-75% of users are using the available templates. The templates are developed by the judges and prosecutors selected by the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina. The templates are integrated into the Case Management System. The use of templates is optional.

Q10a (2025): There are two national databases where court decisions are published: 1. Database of court decisions accessible online: https://portalfo1.pravosudje.ba/vstvfo/B/142/kategorije-vijesti/141/simple, which focuses primarily on publication of selected decisions of all court levels, focusing on cases of public interest. 2. "Case-law portal", accessible online https://sudskapraksa.pravosudje.ba/, which focuses primarily on publication of selected decisions of highest instance courts, focusing on cases that impacts case-law.
All publication is done in line with the Guidelines for publication of judicial decisions, acts and information about cases which was issued by High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina and the Rulebook for court decisions' publication issued by the Ministry of Justice of Republika Srpska.

Q10b (2025): Additional internal databases exist within various courts, but not on national level.
Q10c (2025): Database called "Case-law portal" also contain legal stances of courts of highest instances in addition to their selected court decisions.
Database called "Database of court decisions" contain summaries of war crimes cases and cases of high corruption, publicly accessible through the Map of court cases of public interest: https://mapepredmeta.pravosudje.ba/?lang=E.

Q11b (General Comment): In the judicial system of Bosnia and Herzegovina, an Information System for Reporting and Decision Support (hereinafter: SIPO) is in use. The SIPO system provides support to court presidents in proactively managing courts, with the goal of ensuring more efficient, higher-quality, and more reliable use of statistical data through improved statistical reports. SIPO is designed to integrate data from all information systems used within the judiciary of Bosnia and Herzegovina (CMS/TCMS, HRMIS, SOKOP). Reports can be generated incomparably faster and more securely than from the databases in which they were originally created, ensuring consistency of reports produced by various institutions within the justice sector. In addition, the system facilitates stronger cooperation and information exchange with institutions operating within the justice sector, as well as with the media and other public and non-profit organizations, thereby increasing transparency in the work of the judiciary. Another major advantage of the SIPO system is the ability to generate pre-prepared reports and automatically deliver them to a predefined location (e-mail address) at a predetermined time. In this way, the system ensures not only the accuracy and quality of the information provided to judicial management, but also the timeliness of its delivery, which is a key factor in the effective management of judicial institutions. Other statistical indicators systematically calculated based on the available data are Most of the data recorded in the aforementioned information systems used in the judiciary of Bosnia and Herzegovina can be processed within the SIPO system. These include, among others: implementation of the plan for resolving old cases, calculation of the achievement of the indicative norm, predicted timeframes for case resolution, statute of limitations, inheritance cases referred to notaries, finality of decisions, unresolved cases, records of criminal proceedings, discrimination cases in first-instance courts, overview of cases assigned to judges working with legal associates, overview of cases assigned to independent legal associates, cases with or without a decision etc.
Additionally, the HJPC BiH developed a website where the public can monitor the Overall Efficiency Indicators, Efficiency, Human and Budgetary Resources, Quality Indicators, and Quality Indicators by Case Type for all courts in Bosnia and Herzegovina (https://public.tableau.com/app/profile/hjpc/viz/DashboardsHJPCBH_17473883136560/1-OverallEfficiencyindicator)

Q52 (2025): In the reporting period, a decrease in incoming cases compared to the previous year was observed, while the number of resolved cases remained at a high level, leading to a reduction in the number of pending cases at the end of the period.
As regards administrative cases, the Administrative Court of Montenegro started a project for faster case resolution within the EUROL 4 program, supported by the European Union. The project focuses on resolving old cases, especially cases related to “administrative silence”, improving court efficiency, and digitalizing court procedures.
In November 2025, the Court introduced a new application for faster case processing, in cooperation with the Secretariat of the Judicial Council. The application uses prepared decision templates and automatically transfers data from the Judicial Information System, which reduces administrative work and saves time.
The new system has made the whole process faster, from preparing decisions to electronic processing and sending documents. This project shows the Court’s commitment to improving efficiency and ensuring citizens receive justice within a reasonable time.
As a result, 5% of all cases resolved during the year were completed within two months.
The reported figures may present minor deviations from the standard CEPEJ case-flow formula (pending cases at the end of the year = pending cases at the beginning of the year + incoming cases − resolved cases) due to cases that were delegated or transferred to other competent courts during the reference year. Such transfers affect the number of pending cases and may therefore result in small discrepancies in horizontal consistency checks.

Q52 (2024): The issue with high number of administrative cases is as it is already known is related to the high number of law suits related to the application of the Law on Free Access to Public Information. For the "silence of administration" upon the freedom of information request, the law suit can be filed before Administrative court. Also for negative responses of public authorities in terms of reasons for decisions not providing an information upon the request. Alos, there are organizations filing massive numbers of law suits to the Administrative court.
Q52 (2023): The issue with increase of administrative cases is as it is already known is related to the high number of law suits related to the application of the Law on Free Access to Public Information. For the "silence of administration" upon the freedom of information request, the law suit can be filed before Administrative court. Also for negative responses of public authorities in terms of reasons for decisions not providing an information upon the request. Alos, there are organisations filing massive numbers of law suits to the Administrative court.
Q52 (2022): comments as in sections.
The significant increase if administrative cases is predominantly generated due to the high number of initiated cases before the Administrative Court against the decisions of the public authorities. This is also related to the application of the Law on Free Access to Information and there have been high number of requests towards the authorities (institutions) for free access to information which ended by decisions against which the complaints are not allowed or there have been requests which remained unanswered, the institution did not decide on request or complaint in the administrative procedure. According to the Law on Administrative dispute, such or similar situations provide legal basis that administrative dispute may be initiated, which means a law suit to the Administrative court may be filed. In practice, many law suits were initiated by different subjects such as civil society organizations dealing with promotion of the right to free access to information, citizens or legal persons.
Q53 (2025): The observed increase in the number of resolved cases in first-instance criminal matters is primarily due to the higher inflow of cases, particularly in misdemeanour cases handled by specialised courts.
Category 3 (“Other criminal cases”) now includes only investigation judge cases registered under the “Kri” (Basic Courts) and “Kris” (Higher Court) case registers.
IPS cases from the Misdemeanour Courts were excluded from this category. “IPS” case registers relate to the execution/enforcement of misdemeanour sanctions and measures.
Category 2 (“Misdemeanour and/or minor criminal cases”) includes “Pp” case registers from the Misdemeanour Courts. “Pp” case registers refer to main misdemeanour cases handled by the Misdemeanour Courts.
Last year, IPS subjects were included. This year, based on the change of CEPEJ methodology, IPS subjects were excluded, and this has been implemented accordingly. The reported figures may present minor deviations from the standard CEPEJ case-flow formula (pending cases at the end of the year = pending cases at the beginning of the year + incoming cases − resolved cases) due to cases that were delegated or transferred to other competent courts during the reference year. Such transfers affect the number of pending cases and may therefore result in small discrepancies in horizontal consistency checks.

Q53 (2024): Other cases are Misdemeanor cases - Execution cases for misdemeanor (IPS)
Q53 (2023): reason that sum up numbers do not match is that certain number of cases were delegated, and there is no option to show it. (souce Judicial Coucil)
other criminal cases - Misdemeanor cases - Execution cases for misdemeanor (IPS) Q53 (2022): Higher inflow (number of received cases by misdemeanour courts due to the fact in practice that the subject with jurisdiction of issuing misdemeanour orders (fines) were using the legal possibility to initiate misdemeanour proceedings before the courts instead. That led to higher inflow of cases which reflected to the number of unresolved cases. This was mainly the issue related to the slowdown of public procurance system (major cyber attacks etc.) in the refence year and a lack of relevant forms for issuing misdemeanour orders (fines).

Q54 (2025): The observed increase in the number of resolved cases in second-instance civil casses is a result of the higher number of incoming cases during the reporting period.
The reported figures may present minor deviations from the standard CEPEJ case-flow formula (pending cases at the end of the year = pending cases at the beginning of the year + incoming cases − resolved cases) due to cases that were delegated or transferred to other competent courts during the reference year. Such transfers affect the number of pending cases and may therefore result in small discrepancies in horizontal consistency checks.
Q54 (2023): These are different types execution cases, execution of payments, cases upon constitutional appeal in commercial cases etc.
Decreasing number of resolved is a general issue, because of higher inflow of cases and same or less capacities.
Q54 (2022): higher inflow of cases in 2022
Q55 (2025): The increase in resolved cases in second-instance criminal matters is linked to a higher inflow of cases during the reporting period, which also resulted in a higher number of pending cases at the end of the period.
The reported figures may present minor deviations from the standard CEPEJ case-flow formula (pending cases at the end of the year = pending cases at the beginning of the year + incoming cases − resolved cases) due to cases that were delegated or transferred to other competent courts during the reference year. Such transfers affect the number of pending cases and may therefore result in small discrepancies in horizontal consistency checks.
Q55 (2022): During 2021 the High Court in Podgorica operated with 6 judges less. In the same year there were no new appointments to fill the missing judicial positions in the court. That affected the efficiency of the court, which is the one with the highest number of criminal cases in the second instance.
Q56 (2022): By decision of the Judicial Council in August 2021, the function of the acting president and 5 judges of the Supreme Court ended, so the Supreme Court at the end of 2021 remained with 6 judges out of 19 (including president). This situation significantly affected workload and as a consequence the backlog of cases increased.
Q57 (2022): section 2. does not include misdemeanour cases, no such cases before Supreme Court
Other cases can be: cases upon requests to expedite the proceedings (the control request) and a claim for just satisfaction, cases of solving issues of jurisdiction etc.
Q60 (2025): An increase in the average length of proceedings is observed in both the first instance (from 391 to 490 days) and the overall duration (from 399 to 511 days).
This corresponds to an increase of approximately 25% and 28%.
The increase is mainly due to a higher proportion of older and more complex cases being resolved during the reporting period, as well as cases processed

Q62-a (2025): The displayed data refer to known adult, minor and legal entities perpetrators. Numbers 1,2,3 and 4 are shown by cases. Number 3.1,3.1.1,3.1.2,3.1.3,3.2 and 3.3 are shown by persons/ perpetrators. Prosecutors make decisions by perpetrators in cases where there are more than one perpetrator, and those decisions may be different by perpetrator.
Q62-c (2024): Source: According to the data from Annual Work Report by Prosecutorial Council
3.3. indictments and plea bargains that go to court
3.2 includes opportunity
Note: since having only these categories filled, 3.1.4 has been calculated the rest of cases, ensuring vertical consistency
These figures refer to the number of perpetrators rather than the number of cases.
Q62-c (2023): Some PPO offices in points 3.1 3.1.1, 3.1.2, 3.1.3 and 3.1.4 provided data on reported persons because they were not able to differentiate data as requested in the questionnaire. That is one of the reasons number do not sum up.

Q63-0 (General Comment): Constitution of Montenegro
STATE PROSECUTION
Status and responsibility
Article 134
The State Prosecution shall be a unique and independent state authority that performs the affairs of prosecution of the perpetrators of criminal offenses and other punishable acts who are prosecuted ex officio.

Q63-0 (2025): Article 134 of the Constitution of Montenegro provides that the State Prosecutor's Office is a unified and independent state body responsible for prosecuting perpetrators of criminal offences and other punishable acts prosecuted ex officio.
Q63 (2025): According to the Criminal Procedure Code, the State Prosecutor directs the investigation and issues an order for the conduct of an investigation where there are reasonable grounds to suspect that a criminal offence has been committed. The police act upon the orders of the State Prosecutor, collect evidence and undertake investigative actions. The investigating judge decides on the imposition of coercive measures (such as detention and searches).
The State Prosecutor plays a central role in the pre-investigation and investigation phases of criminal proceedings. The prosecutor is competent for the prosecution of perpetrators of criminal offences prosecuted ex officio and directs the proceedings. In this capacity, the State Prosecutor directs and supervises the work of the police and other competent authorities in the pre-investigation phase, adopts decisions on the initiation and conduct of investigations, undertakes evidentiary actions, decides on the deferral of criminal prosecution or the dismissal of criminal complaints, concludes plea agreements, and files and represents indictments or charging proposals before the competent court.
The police and other state authorities (such as customs and tax authorities, military police and others) participate in the detection of criminal offences and their perpetrators, undertake actions within the pre-investigation phase and act upon the binding orders of the State Prosecutor. Except in urgent circumstances, they are obliged to notify the State Prosecutor prior to undertaking such actions and to act in accordance with the prosecutor's instructions.
At this stage, the court does not decide on criminal liability, but participates through the judicial control of the legality of specific procedural actions, particularly by deciding on measures that interfere with fundamental rights and freedoms (for example detention and special investigative measures), in accordance with the law.
Accordingly, prior to trial, criminal proceedings are conducted under the direction of the State Prosecutor, with operational activities carried out by the police and other competent authorities, and with judicial oversight ensuring the legality of the most significant procedural measures.
The investigating judge decides on detention and other measures involving human rights matters

Q230 (2025): The overall ICT strategy for the judiciary is available via the referenced links. The current Judiciary ICT Strategy covers the period 2025–2028 (2024 is not part of the current action plan and strategy doc). The latest official English translation will is provided by the Ministry of Justice :

Q230 (2024): Currently document only in Montenegrin

Q230 (2022): https://www.gov.me/dokumenta/7af1b58d-a6aa-4e62-8de2-75979dd42d0c
Judicial Council remark: This plan's main activity is building the new information system called - ISP (abbreviation for information system of Judiciary - in Montenegrin, "Informacioni Sistem Pravosuđa"). Due to the delays and problems with the company selected on the tender to build the system, we have decided to cancel the contract with them and search for other options. We were forced on this because they failed to deliver parts of the system and documentation on time, even after many prolongations and compromises from our side.
Q231 (2025): There is only one CMS in use.
Q233 (2025): The CMS was originally developed more than 15 years ago. The most recent major update was carried out in 2024–2025, when we added a large number of reports and parameters and developed additional modules within the existing CMS for misdemeanor courts, including their reporting and templating functionality.
Q234 (2025): Regarding changes within the existing CMS, the planned activities are primarily security-focused and aligned with 2026 requirements. This would include upgrading application server and database versions, performing data transformation/migration, and potentially adjusting parts of the database relational model. Major changes are planned for other supporting subsystems used to support and optimize user processes.
Q234 (2024): We are improving the existing case management system by cleaning up existing data, adding new automated reports for court users, and introducing additional metadata about processes and phases. This helps us track quality and increase transparency across the judiciary.
Internally, we have developed a new module for handling misdemeanour cases. This module went live on 9 January 2025, and training sessions for staff in the respective courts began on the same date. Currently, the Higher Misdemeanour Court and the Misdemeanour Court in Budva (including branch offices in Bar and Ulcinj) have gone live with the new system. We plan to continue the rollout on a week-by-week basis to other branch offices in the south (under Budva's jurisdiction), followed by the northern region (Bijelo Polje and its branch offices), and ultimately the central region, aiming for full coverage of all Misdemeanour Courts. The functionality for random case assignment is already operational in courts where the new system is active.
We are encountering several challenges: limited staffing (only two ICT staff members within the Secretariat of the Judicial Council are responsible for user training across the entire country, encompassing 17 Misdemeanour Courts), no approved budget yet for additional engagement of external trainers or staff, outdated hardware in some courts, and a shortfall in administrative personnel that delays certain processes. Despite these obstacles, the rollout is ongoing, and we expect further improvements in efficiency and user adoption as the system continues to be implemented throughout the judiciary.
After achieving full coverage, we plan to update the entire system to the latest version of our technology stack. Additionally, due to staffing shortages in many courts, it remains difficult to collect and process historical (cause they need to collect around 50.000 data for cases) data for unresolved cases as of 1 January 2025. Once these data are gathered, however, we will be able to provide automated reporting functionality for Misdemeanour Courts—similar to the level already in place for regular courts.

Q234 (2023): Update of current system planned in 2024. Significant changes to the current IT system in the judiciary are planned with the implementation of PRIS version 2. This update will feature cleansed data, enhanced reporting capabilities, and the integration of misdemeanor courts. The new system is expected to become operational by the first quarter of 2025 at the latest.

Q01a (2025): Electronic submission of cases is currently not available. The e-submission project is planned to be enabled in 2027: the system development is scheduled to be completed by the end of 2026, and production deployment is expected to start during 2027. Therefore, deployment and usage rates are not applicable at this time.
Q04a (2025): Online case consultation for external users is in the final testing phase and preparation of public-facing templates/forms. Usage rates are not yet available; after deployment we plan promotion activities and aim for high uptake in the first two years (targeting >50% usage, subject to rollout and adoption).

Q07c (2025): PRIS, the Judicial Information System, is a centralized case management system used in Montenegro and serves as the main tool supporting the daily work of all courts. The system is established in 100% of courts and provides a unified, standardized and efficient approach to the registration, processing, monitoring and archiving of cases. PRIS is used to manage all processes, from the receipt of the initial filing and case creation, through the assignment of cases to judges and the recording of all procedural actions and decisions, up to the final resolution and archiving of cases. The system enables continuous monitoring of the work of judges and the status of cases, thereby contributing to greater efficiency, transparency and quality of judicial work.
PRIS supports the random allocation of cases in accordance with established rules and procedures. It enables the identification and tracking of cases through different procedural stages, electronic document management, access to active and closed cases, advanced search capabilities, as well as the maintenance of user activity records through secured log files.
The system also supports the preparation of statistical reports, analytical overviews and other data necessary for monitoring court performance, resource management and decision-making based on relevant indicators. In addition, PRIS enables the exchange and use of data with other relevant information systems, in accordance with legal and technical requirements, thereby improving procedural efficiency and reducing the need for multiple data entries.
The system's deployment rate is assessed at 100%, as PRIS is implemented in all courts in Montenegro. The usage rate is also assessed at 100%, given that case registration, allocation, processing, monitoring and management are carried out through this system as an integral part of the courts' daily operations.
The functionalities indicated in questions 07-b and 07-c correspond to the functionalities currently available within PRIS and are used on a daily basis in the work of the courts. In this way, PRIS represents a key instrument of digitalisation of the judiciary in Montenegro and significantly contributes to more efficient case management, improved organisation of work and the overall strengthening of the effectiveness of the judicial system.

Q08a (2025): Writing assistance tools are not yet in production. Following the procurement of a server in December 2025, we are developing models/tools for this purpose. Templates exist, but we treat templating separately (not as writing assistance). Deployment and usage rates are not applicable yet.
Q10a (General Comment): In the CMS are stored all court decisions except those from misdemeanor courts. However, it should be noted that at the website of courts final judgements are published, and with with anonymization. So it is about percentage of final decisions. It is also important to know that some types of court decisions are not published regardless of anonymization, e.g. decision on minors and similar categories with the privacy sensitive aspects.
The percentage of decisions published bz the supreme court is around 85%
Q10b (General Comment): fter becoming final, anonymized judgements are published at the website https://sudovi.me/sdvi/odluke available on search.

Q11b (2025): PRIS, the Judicial Information System in Montenegro, is an integrated platform that includes reporting and statistical functionalities enabling the analysis of court case data. Statistical data is generated based on information recorded in the case management system and is used for monitoring court performance, workload distribution and efficiency indicators. Statistical tools are deployed in all courts, covering 100% of registries and cases, as well as the overall functioning of the courts. This high level of deployment reflects the fact that statistical reporting is an integral part of the court information system and is routinely used in daily operations and institutional reporting. The system enables the generation of predefined statistical reports and, to a certain extent, customised reports according to user needs. Statistical outputs are mainly available through internal reporting functionalities and dashboards linked to the case management system. Data is automatically consolidated at the national level, ensuring consistent reporting across all courts. The data available for statistical analysis includes key performance indicators such as case flow, including incoming, resolved and pending cases, the age of pending cases, the length of proceedings, the number of hearings, the number of cases per judge, case distribution and workload indicators, as well as information on procedural outcomes and appeals. Statistical reporting is based on real-time data, ensuring reliable monitoring of judicial efficiency and case management trends. These tools are used for internal analysis, institutional reporting and strategic planning within the judicial system.

Q52 (2025): 4. Other cases - Liquidation and bankruptcy cases. The inconsistency of the Pending cases on 1 Jan. 2025 administrative cases with the Pending cases on 31 Dec.previous year is the result of the following: until the completion of the questionnaire from the previous cycle (data for 2024), the data were processed semi-automatically (the process was partially digitalized). As of 2024, the Judicial Council introduced a module for a fully automated process of collecting statistic for all types of cases, and during the previous cycle this module was in a testing phase. During that testing period, a technical error occurred in a specific category of administrative cases (public procurement cases — either backlog cases from 2023 or incoming cases in 2024 amounting to 600 cases).This inconsistency has continued into the current year as well (although this year the module within ACCMIS is functioning fully).
The number of incoming non litigious cases has decreased because, before 2025, the possibility for legalization of vessels and other means of transport was discontinued, and in 2025 the court did not process this type of cases.
Q52 (2024): Category 2.2.3. Other Registry cases consists cases for registration of political parties.
Q52 (2023): Category 2.2.3. Other Registry cases consists cases for registration of political parties.
Pending cases increased as a result of big number of incoming cases the previous year.
Q52 (2022): Category 1. In 2022 there were still Covid-19 effects on the proceedings before the courts. In the second part of the year, at 1-st of July 2022 started high number of retirements of the judges (see also new general comment to Q 104). Judicial Council on 1 July 2022 adopted a Conclusion for termination of the judicial office of 42 judges due to new condition for age retirement, the age of 64 years as a new compulsory age for retirement in North Macedonia, according to the new amendments in article 104 of the Labor Relation law. Category 2.2.3. Other Registry cases are cases for registration of political parties.
Q53 (2023): Pending cases increased due to the low clearance rate last year as a result of insufficient number of judges
Q53 (2022): Category 2. Please, see also the comment for Q 35. High number of judge retirements in 2022 caused by new compulsory age of retirement probably is the reason for higher number of unsolved cases. Also, in 2023 we are expecting more retirements of judges due to this reason.

Q54 (2025): The reason for increase of the incoming civil and commercial cases in 2025 is result of increased efficiency of first instance courts in 2024 compared to 2023 (36960 in 2023 and 38156 in 2024) as a result of new appointed first instance judges from the rank of the candidates form the Academy. These causes increasement of appeals in 2024 as a result of increased resolved first instance civil cases in 2024 comparing to 2023.
As regards administrative cases, the increase of Disposition Time is a result of a rapid increase of cases (backlog) at the end of 2024 and low CR. The increase in cases at the end of 2024 is the result of the non-implementation of the High Administrative Court conclusion regarding the amount of the costs in proceedings by the lower court, which has led to a higher number of appeals.
At the same time, the low CR is a result of an insufficient number of judges in the High Administrative Court.
Q54 (2024): The increase in the number of pending cases is result of insufficient number of judges.
Q54 (2023): Law clearance rate for civil and administrative cases is a result of insufficient number of judges.
Q54 (2022): Category 1 - In 2022 there was no reason for larger number of income cases as it was in 2021 (see explanation in previous cycle).

Q55 (2025): Reason for the increase of Pending cases on 1 Jan. ref. year (severe criminal cases) is constatnt increase of incoming caces in 2025 and 2024 in comparison to 2023.

Q55 (2024): The reduction in the number of pending cases is the result of new appointed judges which resulted with high clearance rate (above 100%)
Q55 (2023): Law clearance rate from previous year for severe criminal cases is a result of insufficient number of judges.
Q55 (2022): Category 1. In 2022, we still had some negative effects from Covid -19 virus on the proceedings before courts.
Q56 (General Comment): Other cases - According to the Law on Courts, the Supreme Court decides on cases related to the length of the procedure before national courts prior parties' submission of an application to the European Court of Human Rights.
Q56 (2022): Other cases - According to the Law on Courts, the Supreme Court decides on cases related to the length of the procedure before national courts prior parties' submission of an application to the European Court of Human Rights. Such kind of resolved cases in 2022 in the Supreme Court increased as a result of the action undertaken by the Supreme Court aimed to decrease its backlog. Namely, judges dealing with these cases gave them priority in deciding.
Q57 (General Comment): Supreme Court deals with misdemeanor cases only upon the request for protection of legality and requests for repetition of the criminal procedure. However, the number of this kind of cases is negligible.
Q57 (2025): In general, it is not justified to compare the performance data of the Supreme Court for 2025 with the latest available data from the CEPEJ Questionnaire for 2022, for two reasons: first, there is a significant temporal gap between the two datasets (2022 and 2025); and second, the 2022 court performance data are not suitable for comparison due to the case backlog imbalance arising as a consequence of the COVID-19 crisis.
Q57 (2022): The main reason for the decrease of -34.43 % for incoming severe criminal cases compared to 2020 is the decreased number of cases brought to the courts by public prosecutors Q 107 (from 14.161 cases in 2020 to 10.374 cases in 2022). Also, in CORONA years work of the courts was reduced. As a result of that, a few years after there was a decrease of appeals and extraordinary legal remedies before the Supreme Court.
Q60 (2025): Until now, these data were calculated manually by the courts. Starting this year, a new tool has been introduced in the software application for their automatic calculation. Additionally, the results in this reporting cycle are calculated using a new formula that provides a fully accurate picture of the duration of proceedings.

Q60 (2022): It must be emphasized that the data are collected manually from the ICT system in all courts within North Macedonia. After that, the data are calculated manually in the courts and in the Ministry of justice (Excel calculation). Some of data are only from one court (for example: 130 days at first instance - trading in influence cases). 2/27 from courts didn't answer correctly to the tables, so 2 courts are excluded from calculations. According to this, the collection of data for these questions is without guarantees for total accuracy.

Q62-a (2025): Presented data are not on the category of cases but offenders.

3.1.3 Discontinued for other reasons -

Q62-c (2024): Presented data are not on the category of cases but offenders.

This year we have available date for Penal warrant and indictment for children. Therefore we included this number in the category of resolved cases (Penal warrant-4345+ indictment 1188 + indictment application-4501+indictment for children-669=10703).

This year under the category „offender could not be identified“ we put NAP due to the fact that in our legal system these cases are ongoing and not discontinued. However, we count this cases under the category incoming cases/ 4546 as unknown offender.

Q62-c (2023): Presented data are not on the category of cases but offenders.

Q63 (2025): According to the Law on Criminal Procedure, the investigative procedure is conducted by the competent public prosecutor, with the judicial police at his disposal. Q230 (2024): The last ICT Strategy for judiciary covered the period 2019-2024, currently the ICT Council at the Ministry of Justice is preparing a new ICT Strategy for judiciary 2025-2030

Q230 (2023): The strategy for ICT in the judiciary was adopted in 2019 for the time period of 2019-2024.
The strategy expired in 2024. It is still being implemented, and this year, the Council for ICT in the Judiciary will start a procedure for adopting a new strategy for the next 5 years, as well as new revised operational plan.
At this moment there is no new strategy and no new operational plan.
During 2023, according to the operational plan for digitization in the judiciary, a complete change of the CMS system is planned with the introduction of a new modern and integrated system of management and movement of cases, which will be compatible with the new software, and new applications will be created at the same time namely, an application for issuing certificates from criminal records, for issuing certificates from misdemeanor records, creation of the E-delivery platform, which will establish full two-way communication between the courts and all parties, i.e. state authorities and institutions, development of the platform for a mobile application, which will enable unhindered access of the parties to the electronic file of the case, as well as the creation of web services with 12 state organs and institutions.
According to the operational plan and the provided budget funds, the Court Budget Council has created a plan and program with dynamics and necessary financial resources for the digitization of the courts in 2023, namely:
1. Upgrade and installation of the Femida True Records system for audio recording in civil courts and audio-video recording in criminal courts.
- upgrade means the installation of Femida True Records or SRS Femida software, based on an existing Femida license installed on a computer in the courts (through previous purchases), regardless of whether it is currently in operation or not;
- a new license implies the installation of Femida True Records or SRS Femida software on an additional number of computers, which are not included in the number of existing licenses in the courts.
2. Procurement and replacement of hardware equipment for the courts – 410 computers.
3. Current maintenance of the hardware and software for the operation of the ACMISS system and the equipment for issuing certificates from criminal records.
4.Upgrade and ongoing maintenance of centralized hardware and system software for centralized backup/restore of the court database.
5. Restoration of Kaspersky Anti-virus and Trend Micro inter Scan messaging for personal computer protection in the court system and Gateway virus protection in the Supreme Court of RNM.
6. Ongoing maintenance of software for recording events by collating logs from ICT devices located in the Supreme Court of the RNM.
Creation of a mobile application for access to the electronic file of the case - a service for reviewing the files in the case by the parties in the procedure. Service for a complete review of a court case by the parties in the case (prosecutors, lawyers and all involved parties, natural and legal persons). Web Portal and mobile application through which each of the parties after prior authentication (service for identification of persons at the MIOA state level) can view all data and acts in the case that are available to the parties. DETAILED DESCRIPTION OF THE SERVICE AND BASIC FEATURES
Possibility for reviewing of all data and documents from the court case for the participants in the case from the court web portal and mobile application.

Q230 (2022): The strategy for ICT in the judiciary was adopted in 2019 for the time period of 2019-2024.
Digitization, digital transformation and the increasing development of information technology inevitably led to it being integrated in all the pores of the justice system, and especially in the last 2 years, through digital transformation in all courts and public prosecutor's offices by developing new web pages for the courts, with hardware and software for audio recording, system for audio visual recording, electronic issuance of documents, creation of web services, software development and case management, as well as platforms for two-way communication between the courts and the parties and access to the electronic file of the case.
Given that the strategy has a time period until 2024, it is still being implemented, and this year, the Council for ICT in the Judiciary will start a procedure for adopting a new strategy for the next 5 years, as well as new revised operational plan.
At this moment there is no new strategy and no new operational plan.

Q234 (2024): Within the framework of the prosecution office, a project for a completely new CMS has been launched. In this regard, multi-layered in-depth investigations have been carried out in the field and an analysis of the functioning and functionality of the existing system has been made. It has been concluded that it is outdated and cannot be upgraded, but a completely new system is needed that will satisfy modern communication flows with other state bodies as well as the court, and will enable both a rapid flow of information and the purposeful preservation of data as a Register and meta data from each criminal case separately, regardless of which Register the case is entered into, with the possibility of horizontal and vertical movement of the case. Given that it is a joint project of the state and the EU, supported by the EU Rule of Law Mission, it has an international character and a short listing has been prepared for companies that would participate in the procedure, with an announcement for international companies to be able to participate in it. It is expected to be used in production in 2027.

Serbia
Q52 (2025): The increase in the number of pending cases older than two years (+52.61%), despite a slight decrease in the total number of pending cases (–4.15%), is primarily due to the extreme influx of newly filed cases in 2022 and 2023. In those years, the Administrative Court received more cases than all four Appellate Courts combined (63,534 in 2022 and 78,017 in 2023), while the number of judges was significantly lower than necessary. The insufficient number of judges and court staff could not handle this influx, which consequently led to the accumulation of older cases that later entered the statistics of pending cases older than two years.
A significant increase in the number of resolved cases, which is 36,05% higher compared to 2024, and a decrease in the total number of pending cases by 4.15% in the most recent period, is directly related to the increase in the number of judges in the Administrative Court (from 46 in 2024 to 58 in 2025).
In addition to strengthening human resources, in 2025 the Administrative Court adopted the Backlog Reduction Programme for 2025, in line with the Uniform Backlog Reduction Programme in the Republic of Serbia 2021–2025. During the implementation of the Programme, measures and techniques were applied to more successfully resolve backlog cases and prevent their occurrence by accelerating court proceedings.
Within this program, the following measures were undertaken:
• old cases were given priority,
• a Team for Reducing the Backlog Cases was established,
• the Procedure for drafting pilot decisions in groups of cases (customs, tax, etc.) was applied, with initial acts from 2023, 2024, and 2025 (by plaintiff and defendant); judicial panels were tasked with drafting decisions in the oldest cases of each group to enable more efficient resolution of the remaining cases in the group,
• the court statistician kept special records and regularly reported to the President of the Court and the Team for Reducing the Backlog Cases on the trends of backlog cases,
• presidents of chambers, in accordance with the Backlog Reduction Programme for 2025, prepared individual programs for case resolution.
These measures made it possible to increase efficiency, accelerate proceedings, and reduce the overall number of pending cases, while at the same time significantly increasing the number of resolved cases.

Q52 (2024): According to the available statistical data, the significant decrease in the number of incoming cases before the Administrative Court can primarily be attributed to the so-called Uću cases—lawsuits initiated due to the silence of the administration, most frequently against the Republic Pension and Disability Insurance Fund.
In 2023, the Administrative Court received a total of 78 017 cases, of which 61 794 were Uću cases.
In 2024, the number of incoming cases dropped to 42 741, including 27 113 Uću cases.
This substantial reduction indicates that the competent administrative bodies have improved their responsiveness, managing to resolve submitted requests within the legal timeframes and thereby preventing the need for litigation due to administrative silence.
However, the issue related to the implementation of the Law on Free Access to Information of Public Importance remains unchanged, as no amendments have yet been made to the relevant legislation.

Q52 (2023): Official informations obtained by the Supreme Court Q52 (2022): 1.The lower number of incoming cases in 2022 is primarily explained by the decrease inflows in civil and commercial cases in basic and commercial courts. During 2019, 2020 and 2021 there was a large number of specific type of cases related to the costs of bank loans. After supplementing the legal position of the Supreme Court of Cassation from September 16, 2021, number of these cases gradually decreases. However, due to the mentioned repetitive cases (litigation for reimbursement of costs bank loans), courts were unable to handle such a large influx from the previous year (regardless of the fact that the inflow in 2022 was lower), so the number of pending cases also increased.
2.1.The Supreme Court of Cassation paid special attention to the problem of pending backlog enforcement cases, since in the previous period they affected the efficiency of the courts.
Exceptional results were achieved through the cooperation of the Supreme Court of Cassation, the High Court Council and the Ministry of Justice, with the additional help of the IPA 2012 Projects
“Improving Judicial Efficiency in the Republic of Serbia”, “EU for Serbia – Support to the Supreme Court of Cassation” and “EU for Serbia – Support to the High Court Council”, in the period from 2016 to the end of 2022 in the reduction of pending backlog court cases, and especially pending backlog
IV cases in basic courts.
2.3. In this group of cases, the number of cases related to the trial in within a reasonable time (the number of complaints filed under the Law on the Protection of Rights to trial within a reasonable time) was decreased. .
3. Administrative cases: There is no special explanation, the Administrative Court has more incoming cases and the same number of resolved cases as in previous few years.

Q53 (2025): Please note that in accordance with the new explanatory no cases are reported under 3. OTHER CASES. However, the registers listed below must also be mentioned, as they significantly affect the workload of judges (143,531 incoming cases and 143,655 resolved). Although, according to the Explanatory note, they do not constitute investigative cases in court, they nevertheless account for a considerable number of cases within the courts of Serbia.

Q53 (2024): Following the CEPEJ clarification, the figures initially submitted under Q38 were revised. Administrative acts (e.g. issuance of certificates, parole procedures) previously included in the total number of criminal cases have now been excluded in compliance with the CEPEJ methodology.
Q53 (2023): Official information obtained by the Supreme Court
According to the CEPEJ methodology we we excluded the requested category of misdemeanor cases
Q53 (2022): All answers were provided by the competent institution (Supreme Court of Cassation)

Q54 (General Comment): Courts deciding in the second instance (on appeal) in the "non-criminal" cases, as courts of general jurisdiction are: Higher courts: they decide upon the decisions in civil disputes and the judgment in small claims and the non-contentious proceedings.
Appellate courts: upon the decisions of higher courts and judgements of the basic courts in civil disputes unless deciding on appeals is not under the competence of higher court.
Commercial Court of Appeal: second instance commercial proceedings involving appeals, conflict and delegation of jurisdiction between commercial courts.
Misdemeanour Court of Appeal: proceedings involving appeals against first instance decisions of misdemeanour courts in cases related to whistle-blowers and conflict and delegation of jurisdiction between misdemeanour courts (cases not misdemeanour as such).
There is no second instance in administrative disputes.
With regard to "non-litigious cases", and more particularly "other non-litigious cases", it should be pointed out that, in 2015, amendments to the Law on the Court Organization and the new Law on Protection of the Right to a Trial within a Reasonable Time have shifted responsibility for protection of this right from the Constitutional Court to the courts of general and special jurisdiction.

Q54 (2025): The reason for the significant and continuous decrease in both incoming and resolved non-litigious cases at second instance is the reduced inflow of cases based on the implementation of the Law on the Protection of the Right to Trial within a Reasonable Time ("Official Gazette of RS", no. 40/2015 and 92/2023). The amendments to the Law on the Protection of the Right to Trial within a Reasonable Time and the Law on the Constitutional Court from 2023 have enabled a constitutional complaint to be filed, if the right to a trial within a reasonable time has been violated, in proceedings relating to the long duration of enforcement and bankruptcy proceedings conducted for the settlement of recognized or established claims in which the bankruptcy or enforcement debtor is a company with majority social or state capital, even if legal remedies have not been exhausted. This enables the Constitutional Court to decide on a violation of the right to a trial within a reasonable time in a single procedure. (This reform relates to the execution of the judgment in the group of cases "Kačapor and others v. Serbia" No. 2269/06; see the decision of the Committee of Ministers of the Council of Europe https://hudoc.exec.coe.int/?i=CM/Del/Dec(2025)1531/H46-35E).
Q54 (2022): 1.The lower number of incoming cases in second instance in 2022 is primarily explained by the decrease of incoming civil and commercial cases in basic and commercial courts. During 2019, 2020 and 2021 there was a large number of specific type of cases related to the costs of bank loans. After supplementing the legal position of the Supreme Court of Cassation from September 16, 2021, number of these cases gradually decreases. However, due to the mentioned repetitive cases (litigation for reimbursement of costs bank loans), second instance courts were unable to handle such a large influx from the previous year (regardless of the fact that the inflow in 2022 was lower), so the number cases increased.

Q55 (2025): Please note that in accordance with the new explanatory no cases are reported under 3. OTHER CASES. The registers listed below must also be mentioned, as they significantly affect the workload of judges in second instance criminal court (3,766 incoming cases and 3,769 resolved cases). Although, according to the Explanatory note, they do not constitute investigative cases in court, they nevertheless account for a considerable number of cases within the courts of Serbia.
Appellate courts:

Q57 (2022): Report on the work of the Supreme Court
Q60 (2025): The average length of proceedings is calculated on the annual basis, and it is determined based on the following formula:
number of pending cases at the end Average duration = _____ x 365 number of disposed cases during the year With regard to civil and commercial litigious cases, these comprise all those specified in question no. 52.1, 54.1 and 56.1, and the relevant registers may be consulted within the response to question no.58.
Regarding administrative cases (Q.no. 52.3 and 56.3), relevant registers may be consulted within the response to question no.58 (under administrative cases).
With regard to criminal cases (severe and misdemeanor), these comprise all those specified in question no. 53.1, 53.2; 55.1, 55.2; and 57.1, 57.2, and the relevant registers may be consulted within the response to question no.59.

Q60 (2024): As already stated in previous reports only data on the insolvency cases is available (according to the calculation of the Commercial Appellate Court). The notable decrease in the average duration of second-instance proceedings (41 days in the 2025 report compared to 52 days in the 2024 report) is primarily due to the resolution of several long-standing bankruptcy cases, some of which had been pending for more than 20 years.
These cases concerned former socially-owned enterprises (including banks) whose assets were located in various republics of the former SFRY. Since the Agreement on Succession Issues did not address this matter, bankruptcy proceedings against such entities could not be concluded for years before the Commercial Court of Appeal.
In 2023, the Supreme Court issued four legal opinions in the field of commercial law, which facilitated the resolution or suspension of a number of these long-pending cases (see: https://www.vrh.sud.rs/sr/2023-0). This had a direct impact on reducing the average duration of proceedings before the second-instance commercial court.
According to the CEPEJ formula:
In 2023: 396 cases were resolved and 56 remained pending → average duration: 51,61 days
In 2024: 351 cases were resolved and 39 remained pending → average duration: 40,55 days
Q60 (2023): As already stated in previous reports only data on the insolvency cases is available (according to the calculation of the Commercial Appellate Court)
Q62-a (2025): According to the Public Prosecution statistical reporting methodology, all data presented in this table reffer to number of known adult suspects/defendants, not to number of cases.
Please note that data presented in column 3.2. Concluded by a penalty or a measure imposed or negotiated by the public prosecutor were excluded from the column 3. Processed cases, since that data in already included in 3.3. Cases brought to court in order to avoid double counting of the same data.

Q62-c (2024): According to the Public Prosecution statistical reporting methodology, all data presented in this table refer to number of known adult suspects/defendants, and not to the number of cases.
Data presented in 3.2 "Concluded by a penalty or a measure imposed or negotiated by the public prosecutor" were excluded from the total of processed cases, since that data is already included in 3.3 "Cases brought to court" to avoid double counting.
Q62-c (2023): According to the Public Prosecution statistical reporting methodology, all data presented in this table reffer to number of known adult suspects/defendants, not to overall number of cases. Data presented in 3.2 "Concluded by a penalty or a measure imposed or negotiated by the public prosecutor" were excluded from the total of processed cases, since that data is already included in 3.3 "Cases brought to court" to avoid double counting.

Q63-0 (2022): Constitution of the Republic of Serbia, Article 155 (1): The Public Prosecutor's Office is a unique and independent state body that prosecutes perpetrators of criminal and other punishable acts and performs other responsibilities that protect the public interest determined by law.

Q63 (2025): The basic right and the basic duty of the public prosecutor is to prosecute the perpetrators of criminal offences. In the case of criminal offences prosecutable ex officio, the public prosecutor is authorised to: manage pre-investigation proceedings; decide on not undertaking or deferring criminal prosecution; conduct investigations; conclude plea agreements and agreements on giving testimony; file and represent an indictment before a competent court; abandon charges; file appeals against court decisions which are not final and submit extraordinary legal remedies against final court decisions; conduct other actions when specified by the Criminal Procedure Code.
Furthermore, all authorities participating in pre-investigation proceedings are obliged to act upon the requests of the public prosecutor and inform them of the actions taken.
The public prosecutor is obliged to protect the victim or witness from insults, threats, and any other attacks. Additionally, for a victim or witness who is particularly vulnerable due to age, life experience, lifestyle, gender, health status, the nature, manner, or consequences of the committed criminal offense, or other circumstances of the case, the public prosecutor may, ex officio or at the request of the parties or the victim or witness themselves, grant the status of especially vulnerable witness.

Q64 (2024): According to the Criminal Procedure Code, every plea agreement, wheather it`s concluded before or during the main trial, needs to be confirmed by the court and it is the only way to conclude the case by this procedure.
Information on number of guilty plea procedures reffer to number of suspects/defenfants who concluded plea agreements with the Public Prosecution which were confirmed by the court in 2023.
Please note that improsonment is foreseen as a sanction for every criminal act envisaged by the Criminal Code.
Depending on the gravity of criminal act, imprisonment is foreseen in defferent forms: as the only sanction, together with the money fine or alternatively to the money fine. For that reason, it is not possible to make a distinction between severe and misdemeanour/minor criminal case as described in the Explanatory note.

Q230 (General Comment): IT strategy was adopted by ICT Sectorial Council on February 4th 2022.
The document in English will be provided later.

Q230 (2025): There is one, but a new ICT strategy needs to be developed. The existing ICT does not have an English version.

Q231 (2025): There are AVP applications for the needs of the business processes of basic, higher, and commercial courts, the SAPS application for the needs of appellate courts, the Supreme Court, and the Administrative Court, and the SIPRES application for the needs of misdemeanor courts.

Q231 (2023): There are several ICT systems. The most represented is the AVP which is used in basic, higher, and commercial courts. This system is decentralized, and it has been in use for more than 10 years for the time being. On the other hand, CMS used by appellate courts, Administrative court and Supreme Court is called SAPS, and it is relatively newly developed. Also, misdemeanor courts are provided with SIPRES newest developed CMS.
The strategic act has foreseen rollout of SAPS called SUPER SAPS to replace old AVP in basic, higher, and commercial courts. It is important to emphasize that there are other applications for electronic communication with the courts such as eCOURT for administrative disputes, and eCOURT for enforcement proceedings before the commercial courts and enforcement agents. Public prosecutorial offices are using SAPO CMS.
Q231 (2022): In civil and commercial cases, parties can see the status of case online.
CMS is fully integrated in sense that it uses data from cases from court DMS via web services to generate predefined and ad hoc reports.
Q232 (2025): There are AVP applications for the needs of the business processes of basic, higher, and commercial courts, the SAPS application for the needs of appellate courts, the Supreme Court, and the Administrative Court, and the SIPRES application for the needs of misdemeanor courts.
Comment from Supreme Public Prosecution Office: There is one pilot CMS (SAPO) for public prosecution which is in use in 13 public prosecution offices since 2013. However, new CMS was developted which is in use in additional 10 public prosecution office. This new SAPO is updated and upgraded version of 2013 software. Staff of an additional three public prosecution offices have completed the training; however, the CMS is not yet operational in these offices due to issues arising from the data migration from the pilot SAPO software. Addressing of the identified shortcomings is underway and the re-testing of the migrated data is underway. Implementation of new CMS in all 90 public prosecution is planed after all shortcomings have been resolved.

Q234 (2025): The improvement of the AVP system is planned through the improvement of the court fees module, in accordance with the new amendments to the Law on Court Fees. In the coming period, it is planned to replace the entire CMS with a newer version of the platform, which will be integrated with other existing systems in judicial authorities.

Q234 (2024): According to the project plan financed by the EU - Supply of IT Equipment, Software and Ancillary Services for Improvement of Centralized Case Management System (CCMS) in Courts (Tender reference number NEAR/BEG/2021/EA-OP/0003) during 2025, the new system Super SAPS to be in production (to replace old AVP in basic, higher and commercial courts).

Q01b (2025): The introduction of the option of recording interveners in digital administrative procedures is based on the need to ensure full procedural protection of persons who have a direct legal interest in the subject matter of the procedure. The Law on General Administrative Procedure primarily regulates the position of the party and the interested party, while case law in administrative disputes before the Administrative Court confirms that the absence of participation of a person whose rights may be affected by an administrative act constitutes a significant violation of the rules of procedure and a basis for annulment of the decision. Especially in situations where the legal interest arises from the right of pre-emption, prior ownership or tenancy right, failure to enable procedural participation increases the risk of initiating and succeeding in an administrative dispute. Digital recording of interveners contributes to the legality of the procedure, the prevention of judicial annulments and the strengthening of legal certainty of adopted administrative acts.

Q52 (2025): Civil and Commercial Litigious Cases:
During 2024, the number of received cases was significantly higher due to lawsuits related to jubilee salary payments. In contrast, during 2025, the number of cases of this nature was lower. Regarding resolved cases, in 2024 salary-related cases were, according to the Council’s decision, classified as cases that should be resolved with priority. However, in 2025 there were fewer resolved cases of this type.
Administrative Cases:
The failure to achieve a satisfactory level of efficiency during the reporting period is mainly related to the temporary absence of judges from performing their duties. This shortage has resulted from maternity leave, promotions to higher positions, as well as the transfer of judges to other departments within the judicial system.

Q52 (2024): In section one, which deals with general civil and commercial cases, enforcement litigious cases are included because in Kosovo, enforcement procedure is contested procedure (In the past these cases were included in the non-litigious section, but we wish to correct this practice, see Article 17 of the Law on Enforcement Procedure).
Please note that registry cases are not dealt by the court in Kosovo. In 2023, the Basic Court in Prishtina – Administrative Department accepted a total of 2,418 cases, while in 2024, it accepted a total of 5,152 cases. Expressed as a percentage, this means the Court accepted 113% more cases than in the previous year, while the number of judges remained the same.
It is worth noting that of the increased number of cases accepted in 2024, around 25% of them are related to pension schemes funded by the state, or in total, they account for nearly half of these cases.
The reasons for the increase in cases are mainly related to the dissatisfaction of parties with decisions regarding the recognition of pension rights by state institutions – the Ministry of Education, in administrative procedures depending on the specific pension categories according to the law. As a result, the parties have sought to enforce these rights through legal procedures in the courts.

Q52 (2023): The calculation follows this logic: Civil Litigious Cases + Commercial + Përmbarimore (Enforcement cases).
In section 2 and 2.1. the number includes only non-litigious cases.
Whereas in section 3 the number includes only administrative cases.
In section one, which deals with general civil and commercial cases, enforcement litigious cases are included because in Kosovo, enforcement procedure is contested procedure (In the past these cases were included in the non-litigious section, but we wish to correct this practice, see Article 17 of the Law on Enforcement Procedure).
Please note that registry cases are not dealt by the court in Kosovo.
Concerning the discrepancy in the number of pending administrative law cases at first instance between the end of 2022 and the beginning of 2023, this variation (−28%) is due to the establishment of the Commercial Court. A number of cases were transferred to this new jurisdiction, thus reducing the total number of pending administrative cases registered in the general court system.

Q53 (2025): During 2025, a continuous process of verification, cleansing, and improvement of data quality in the SMIL system was carried out, with the aim of ensuring the most accurate and reliable statistical reporting possible. Within the framework of this process, cases of inaccurate reporting, duplicate registrations, and categories that should not have been recorded as active cases were identified and corrected.
Regarding the discrepancy between the number of civil and commercial unresolved cases reported on 31 December 2024 (146,387) and the number of unresolved cases on 1 January 2025 (138,329), resulting in a difference of 8,058 cases, we clarify that this decrease occurred as a result of the cleansing and correction of statistical records.
In enforcement matters, procedural costs that should not have been reported as separate enforcement cases were removed from the records. Likewise, in the civil field, several cases were identified as having been mistakenly registered as civil cases, although they were merely procedural requests and not civil lawsuits. For this reason, these cases were corrected and were not included in the number of unresolved cases for 2025.
Regarding the discrepancy between the number of "other" unresolved cases on 31 December 2024 (4,286) and the number of unresolved cases on 1 January 2025 (3,914), resulting in a difference of 372 cases, we clarify that, following verification of the records, several requests for the initiation of investigations were identified as having been mistakenly reported as pending cases in the preliminary procedure.
After the correction of the statistical data, these cases were removed from the records of unresolved cases, as they should not have been reported as active cases in the preliminary procedure.
The process of verification and improvement of data quality in SMIL will continue throughout 2026, with a focus on harmonizing statistical records and ensuring reporting that is as accurate, transparent, and compliant with judicial reporting standards as possible.
Q53 (2024): In section one which deals with severe criminal cases, we have included the criminal cases in the general department, the criminal cases in the serious crimes department and the criminal cases in the special department. Juvenile criminal cases are included in misdemeanor/minor cases section.
In section three, other cases we have included the number of criminal cases that are still in pre-trial proceedings.
Q53 (2023): In section one which deals with severe criminal cases, we have included the criminal cases in the general department, the criminal cases in the serious crimes department, the criminal and the cases in the special department. In section two misdemeanor refers to kundërvajtje, which are minor offenses that are usually punishable by a fee. In this section juvenile cases are included as well. In section three, other cases we have included the number of criminal cases that are still in pre-trial proceedings in the general department, in the serious crimes department, in the special department and juvenile department. In the previous years those data were not included in any category.

Q54 (2025): Administrative Cases:
The failure to achieve a satisfactory level of efficiency during the reporting period is mainly related to the temporary absence of judges from performing their duties. This shortage has resulted from promotions to higher positions.

Q54 (2024): In section one, which deals with general civil and commercial cases, enforcement litigious cases are included because in Kosovo, enforcement procedure is contested procedure (In the past these cases were included in the non-litigious section, but we wish to correct this practice, see Article 17 of the Law on Enforcement Procedure).
Please note that registry cases are not dealt by the court in Kosovo. With regard to civil litigation cases at the second instance, a total of 8,875 such cases were received by the Court during 2023, whereas in 2024 a total of 15,774 cases were received, representing a 78% increase. (The number indicated here refers only to commercial litigious cases)
The reasons behind this significant rise in these cases are linked to the unwillingness of the relevant institutions to ensure the enforcement of workers' rights arising from employment relationships. More specifically, the increase relates to specific monetary claims derived from applicable legislation, including relevant laws for various categories of employees, the non-implementation of the General Collective Agreement of Kosovo, the respective Collective Agreements in the Education sector, the Sectoral Collective Agreement in the Health sector, and relevant secondary legislation regulating monetary rights from employment relationships for the Kosovo Police and the Kosovo Security Force. As a result of these lawsuits—specifically the cases resolved by first-instance courts—there has also been a corresponding increase in the number of such cases before the Court of Appeals of Kosovo.
With regard to the cases handled by the second-instance chambers of the Commercial Court, it should be emphasized that the underlying causes are related to the operationalization of this Court. Although the Kosovo Judicial Council (KJC) undertook all necessary actions within the legal timeframe to make the Court functional, this has been an ongoing process that began in 2022. Following the consolidation and full operationalization of the Court, the first-instance judges were able to resolve more cases in the following years, particularly in 2023, as conditions were created that improved the efficiency of the work process. This, in turn, directly contributed to an increase in the number of cases appealed to the second-instance chambers of the Commercial Court.

Q54 (2023): See the first instance case-flow data comment. Non-litigious cases number in the second instance started being provided from 2024. Regarding the administrative cases, the discrepancy is due to the establishment of the Commercial Court on 1 August 2022. As a result, business administrative cases were transferred to this new court, which explains the drop in the number of pending administrative cases at the beginning of 2023 compared to the end of 2022.

Q55 (2025): Criminal cases:
In the Criminal Department at the second instance, achieving 100% efficiency is not always possible due to the nature of the case flow and the timing of their receipt. Specifically, a considerable number of cases are received during the last quarter of the year, which limits the actual possibility of reviewing and adjudicating them within the same calendar year.

Q55 (2024): In section one which deals with severe criminal cases, we have included the criminal cases in the general department, the criminal cases in the serious crimes department and the criminal cases in the special department. Juvenile criminal cases are included in misdemeanor/minor cases section.
In section three, other cases we have included the number of criminal cases that are still in pre-trial proceedings.
Q55 (2023): See the first instance case-flow data

Q62-a (2025): The statistics reported in the table are in PERSONS.

Q63-0 (General Comment): State Prosecutors and the Kosovo Prosecutorial Council are independent institutions whose independence is guaranteed by the Constitution and by law.

Q63-0 (2025): Based on Kosovo Constitution, under Chapter VII Justice System:
Article 109 [State Prosecutor]
1. The State Prosecutor is an independent institution with authority and responsibility for the prosecution of persons charged with committing criminal acts and other acts specified by law.
Article 110 [Kosovo Prosecutorial Council]
1. The Kosovo Prosecutorial Council is a fully independent institution in the performance of its functions in accordance with law. The Kosovo Prosecutorial Council shall ensure that all persons have equal access to justice. The Kosovo Prosecutorial Council shall ensure that the State Prosecutor is independent, professional and impartial and reflects the multiethnic nature of Kosovo and the principles of gender equality.
Q63-0 (2024): State Prosecutor and Kosovo Prosecutorial Council are independent institutions whose independence is guaranteed with Constitution and law.
Q63-0 (2023): State Prosecutor and Kosovo Prosecutorial Council are independent institutions whose independence is guaranteed with Constitution and law.
Q63-0 (2022): State Prosecutors and the Kosovo Prosecutorial Council are independent institutions whose independence is guaranteed by the Constitution (Articles 109-110), the Law on State Prosecution (Article 3), and the Law on the Kosovo Prosecutorial Council (Articles 3-4).

Q63 (2025): 1. Receive a complaint: In the Republic of Kosovo, a criminal complaint/report can be filed by the victim, citizens or public or private institutions, the media, etc. After receiving information that a criminal offense is suspected to have been committed, the police begin investigations with the authorization of the state prosecutor.
2. Initiate investigation: it is the sole competence of the state prosecutor who issues a decision to initiate investigations when there is reasonable suspicion that a criminal offense has been committed. Therefore, the State Prosecutor is the only authority that decides to initiate an investigation.
The police do not have the authority to initiate a formal investigation, but act in the pre-investigation phase by collecting initial information.
3. Conduct investigations: investigations are conducted by the police with the authorization of the prosecutor and under the supervision of the prosecutor.
4. Supervising investigations: it is the exclusive competence of the state prosecutor, ensuring that investigative actions are legal, the rights of the suspect are respected, and the police act within legal authorizations.
5. Dismissal of criminal charges or suspension of investigations: If during the investigation it is concluded that: there is no reasonable doubt that the suspect has committed the criminal offense; the committed offense is not a criminal offense that is prosecuted ex officio or upon proposal; the statute of limitations for criminal prosecution has expired or the criminal offense has been included in an amnesty, pardon, has been judged by a final decision; the suspect enjoys immunity and its dismissal is not possible or has not been approved by the competent body or there are circumstances that exclude criminal liability, then the State Prosecutor is the competent authority for the termination of the investigation or the dismissal of the criminal report.
6. Bringing the case to court: is done by the state prosecutor after the completion of the investigation when it results from the collection of evidence that there is a well-founded suspicion that the defendant has committed a criminal offense and files an indictment. Whereas for criminal offenses for which the maximum penalty is not more than three years and the state prosecutor assesses that there is a well-founded suspicion to support the indictment, he may file an indictment without issuing a ruling to initiate the investigation.
7. Decide an alternative to prosecution: The state prosecutor decides, where alternatives include, for example: mediation procedure, temporary suspension of the procedure, conditions when prosecution is not mandatory. While the pre-trial judge decides on diversion according to the proposal of the state prosecutor.
8. Close a case by imposing or negotiating a penalty or measure: The state prosecutor decides, as is the case in the mediation procedure, dismissal of criminal charges, termination of investigations, etc.
In the preliminary procedure, the main role is played by the state prosecutor, who is the sole authority competent for the initiation, development and completion of investigations, including decisions to dismiss criminal charges, suspension of investigations or file indictments. Police acts as an auxiliary body, undertaking investigative actions only under the guidance and supervision of the prosecutor, without the authority to make final procedural decisions. The police carry out evidence-gathering actions (e.g., raid, questioning of witnesses, and seizure of evidence) only under the instructions of the prosecutor.
State prosecutor initiates criminal proceedings with a ruling to initiate investigations when there is reasonable suspicion that a criminal offense has been committed. After collecting evidence, the prosecutor decides whether there is sufficient evidence to file an indictment against the suspect. This means when the evidence collected provides a well-founded suspicion that the defendant has committed a criminal offense.

Q231 (2022): In the KJC web portal, on September 2022 are deployed two web applications; the Case Tracking Mechanism (CTM) and Open Data Platfor, (ODP). In the CTM, parties can follow their case status data, while in the OPD are available all statistical reports of the CMIS.
Q234 (2025): KJC Comment: In coming years, KJC aims to upgrade the CMIS technology, extend the interoperability of the system with other systems, such as: Police system for minor offence cases, cadaster system, prisons etc. extend online services, implement electronic signature etc. KPC Comment: In 2025, a questionnaire was conducted with prosecutors and administrative staff of the Basic Prosecution Offices in Prishtina, Prizren and Mitrovica, with the aim of identifying the practical needs of users and advancing the Case Management Information System (CMIS) in accordance with their real operational requirements.
Based on the findings of this questionnaire, during 2026, it is planned to advance the CMIS in the following main directions:
• simplifying processes by reducing steps and tasks in CMIS, in order to facilitate and accelerate data recording;
• advancing and standardizing existing templates, in accordance with the functional needs of prosecutors and administrative staff;
• improving the electronic exchange of data and documents with the courts and the Kosovo Police, in order to increase efficiency and reduce manual procedures.
Q01a (2025): The Case Management Information System (CMIS) is available in all courts, in three instances for the processing the all type of cases; Civil, Criminal, Commercial, administrative etc. Regarding the Civil and Administrative cases, parties can submit or initiate the case in the courts only manually with paper file. The court clerk, enter reference data, scans these cases and uploads into the system and initiate the case.
While, for the Criminal Cases system receives all cases electronically from prosecution office through the interoperability of the CMIS of courts with the CMIS in prosecution offices. The interoperability of the CMIS in courts with the CMIS in prosecution offices, transfers on real time the criminal case created or initiated in the prosecution offices with the all-structured data and documents. For this purpose, the answer is: Deployment rate - 95-100 % and Usage Rate – 95 – 100.
Q01b (2025): test
Q01c (2025): The Case Management Information System (CMIS) in the Courts is fully interoperable with the CMIS in Prosecution Offices. Interoperability supports the manual work, the exchange of documents and reference data. Example, the prosecutor initiates and create the criminal case in the CMIS. Once the case is ready to submit in the courts, the last step in the CMIS is to transfer the electronic file in the courts. After this step, the prosecutor sends the manual case in the courts.
After receiving the case in the courts electronically and manually, court clerk proceeds the case in the court. In this phase, CMIS in the courts link the case number in the court with the case number in prosecution office and then all communication is linked through case numbers on real time.
Q04a (2025): The Case Tracking Mechanism is a web application that allows online access to individual court case records, through which it is accessible to all citizens of Kosovo from the KJC portal and E-Kososova platform.
After successful identification through eKosova, the CTM will check whether the individual is involved in any court case in the CMIS (Case Management Information System). If party has a case into the CMIS, then CTM shows all data regarding the case. Some of the date available on CTM are; unique case number, initiation date, the date of case assignment to the judge, name of the judge, information of the sessions, information about decisions, length of procedures etc. The CTM is read only system that enables party to follow activities taken by the court regarding its cases, while party cannot initiate actions or submit documents through the CTM. The CTM is available tool for all type of cases and provides information for three court instances (Basic Courts, Appellate Court, and Supreme Court).
Q07a (2025): The CMIS is web application, developed in .net Microsoft technology, and its database is in SQL. Database is cartelized with one database. System is accessible only from internal courts ICT infrastructure. Users can access system only from office. System is not accessible from Internet.
Regarding the functionalities, CMIS supports work processes in the court for all types of cases in three court instances. Workflow includes action with the case from receiving, selecting the judge, resolving, execution, until archiving.

Q08a (2025): Regarding the writing assistance tool, we can consider the CMIS feature of ''Templates''. For the all-court documents, applicable in the court, CMIS provides template. Templates provides all case data, including predefined text relevant for that document. No other tools applicable.

Albania

(2025): The increase in the number of cases pending adjudication for more than two years (from 2,436 in 2024 to 5,575 in 2025) may be explained by a combination of factors, including judicial vacancies within the court system; the accumulation of case backlog, which has led to a higher number of cases exceeding the two-year adjudication threshold; the prioritization of categories of cases subject to urgent deadlines; the complexity of cases, which necessitates multiple hearings and procedural steps, thereby prolonging their examination; and procedural delays, such as the postponement of hearings, difficulties in notifying the parties, and delays in the preparation of expert reports, all of which have also contributed to the extended duration of proceedings.

(2023): Regarding the number of administrative pending cases older than two years that have almost doubled from the previous cycle is a Consequence of the transitional period which are related to the implementation of the new judicial map as well as the vetting process.

Bosnia and Herzegovina

(General Comment): The second instance courts of general jurisdiction have subject matter over the first instance administrative law cases. Therefore, the statistics incorporated in the table for Q 52 include data on the caseload of second instance courts regarding the first instance administrative law cases.

(2025): In 2025, a significant decrease was recorded at the Municipal Court in Sarajevo in the number of new first instance litigious cases related to unpaid utility bills, which was one of the main reasons for the reduction in the total number of incoming civil and litigious cases compared to 2024, as well as a decrease in the number of unresolved cases in this case category in the reporting year.
In accordance with that, the number of first instance pending civil and litigious cases at the end of 2025 that were more than two years old was reduced to some extent. It is important to note that the majority of the pending civil and commercial litigious cases older than two years were litigious small claims cases related to unpaid utility bills.
The total number of new non-litigious cases brought before courts slightly increased in several major courts in 2025, contrary to the situation in previous years. Courts, overall, continued to resolve non-litigious cases with a clearance rate of more than 100%, thus reducing backlogs. As in the previous years, the majority of case flow in terms of general civil non-litigious cases was consisted of enforcement cases that the state-owned utility companies initiate to recover unpaid bills for utility services. (e.g. heating, water, electricity, garbage collection, television subscription etc.). In addition, majority of the pending general non-litigious cases older than two years were cases related to the unpaid utility bills, i.e. the non-litigious enforcement cases. This backlog of old cases is concentrated in the several courts in the biggest cities in Bosnia and Herzegovina.
As in the previous years, several courts in their annual reports indicated that they did not have sufficient capacity to handle the workload that increased in the reference year within the project aiming to achieve harmonization between land register and cadaster data, which partly leads to a still high number of unresolved cases at the end of the reporting year. Besides, the largest first-instance court in the capital city of Bosnia and Herzegovina received and resolved a much higher of non-litigious land-registry cases and related matters in 2025, due to the resumption of the project for harmonizing the cadaster and land registry. Overall, this has resulted in an exceptionally large increase in workload in 2025 when it comes to non-litigious land-registry cases.
In 2025, statistical data regarding the handling of registration of business entities and related matters remained stable compared to 2024. Most courts managed to achieve a clearance rate of 100% during the reporting period.
Non-judge court staff deal with a substantial part of the caseload in terms of registry cases and land registry matters. After the number of new first instance administrative law cases slightly increased in 2024, that number continued to grow somewhat in 2025, which in several courts caused the clearance rate to fall below 100%, leading to an increase in the total number of pending cases in this case category. A mitigating factor was that some courts in 2025 managed to achieve clearance rates for first instance administrative law cases of more than 100% despite the increase in the number of new cases.

(2024): In 2024, there was a relatively significant increase in the number of new first instance litigious cases related to the unpaid utility bills. However, this did not lead to a significant increase in the number of unresolved first instance civil and commercial litigious cases at the end of the reporting year. In addition, the number of pending cases at the end of 2024 that were more than two years old did not change considerably. It is important to note that the majority of the pending civil and commercial litigious cases older than two years were litigious small claims cases related to the unpaid utility bills. The total number of new non-litigious cases brought before courts was smaller, which confirmed the downward trend in previous years. As in previous years, the majority of case flow in terms of general civil non-litigious cases was consisted of enforcement cases that the state-owned utility companies initiate to recover unpaid bills for utility services. (e.g. heating, water, electricity, garbage collection, television subscription etc.)

As in the previous years, several courts in their annual reports indicated that they did not have sufficient capacity to handle the workload that increased in the reference year within the project aiming to achieve harmonization between land register and cadaster data, which partly leads to a still high number of unresolved cases at the end of the reporting year. Besides, the largest first-instance court in the capital of Bosnia and Herzegovina received and resolved a smaller number of non-litigious land-registry cases and related matters in 2024, due to the temporary halt of the project for harmonizing the cadaster and land registry. Overall, this has resulted in an exceptionally large decrease in workload when it comes to non-litigious land-registry cases last year.

Regarding the registration of business entities and related matters, several first-instance courts have received more new cases compared to the previous year. They mostly managed to handle the increased caseload during the reporting period.

Non-judge court staff deal with a substantial part of the caseload in terms of registry cases and land registry matters. In addition, majority of the pending general non-litigious cases older than two years were cases related to the unpaid utility bills, i.e. the non-litigious enforcement cases. This backlog of old cases is concentrated in the several courts in the biggest cities in Bosnia and Herzegovina.

The overwhelming majority of the first instance administrative law cases are concentrated in the several courts in the biggest cities in Bosnia and Herzegovina. Several of those courts saw a slight increase in the number of incoming administrative cases during 2024. However, courts with jurisdiction over first instance administrative cases managed to have clearance rate above 100% in 2024, reducing the number of pending as well as older cases at the end of the year.

(2023): There has been a significant decrease in the influx of first instance civil and commercial litigious cases over recent years. This trend continued in 2023. In comparison to 2022, the number of pending cases at the end of 2023 that were more than two years old did not change significantly. It is important to note that the majority of the pending civil and commercial litigious cases older than two years are litigious small claims cases related to the unpaid utility bills.
The total number of new non-litigious cases brought before both courts was smaller, which confirms the downward trend in recent years. The majority of general civil non-litigious cases are enforcement proceedings that the state-owned utility companies initiate to recover unpaid bills for utility services. (e.g. heating, water, electricity, garbage collection, television subscription etc.).
As in the previous years, several courts in their annual reports indicated that they did not have sufficient capacity to handle the workload that increased in the reference year within the project aiming to achieve harmonization between land register and cadastre data. The overwhelming majority of the first administrative law cases are concentrated in the several courts in the biggest cities in Bosnia and Herzegovina. Several of those courts saw a decrease in the number of incoming administrative cases during 2023. In addition, courts with jurisdiction over first instance administrative cases managed to have clearance rate above 100% in 2023, reducing the number of pending cases at the end of the year.

(2022): There has been a significant decrease in the influx of first instance civil and commercial litigious cases over recent years. In 2020, the number of incoming cases dropped additionally compared to 2019, due to Covid-19 restrictions. In 2021, however, the number of incoming first instance civil and commercial litigious cases rose by 13% compared to 2020. Still, that number was smaller than the number of new first instance civil and commercial litigious cases received in 2019 and 2018. This trend continued in 2022., except that one of the biggest first-instance courts received a large number of relatively simple litigious small claims cases, which resulted in an increase in the total number of cases received compared to 2021. This was a one-time increase in the influx of cases, related specifically to this court's territorial jurisdiction, leading to the increase in the number of pending cases even though most of the courts surpassed the 100% clearance rate in the reference year. The number of pending cases that are more than two years old has decreased significantly, due to this report covering 2020, in which courts received a smaller number of cases because of the Covid-19 restrictions. Finally, it is important to note that the majority of the pending civil and commercial litigious cases older than two years are litigious small claims cases related to the unpaid utility bills.
The decreased number of incoming non-litigious cases was filed in the courts in 2022 in comparison to 2021. The majority of general civil non-litigious cases are enforcement proceedings that the state-owned utility companies initiate to recover unpaid bills for utility services. (e.g. heating, water, electricity, garbage collection, television subscription etc.).

This backlog of old cases is concentrated in the several courts in the biggest cities in Bosnia and Herzegovina.
It is important to note an additional information on the inconsistency for general non-litigious pending cases between an end to 2021 and the beginning of 2022. Namely, the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina instructed one of the courts to correct technical mistakes made in the case management system about the registration of non-litigious enforcement cases the public companies had initiated with the courts previously for unpaid utility bills. The court increased the number of pending cases by implementing the instructions of the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina.
The overwhelming majority of the administrative law cases are concentrated in the several courts in the biggest cities in Bosnia and Herzegovina. Several courts saw an increase in the influx of administrative cases during 2022, resulting in a surge in the number of pending cases at the end of the year; in addition, the number of pending administrative cases in some of the largest courts has escalated as some of the judges specialized in administrative cases were absent due to sick leave or they were retired during the year.

Montenegro

(2025): In the reporting period, a decrease in incoming cases compared to the previous year was observed, while the number of resolved cases remained at a high level, leading to a reduction in the number of pending cases at the end of the period.
As regards administrative cases, the Administrative Court of Montenegro started a project for faster case resolution within the EUROL 4 program, supported by the European Union. The project focuses on resolving old cases, especially cases related to “administrative silence”, improving court efficiency, and digitalizing court procedures.
In November 2025, the Court introduced a new application for faster case processing, in cooperation with the Secretariat of the Judicial Council. The application uses prepared decision templates and automatically transfers data from the Judicial Information System, which reduces administrative work and saves time.
The new system has made the whole process faster, from preparing decisions to electronic processing and sending documents. This project shows the Court’s commitment to improving efficiency and ensuring citizens receive justice within a reasonable time.
As a result, 5% of all cases resolved during the year were completed within two months.
The reported figures may present minor deviations from the standard CEPEJ case-flow formula (pending cases at the end of the year = pending cases at the beginning of the year + incoming cases − resolved cases) due to cases that were delegated or transferred to other competent courts during the reference year. Such transfers affect the number of pending cases and may therefore result in small discrepancies in horizontal consistency checks.

(2024): The issue with high number of administrative cases is as it is already known is related to the high number of law suits related to the application of the Law on Free Access to Public Information. For the "silence of administration" upon the freedom of information request, the law suit can be filed before Administrative court. Also for negative responses of public authorities in terms of reasons for decisions not providing an information upon the request. Alos, there are organizations filing massive numbers of law suits to the Administrative court.

The significant increase if administrative cases is predominantly generated due to the high number of initiated cases before the Administrative Court against the decisions of the public authorities. This is also related to the application of the Law on Free Access to Information and there have been high number of requests towards the authorities (institutions) for free access to information which ended by decisions against which the complaints are not allowed or there have been requests which remained unanswered, the institution did not decide on request or complaint in the administrative procedure. According to the Law on Administrative dispute, such or similar situations provide legal basis that administrative dispute may be initiated, which means a law suit to the Administrative court may be filed. In practice, many law suits were initiated by different subjects such as civil society organizations dealing with promotion of the right to free access to information, citizens or legal persons.

North Macedonia

(2025): 4. Other cases - Liquidation and bankruptcy cases. The inconsistency of the Pending cases on 1 Jan. 2025 administrative cases with the Pending cases on 31 Dec.previous year is the result of the following: until the completion of the questionnaire from the previous cycle (data for 2024), the data were processed semi-automatically (the process was partially digitalized). As of 2024, the Judicial Council introduced a module for a fully automated process of collecting statistic for all types of cases, and during the previous cycle this module was in a testing phase. During that testing period, a technical error occurred in a specific category of administrative cases (public procurement cases — either backlog cases from 2023 or incoming cases in 2024 amounting to 600 cases).This inconsistency has continued into the current year as well (although this year the module within ACCMIS is functioning fully).
The number of incoming non litigious cases has decreased because, before 2025, the possibility for legalization of vessels and other means of transport was discontinued, and in 2025 the court did not process this type of cases.

(2024): Category 2.2.3. Other Registry cases consists cases for registration of political parties.

(2023): Category 2.2.3. Other Registry cases consists cases for registration of political parties.
Pending cases increased as a result of big number of incoming cases the previous year.

(2022): Category 1. In 2022 there were still Covid-19 effects on the proceedings before the courts. In the second part of the year, at 1-st of July 2022 started high number of retirements of the judges (see also new general comment to Q 104). Judicial Council on 1 July 2022 adopted a Conclusion for termination of the judicial office of 42 judges due to new condition for age retirement, the age of 64 years as a new compulsory age for retirement in North Macedonia, according to the new amendments in article 104 of the Labor Relation law. Category 2.2.3. Other Registry cases are cases for registration of political parties.

Serbia

(2025): The increase in the number of pending cases older than two years (+52.61%), despite a slight decrease in the total number of pending cases (–4.15%), is primarily due to the extreme influx of newly filed cases in 2022 and 2023. In those years, the Administrative Court received more cases than all four Appellate Courts combined (63,534 in 2022 and 78,017 in 2023), while the number of judges was significantly lower than necessary. The insufficient number of judges and court staff could not handle this influx, which consequently led to the accumulation of older cases that later entered the statistics of pending cases older than two years.
A significant increase in the number of resolved cases, which is 36,05% higher compared to 2024, and a decrease in the total number of pending cases by 4.15% in the most recent period, is directly related to the increase in the number of judges in the Administrative Court (from 46 in 2024 to 58 in 2025).
In addition to strengthening human resources, in 2025 the Administrative Court adopted the Backlog Reduction Programme for 2025, in line with the Uniform Backlog Reduction Programme in the Republic of Serbia 2021–2025. During the implementation of the Programme, measures and techniques were applied to more successfully resolve backlog cases and prevent their occurrence by accelerating court proceedings.
Within this program, the following measures were undertaken:
• old cases were given priority,
• a Team for Reducing the Backlog Cases was established,
• the Procedure for drafting pilot decisions in groups of cases (customs, tax, etc.) was applied, with initial acts from 2023, 2024, and 2025 (by plaintiff and defendant); judicial panels were tasked with drafting decisions in the oldest cases of each group to enable more efficient resolution of the remaining cases in the group,
• the court statistician kept special records and regularly reported to the President of the Court and the Team for Reducing the Backlog Cases on the trends of backlog cases,
• presidents of chambers, in accordance with the Backlog Reduction Programme for 2025, prepared individual programs for case resolution.
These measures made it possible to increase efficiency, accelerate proceedings, and reduce the overall number of pending cases, while at the same time significantly increasing the number of resolved cases.

(2024): According to the available statistical data, the significant decrease in the number of incoming cases before the Administrative Court can primarily be attributed to the so-called Uću cases—lawsuits initiated due to the silence of the administration, most frequently against the Republic Pension and Disability Insurance Fund.
In 2023, the Administrative Court received a total of 78 017 cases, of which 61 794 were Uću cases.
In 2024, the number of incoming cases dropped to 42 741, including 27 113 Uću cases.
This substantial reduction indicates that the competent administrative bodies have improved their responsiveness, managing to resolve submitted requests within the legal timeframes and thereby preventing the need for litigation due to administrative silence.
However, the issue related to the implementation of the Law on Free Access to Information of Public Importance remains unchanged, as no amendments have yet been made to the relevant legislation.

(2023): Official informations obtained by the Supreme Court

(2022): 1.The lower number of incoming cases in 2022 is primarily explained by the decrease inflows in civil and commercial cases in basic and commercial courts. During 2019, 2020 and 2021 there was a large number of specific type of cases related to the costs of bank loans. After supplementing the legal position of the Supreme Court of Cassation from September 16, 2021, number of these cases gradually decreases. However, due to the mentioned repetitive cases (litigation for reimbursement of costs bank loans), courts were unable to handle such a large influx from the previous year (regardless of the fact that the inflow in 2022 was lower), so the number of pending cases also increased.
2.1.The Supreme Court of Cassation paid special attention to the problem of pending backlog enforcement cases, since in the previous period they affected the efficiency of the courts.
Exceptional results were achieved through the cooperation of the Supreme Court of Cassation, the High Court Council and the Ministry of Justice, with the additional help of the IPA 2012 Projects
"Improving Judicial Efficiency in the Republic of Serbia", "EU for Serbia – Support to the Supreme Court of Cassation" and "EU for Serbia – Support to the High Court Council", in the period from 2016 to the end of 2022 in the reduction of pending backlog court cases, and especially pending backlog
IV cases in basic courts.
2.3. In this group of cases, the number of cases related to the trial in within a reasonable time (the number of complaints filed under the Law on the Protection of Rights to trial within a reasonable time) was decreased. .
3. Administrative cases: There is no special explanation, the Administrative Court has more incoming cases and the same number of resolved cases as in previous few years.

Kosovo*

(2025): Civil and Commercial Litigious Cases:
During 2024, the number of received cases was significantly higher due to lawsuits related to jubilee salary payments. In contrast, during 2025, the number of cases of this nature was lower. Regarding resolved cases, in 2024 salary-related cases were, according to the Council's decision, classified as cases that should be resolved with priority. However, in 2025 there were fewer resolved cases of this type.
Administrative Cases:
The failure to achieve a satisfactory level of efficiency during the reporting period is mainly related to the temporary absence of judges from performing their duties. This shortage has resulted from maternity leave, promotions to higher positions, as well as the transfer of judges to other departments within the judicial system.

(2024): In section one, which deals with general civil and commercial cases, enforcement litigious cases are included because in Kosovo, enforcement procedure is contested procedure (In the past these cases were included in the non-litigious section, but we wish to correct this practice, see Article 17 of the Law on Enforcement Procedure).
Please note that registry cases are not dealt by the court in Kosovo. In 2023, the Basic Court in Prishtina – Administrative Department accepted a total of 2,418 cases, while in 2024, it accepted a total of 5,152 cases. Expressed as a percentage, this means the Court accepted 113% more cases than in the previous year, while the number of judges remained the same.
It is worth noting that of the increased number of cases accepted in 2024, around 25% of them are related to pension schemes funded by the state, or in total, they account for nearly half of these cases.
The reasons for the increase in cases are mainly related to the dissatisfaction of parties with decisions regarding the recognition of pension rights by state institutions – the Ministry of Education, in administrative procedures depending on the specific pension categories according to the law. As a result, the parties have sought to enforce these rights through legal procedures in the courts.

(2023): The calculation follows this logic: Civil Litigious Cases + Commercial + Përmbarimore (Enforcement cases).
In section 2 and 2.1. the number includes only non-litigious cases.
Whereas in section 3 the number includes only administrative cases.
In section one, which deals with general civil and commercial cases, enforcement litigious cases are included because in Kosovo, enforcement procedure is contested procedure (In the past these cases were included in the non-litigious section, but we wish to correct this practice, see Article 17 of the Law on Enforcement Procedure).
Please note that registry cases are not dealt by the court in Kosovo.
Concerning the discrepancy in the number of pending administrative law cases at first instance between the end of 2022 and the beginning of 2023, this variation (−28%) is due to the establishment of the Commercial Court. A number of cases were transferred to this new jurisdiction, thus reducing the total number of pending administrative cases registered in the general court system.

Question 53

Albania

(2025): The decline in the number of newly filed cases before the courts, as well as the reduction in the number of adjudicated cases concerning criminal contraventions, may be attributed to a combination of legal, institutional, and social factors, including:
The enhanced role of administrative mechanisms – Law enforcement authorities, such as the police, have increasingly relied on administrative measures (e.g., the imposition of fines), thereby diminishing the necessity for judicial proceedings.
The prioritization of cases within the criminal justice system – There is a discernible shift towards the adjudication of criminal offences of greater social harmfulness, resulting in a reduced focus on contraventions. Moreover, the substantial caseload of other, more pressing matters (whether criminal or civil) may further slow the pace of examination of contravention cases.
Citizens' behavior – A decline in the number of complaints and reports relating to contraventions.
External (socio-economic) factors – Migration and demographic changes may also have an impact on the overall volume of cases.

(2024): 3.Other criminal cases "Administrative criminal cases" and "Anti-mafia law cases". From the data reflected here, anti-mafia law cases are 11 pending on January 1, 2024, 54 new cases, 49 adjudicated, 16 awaiting adjudicatory on December 31, 2024; 3 older than two years. The rest are administrative criminal cases.

(2023): Based on the table of statistics collected from the reporting of the courts "other cases" refers to "administrative criminal cases".

(2022): Other Criminal cases: a) criminal administrative cases (exe: probation requests, security measures etc) b) cases related to anti-mafia law.
The number of resolved cases during 2022 is believed to have been caused by the decrease of the number of judges in the second instance due to different factors such as resignations, vetting process, promotions. In addition, the inequal distribution of cases between courts is another factor contributing to the problem.

Bosnia and Herzegovina

(General Comment): As of 2022, i.e. the Evaluation of the judicial systems 2024 (2022 data), the statistics for severe criminal cases and other cases for this question include data for criminal cases from the first instance jurisdiction of second instance courts. In addition, since 2025 statistical data on the investigation phase of criminal proceedings in Bosnia and Herzegovina, which falls under the competence of the prosecutor's offices, are not included in the other criminal cases category; also, from 2025 onwards, these data do not include statistics on decisions of judges on motions/applications submitted to a judge by prosecutors during the preliminary phase of the criminal case, nor data on cases for the execution of final convictions in criminal cases, hence the huge discrepancies in the statistical data values for 2025 compared to 2024.
Severe criminal offences: a criminal offense is an unlawful act which violates or jeopardizes the protected values and which is, because of the danger it represents, defined by law as a criminal offense and for which a punishment is prescribed. Criminal sanctions are: punishments, suspended sentence, security measures and educational measures. Examples of serious criminal offenses are: criminal acts against state, homicide, organized crime, criminal acts against official duty (i.e. corruption cases), theft and other crimes against property, rape and other crimes against sexual integrity, traffic accidents where a person suffered grievous bodily injury or a significant damage and other crimes against public transportation etc.
Statistics on severe criminal offences include data on the cases in which the main part of the proceedings has started following the confirmation of indictment by court.
Minor offence or misdemeanor cases: minor offences are violations of public order or of regulations on economic and financial operations defined as such by laws or other regulations, whose characteristics are described and for which sanctions are prescribed. The following sanctions may be imposed upon a person found responsible for commission of a minor offence: fine; suspended sentence; reprimand; and protective measures. The following measures may be imposed because of being found responsible for a minor offence: confiscation of gains; obligation to compensate damages; penalty points; and deprivation of liberty to compel payment of a fine. Examples of minor offences: traffic offences, violations of public order, begging etc.
Statistics on misdemeanor offences include data on the cases in which the main part of the misdemeanor proceedings has started.
Since 2025 statistics regarding the execution phase of misdemeanor cases are not included in the other criminal cases category, hence the huge discrepancies in the statistical data values for 2025 compared to 2024.

(2025): Criminal cases: As of 2022, i.e. the Evaluation of the judicial systems 2024 (2022 data), the statistics for severe criminal cases and other cases for this question include data for criminal cases from the first instance jurisdiction of second instance courts. In addition, since 2025 statistical data on the investigation phase of criminal proceedings in Bosnia and Herzegovina, which falls under the competence of the prosecutor's offices, are not included in the other criminal cases category; also, from 2025 onwards, these data do not include statistics on decisions of judges on motions/applications submitted to a judge by prosecutors during the preliminary phase of the criminal case, nor data on cases for the execution of final convictions in criminal cases, hence the huge discrepancies in the statistical data values for 2025 compared to 2024.
The general trends for the first instance criminal cases in 2025 remain similar to the tendencies from the previous reporting cycle, the main characteristics being that there has been a slight increase in the number of incoming and resolved cases, but without achieving a 100% clearance rate and with a continued slight increase in the number of unresolved cases.
Misdemeanor cases:
In 2025, the number of unresolved first-instance misdemeanor cases increased significantly - by 14%, the main reason being a drastic increase in the number of incoming cases by 22% compared to the number of new cases of this type received by courts in 2024.
As in previous years, the most significant increase in the influx of new cases occurred in several courts in major towns in the country, due to the increased number of requests for initiating misdemeanor proceedings from various administrative authorities and police (i.e., traffic violations). The first-instance court in the capital of Bosnia and Herzegovina has been receiving a particularly large number of new misdemeanor cases initiated by the police against citizens who committed traffic offenses, which is largely caused by the improvements police has made in terms of technical resources for registering traffic offences. Although the courts achieved a 37% increase in the number of resolved first-instance misdemeanor cases in 2025 compared to 2024, the courts' clearance rate in the reporting year was still below 100%, reaching 91% regarding this indicator. It is important to note that courts must dispose of minor offence cases quickly in order to meet the very short statutory statute of limitations timeframes.
Since 2025 statistics regarding the execution phase of misdemeanor cases are not included in the other criminal cases category, hence the huge discrepancies in the statistical data values for 2025 compared to 2024.

(2024): Criminal cases: As of 2022, i.e. the Evaluation of the judicial systems 2024 (data 2022), the statistics for severe criminal cases and other cases for this question include data for criminal cases from the first instance jurisdiction of second instance courts. Regardless of the above change, the general trends for criminal cases in 2024 remain similar to the tendencies from the previous reporting cycles.
Misdemeanor cases:
The number of pending first-instance misdemeanor cases increased significantly during 2024 – by 33%, unlike the previous year during which the number of pending cases rose only by 1%. The number of incoming cases continued to expand in 2024 – by 31%. The most significant increase in the influx of cases occurred in several courts in major towns, due to the increased number of requests for initiating misdemeanor proceedings from various administrative authorities and police (i.e. traffic violations). The first-instance court in the capital of Bosnia and Herzegovina has received a particularly large number of new misdemeanor cases initiated by the police against citizens for committed traffic violations.
Furthermore, the courts resolved more cases in 2024 than in the previous year. However, the courts failed to achieve 100% clearance rate in 2024 (i.e. 77%).

(2023): Criminal cases As of 2022, i.e. the Evaluation of the judicial systems 2024 (data 2022), the statistics for severe criminal cases and other cases for this question include data for criminal cases from the first instance jurisdiction of second instance courts. Regardless of the above change, the general trends for criminal cases in 2023 remain similar to the tendencies from the previous reporting cycles.
Misdemeanor cases:
The number of pending first-instance misdemeanor cases increased by 1% during 2023, unlike the previous reporting year (i.e. 2022) during which the number of pending cases decreased by 12%. The number of incoming cases in 2023 was higher by 7% compared to 2022. The most significant increase in the influx of cases occurred in several courts in major towns, due to the increased number of requests for misdemeanor proceedings from various administrative authorities and police (i.e. traffic violations). Furthermore, the courts resolved more cases in 2023 than in the previous year. However, the courts failed to achieve 100% clearance rate in 2023 (i.e. 99%).

(2022): There has been a significant decrease in the influx of first instance severe criminal law cases over recent years. In 2020, the number of incoming cases dropped additionally compared to 2019, due to Covid-19 restrictions. In 2021, however, the number of incoming first instance severe criminal law cases rose by 8% compared to 2020. Still, that number is smaller than the number of incoming first instance severe criminal law cases registered in 2019 and 2018. Statistics on first-instance criminal cases in 2022 indicate that the situation in the courts is, basically, consistent with the parameters from 2021.
Unlike previous years, the number of incoming cases decreased in 2022. Consequently, the number of pending cases in the first instance decreased at the end of 2022. The reduction in the influx of cases was recorded, predominantly, in the largest courts. This is not a consequence of legislative changes. It remains to be seen whether such indicators will continue to be achieved in the coming period.
Certain number of pending severe criminal cases, which are older than 2 years, cannot be resolved due to the procedural gridlock that the courts cannot resolve (e.g. an accused person is not traceable). The majority of pending other cases older than 2 years are misdemeanour cases in which courts are lacking effective mechanisms to enforce outstanding monetary fines pronounced in the minor offence proceedings.
Statistics on "Other cases" include inter alia: statistics on the preliminary criminal proceedings before the main trial, i.e. during the investigative procedure which is conducted by the prosecutor’s office (e.g. seizure of evidence, detention and similar measures, confirmation of indictment etc.), statistics on the court decisions brought outside of the main criminal trial (e.g. detention and similar measures, the change of monetary sanction to imprisonment etc), statistics on criminal proceedings related to the enforcement of convictions pronounced in criminal proceedings; statistics for minor offence cases regarding related to the court decisions brought outside of the main misdemeanour proceedings and for the enforcement of pronounced penalties.

Montenegro

(2025): The observed increase in the number of resolved cases in first-instance criminal matters is primarily due to the higher inflow of cases, particularly in misdemeanour cases handled by specialised courts.
Category 3 ("Other criminal cases") now includes only investigation judge cases registered under the "Kri" (Basic Courts) and "Kris" (Higher Court) case registers.
IPS cases from the Misdemeanour Courts were excluded from this category. "IPS" case registers relate to the execution/enforcement of misdemeanour sanctions and measures.
Category 2 ("Misdemeanour and/or minor criminal cases") includes "Pp" case registers from the Misdemeanour Courts. "Pp" case registers refer to main misdemeanour cases handled by the Misdemeanour Courts.
Last year, IPS subjects were included. This year, based on the change of CEPEJ methodology, IPS subjects were excluded, and this has been implemented accordingly. The reported figures may present minor deviations from the standard CEPEJ case-flow formula (pending cases at the end of the year = pending cases at the beginning of the year + incoming cases − resolved cases) due to cases that were delegated or transferred to other competent courts during the reference year. Such transfers affect the number of pending cases and may therefore result in small discrepancies in horizontal consistency checks.

(2024): Other cases are Misdemeanor cases - Execution cases for misdemeanor (IPS)

(2023): reason that sum up numbers do not match is that certain number of cases were delegated, and there is no option to show it. (souce Judicial Coucil)
other criminal cases - Misdemeanor cases - Execution cases for misdemeanor (IPS)

(2022): Higher inflow (number of received cases by misdemeanour courts due to the fact in practice that the subject with jurisdiction of issuing misdemeanour orders (fines) were using the legal possibility to initiate misdemeanour proceedings before the courts instead. That led to higher inflow of cases which reflected to the number of unresolved cases. This was mainly the issue related to the slowdown of public procurance system (major cyber attacks etc.) in the refence year and a lack of relevant forms for issuing misdemeanour orders (fines).

North Macedonia
(2023): Pending cases increased due to the low clearance rate last year as a result of insufficient number of judges

(2022): Category 2. Please, see also the comment for Q 35. High number of judge retirements in 2022 caused by new compulsory age of retirement probably is the reason for higher number of unsolved cases. Also, in 2023 we are expecting more retirements of judges due to this reason.

Serbia

(2025): Please note that in accordance with the new explanatory no cases are reported under 3. OTHER CASES. However, the registers listed below must also be mentioned, as they significantly affect the workload of judges (143,531 incoming cases and 143,655 resolved). Although, according to the Explanatory note, they do not constitute investigative cases in court, they nevertheless account for a considerable number of cases within the courts of Serbia.

(2024): Following the CEPEJ clarification, the figures initially submitted under Q38 were revised. Administrative acts (e.g. issuance of certificates, parole procedures) previously included in the total number of criminal cases have now been excluded in compliance with the CEPEJ methodology.

According to the CEPEJ methodology we we excluded the requested category of misdemeanor cases

Kosovo*

(2025): During 2025, a continuous process of verification, cleansing, and improvement of data quality in the SMIL system was carried out, with the aim of ensuring the most accurate and reliable statistical reporting possible. Within the framework of this process, cases of inaccurate reporting, duplicate registrations, and categories that should not have been recorded as active cases were identified and corrected.
Regarding the discrepancy between the number of civil and commercial unresolved cases reported on 31 December 2024 (146,387) and the number of unresolved cases on 1 January 2025 (138,329), resulting in a difference of 8,058 cases, we clarify that this decrease occurred as a result of the cleansing and correction of statistical records.
In enforcement matters, procedural costs that should not have been reported as separate enforcement cases were removed from the records. Likewise, in the civil field, several cases were identified as having been mistakenly registered as civil cases, although they were merely procedural requests and not civil lawsuits. For this reason, these cases were corrected and were not included in the number of unresolved cases for 2025.
Regarding the discrepancy between the number of "other" unresolved cases on 31 December 2024 (4,286) and the number of unresolved cases on 1 January 2025 (3,914), resulting in a difference of 372 cases, we clarify that, following verification of the records, several requests for the initiation of investigations were identified as having been mistakenly reported as pending cases in the preliminary procedure.
After the correction of the statistical data, these cases were removed from the records of unresolved cases, as they should not have been reported as active cases in the preliminary procedure.
The process of verification and improvement of data quality in SMIL will continue throughout 2026, with a focus on harmonizing statistical records and ensuring reporting that is as accurate, transparent, and compliant with judicial reporting standards as possible.

(2024): In section one which deals with severe criminal cases, we have included the criminal cases in the general department, the criminal cases in the serious crimes department and the criminal cases in the special department. Juvenile criminal cases are included in misdemeanor/minor cases section.
In section three, other cases we have included the number of criminal cases that are still in pre-trial proceedings.

(2023): In section one which deals with severe criminal cases, we have included the criminal cases in the general department, the criminal cases in the serious crimes department, the criminal and the cases in the special department. In section two misdemeanor refers to kundërvajtje, which are minor offenses that are usually punishable by a fee. In this section juvenile cases are included as well. In section three, other cases we have included the number of criminal cases that are still in pre-trial proceedings in the general department, in the serious crimes department, in the special department and juvenile department. In the previous years those data were not included in any category.

Albania

(2025): For Administrative law cases - The reduction of the backlog of pending cases – the courts have focused on decreasing the number of pending cases, thereby increasing the number of cases adjudicated.
The increase in the number of judges from 2024 to 2025 has directly contributed to enhanced adjudicatory capacity and to the acceleration of case processing.
The factors that may have contributed to the increase in the number of new cases filed at the appellate level include a more frequent exercise of the right of appeal by parties against first-instance court decisions, as well as an increase in the number of complex criminal cases, which tend to generate greater disputes and, consequently, a higher number of appeals.

(2023): The increase in the number of administrative resolved cases In 2023, the number of judges effectively in office is 8.3 judges marking an increase of 49% but again far from the full number of the corps of 13 judges. Also, the number of non-judge staff increased by 46% during 2023, reaching in 67 non-judge support staff.

(2022): The decrease in the number of resolved cases during 2022 is believed to have been caused by the decrease of the number of judges in the second instance due to different factors such as resignations, vetting process, promotions. In addition, the inequal distribution of cases between courts is another factor contributing to the problem.
As regards administrative cases, during 2022 the Administrative Appeal Court has functioned with 43% of judges.

Bosnia and Herzegovina
(2025): Civil (and commercial) litigious cases: In 2025, the trend of decreasing total number of unresolved civil commercial cases at the second level continued, as well as a decrease in the number of unresolved cases older than two years. This trend was especially facilitated by the continuous reduction of backlog in several of the largest courts that have jurisdiction over civil commercial disputes at the second stage. It is important to note that as in 2024 one of the second-level courts received a large number of simple cases, which were all resolved during the reporting year, contributing especially to the increase in the improvement of results in terms of clearance rate in the reporting year.
Administrative cases: The number of unresolved cases in this category has increased significantly because one of the courts continued to receive an increased number of cases in 2025, as it did in 2024, under those circumstances, this court was unable to increase the number of resolved cases and achieved a clearance rate of 68%. Other courts from this group achieved better results, but it was not enough to reduce the negative result generated by the above-mentioned court.

(2024): Civil (and commercial) litigious cases: In 2024, the trend of decreasing total number of unresolved civil commercial cases at the second level continued, as well as a decrease in the number of unresolved cases older than two years. This trend was especially facilitated by the continuous reduction of backlog in several of the largest courts that have jurisdiction over civil commercial disputes at the second stage. It is important to note that one of the second-level courts received a large number of simple cases, which were resolved during the reporting year, resulting in an increase in the total number of received cases compared to 2023, but this did not lead to an increase in the number of unresolved cases during 2024.
Administrative cases:
The courts registered the increased numbers of incoming administrative cases in 2024 in contrast to the previous year; the workload increased particularly in one of the courts, which had to decide urgently on the huge number of the complaints against the election commission's decisions in relation to the 2024 local elections. In addition, other courts have also received a somewhat higher number of administrative cases in 2024 compared to 2023, which has contributed to a slight increase in the number of unresolved cases in the reporting year.

(2023): Civil (and commercial) litigious cases: The number of incoming second instance civil commercial litigious cases declined in 2023, following a massive one-time increase in the influx of cases in one of the courts in 2022. The influx of this category of court cases in 2023 is in balance with the influx of cases in 2021. In addition, there has been a significant decrease in the number of second instance civil commercial litigious cases over recent years. This trend continued in 2023. It is particularly facilitated by the continuous reduction of backlog in several of the largest courts that have jurisdiction over second instance civil commercial litigious cases.
Administrative cases: The number of incoming second-instance administrative law cases remained stable in 2023 compared to the influx of cases in 2022 and 2021. In 2023, the courts continued to reduce the number of second-instance administrative law cases in 2023, which is in line with historical trends for this category of court cases.

(2022): There has been a significant decrease in the influx of second instance civil commercial litigious cases over recent years. In 2020, the number of incoming cases dropped additionally compared to 2019, due to Covid-19 restrictions decreasing the number of first instance court decisions; therefore, the number of appeals initiating the second instance court cases in 2020 was much lower, compared to the previous years. In 2021, however, the number of incoming second instance civil commercial litigious cases was increased by 9% compared to 2020; nevertheless, that number is by far smaller than the number of incoming second instance civil commercial litigious cases registered in 2019 and 2018. This trend continued in 2022. However, one of the second-instance courts received a large number of simple cases, which were resolved during the same year, which resulted in an increase in the total number of cases received compared to 2021. This was a one-time increase in the influx of cases, related specifically to this court's territorial jurisdiction. Furthermore, the courts with the biggest caseload in the country have managed to surpass the 100% clearance rate for many consecutive years, including the reference year; consequently, the number of pending second instance civil commercial litigious cases was lesser at the end of 2022. No major legislative reforms in terms of the laws on civil and commercial procedure took place in the recent years. When it comes to administrative court cases, the number of pending cases has been further reduced in 2022, confirming indicators from 2021.

Montenegro

(2025): The observed increase in the number of resolved cases in second-instance civil casses is a result of the higher number of incoming cases during the reporting period. The reported figures may present minor deviations from the standard CEPEJ case-flow formula (pending cases at the end of the year = pending cases at the beginning of the year + incoming cases − resolved cases) due to cases that were delegated or transferred to other competent courts during the reference year. Such transfers affect the number of pending cases and may therefore result in small discrepancies in horizontal consistency checks.

(2023): These are different types execution cases, execution of payments, cases upon constitutional appeal in commercial cases etc.
Decreasing number of resolved is a general issue, because of higher inflow of cases and same or less capacities.

(2025): The reason for increase of the incoming civil and commercial cases in 2025 is result of increased efficiency of first instance courts in 2024 compared to 2023 (36960 in 2023 and 38156 in 2024) as a result of new appointed first instance judges from the rank of the candidates form the Academy. These causes increasement of appeals in 2024 as a result of increased resolved first instance civil cases in 2024 comparing to 2023.
As regards administrative cases, the increase of Disposition Time is a result of a rapid increase of cases (backlog) at the end of 2024 and low CR. The increase in cases at the end of 2024 is the result of the non-implementation of the High Administrative Court conclusion regarding the amount of the costs in proceedings by the lower court, which has led to a higher number of appeals.
At the same time, the low CR is a result of an insufficient number of judges in the High Administrative Court.

(2024): The increase in the number of pending cases is result of insufficient number of judges.

(2023): Law clearance rate for civil and administrative cases is a result of insufficient number of judges.

(2022): Category 1 - In 2022 there was no reason for larger number of income cases as it was in 2021 (see explanation in previous cycle).

Serbia

(General Comment): Courts deciding in the second instance (on appeal) in the "non-criminal" cases, as courts of general jurisdiction are: Higher courts: they decide upon the decisions in civil disputes and the judgment in small claims and the non-contentious proceedings.
Appellate courts: upon the decisions of higher courts and judgements of the basic courts in civil disputes unless deciding on appeals is not under the competence of higher court.
Commercial Court of Appeal: second instance commercial proceedings involving appeals, conflict and delegation of jurisdiction between commercial courts.
Misdemeanour Court of Appeal: proceedings involving appeals against first instance decisions of misdemeanour courts in cases related to whistle-blowers and conflict and delegation of jurisdiction between misdemeanour courts (cases not misdemeanour as such).
There is no second instance in administrative disputes.
With regard to "non-litigious cases", and more particularly "other non-litigious cases", it should be pointed out that, in 2015, amendments to the Law on the Court Organization and the new Law on Protection of the Right to a Trial within a Reasonable Time have shifted responsibility for protection of this right from the Constitutional Court to the courts of general and special jurisdiction.

(2025): The reason for the significant and continuous decrease in both incoming and resolved non-litigious cases at second instance is the reduced inflow of cases based on the implementation of the Law on the Protection of the Right to Trial within a Reasonable Time ("Official Gazette of RS", no. 40/2015 and 92/2023). The amendments to the Law on the Protection of the Right to Trial within a Reasonable Time and the Law on the Constitutional Court from 2023 have enabled a constitutional complaint to be filed, if the right to a trial within a reasonable time has been violated, in proceedings relating to the long duration of enforcement and bankruptcy proceedings conducted for the settlement of recognized or established claims in which the bankruptcy or enforcement debtor is a company with majority social or state capital, even if legal remedies have not been exhausted. This enables the Constitutional Court to decide on a violation of the right to a trial within a reasonable time in a single procedure. (This reform relates to the execution of the judgment in the group of cases "Kačapor and others v. Serbia" No. 2269/06; see the decision of the Committee of Ministers of the Council of Europe https://hudoc.exec.coe.int/?i=CM/Del/Dec(2025)1531/H46-35E).

(2022): 1.The lower number of incoming cases in second instance in 2022 is primarily explained by the decrease of incoming civil and commercial cases in basic and commercial courts. During 2019, 2020 and 2021 there was a large number of specific type of cases related to the costs of bank loans. After supplementing the legal position of the Supreme Court of Cassation from September 16, 2021, number of these cases gradually decreases. However, due to the mentioned repetitive cases (litigation for reimbursement of costs bank loans), second instance courts were unable to handle such a large influx from the previous year (regardless of the fact that the inflow in 2022 was lower), so the number cases increased.

Kosovo*

(2025): Administrative Cases:
The failure to achieve a satisfactory level of efficiency during the reporting period is mainly related to the temporary absence of judges from performing their duties. This shortage has resulted from promotions to higher positions.

(2024): In section one, which deals with general civil and commercial cases, enforcement litigious cases are included because in Kosovo, enforcement procedure is contested procedure (In the past these cases were included in the non-litigious section, but we wish to correct this practice, see Article 17 of the Law on Enforcement Procedure).
Please note that registry cases are not dealt by the court in Kosovo. With regard to civil litigation cases at the second instance, a total of 8,875 such cases were received by the Court during 2023, whereas in 2024 a total of 15,774 cases were received, representing a 78% increase. (The number indicated here refers only to commercial litigious cases)
The reasons behind this significant rise in these cases are linked to the unwillingness of the relevant institutions to ensure the enforcement of workers' rights arising from employment relationships. More specifically, the increase relates to specific monetary claims derived from applicable legislation, including relevant laws for various categories of employees, the non-implementation of the General Collective Agreement of Kosovo, the respective Collective Agreements in the Education sector, the Sectoral Collective Agreement in the Health sector, and relevant secondary legislation regulating monetary rights from employment relationships for the Kosovo Police and the Kosovo Security Force. As a result of these lawsuits—specifically the cases resolved by first-instance courts—there has also been a corresponding increase in the number of such cases before the Court of Appeals of Kosovo.
With regard to the cases handled by the second-instance chambers of the Commercial Court, it should be emphasized that the underlying causes are related to the operationalization of this Court. Although the Kosovo Judicial Council (KJC) undertook all necessary actions within the legal timeframe to make the Court functional, this has been an ongoing process that began in 2022. Following the consolidation and full operationalization of the Court, the first-instance judges were able to resolve more cases in the following years, particularly in 2023, as conditions were created that improved the efficiency of the work process. This, in turn, directly contributed to an increase in the number of cases appealed to the second-instance chambers of the Commercial Court.

(2023): See the first instance case-flow data comment. Non-litigious cases number in the second instance started being provided from 2024. Regarding the administrative cases, the discrepancy is due to the establishment of the Commercial Court on 1 August 2022. As a result, business administrative cases were transferred to this new court, which explains the drop in the number of pending administrative cases at the beginning of 2023 compared to the end of 2022.

Albania

(2024): 3. Other criminal cases “Administrative criminal cases” and “Anti-mafia law cases”. From the data reflected here, anti-mafia law cases are 1 pending trial on January 1, 2024, 18 new cases, 19 adjudicated, 0 pending trial on December 31, 2024; there are no anti-mafia law cases older than two years. The rest are administrative criminal cases.

(2023): Based on the table of statistics collected from the reporting of the courts “other cases” refers to “administrative criminal cases”.

(2022): Other Criminal cases: a) criminal administrative cases (exe: probation requests, security measures etc) b) cases related to anti-mafia law.
Long disposition time is due to the lack of judges and uneven distribution of workload.

Bosnia and Herzegovina

(General Comment): As of 2022, i.e. the Evaluation of the judicial systems 2024 (2022 data), the statistics for severe criminal cases and other cases for this question include data for criminal cases from the first instance jurisdiction of second instance courts. In addition, since 2025 statistical data on the investigation phase of criminal proceedings in Bosnia and Herzegovina, which falls under the competence of the prosecutor's offices, are not included in the other criminal cases category; also, from 2025 onwards, these data do not include statistics on decisions of judges on motions/applications submitted to a judge by prosecutors during the preliminary phase of the criminal case, nor data on cases for the execution of final convictions in criminal cases, hence the huge discrepancies in the statistical data values for 2025 compared to 2024.
Second instance courts have a dual subject matter in criminal matters. The second instance courts have first instance jurisdiction for criminal offences for which more than 10 years of imprisonment is prescribed, they also have second instance jurisdiction to decide on appeals against the decisions brought by the first instance courts for criminal offences for which up to 10 years of imprisonment is prescribed. The statistics of second instance courts on criminal law cases (Q55, i.e. incoming, resolved, pending, pending older than two years) include only second instance cases within the jurisdiction of the second instance courts, whereas the first instance cases within their jurisdiction are included in the statistics under the question Q52 First instance courts: number of criminal law cases. In addition, the statistics included under the question Q040 do not include data on severe criminal cases managed by the three courts that are included in the category of supreme courts under the Q57 Highest instance courts (Supreme Court): Number of criminal law cases. Their caseload in terms of criminal law consists of the first (i.e. one of the courts in this category has both first and second instance criminal jurisdiction), second and third instance severe criminal cases. The courts of appeal have jurisdiction only to deal with the second-instance misdemeanor cases. Severe criminal offences: a criminal offense is an unlawful act which violates or jeopardizes the protected values, and which is, because of the danger it represents, defined by law as a criminal offense and for which a punishment is prescribed. Criminal sanctions are prison punishments, suspended sentence, security measures and educational measures. Examples of serious offenses are criminal acts against state, homicide, organized crime, criminal acts against official duty (i.e. corruption cases), theft and other crimes against property, rape and other crimes against sexual integrity, traffic accidents where a person suffered grievous bodily injury or a significant damage and other crimes against public transportation etc.
Minor offence cases: minor offences are violations of public order or of regulations on economic and financial operations defined as such by laws or other regulations, whose characteristics are described and for which sanctions are prescribed. The following sanctions may be imposed upon a person found responsible for commission of a minor offence: fine; suspended sentence; reprimand; and protective measures. The following measures may be imposed as a consequence of being found responsible for commission of a minor offence: confiscation of gains; obligation to compensate damages; penalty points; and deprivation of liberty to compel payment of a fine. Examples of minor offences are traffic offences, violations of public order, begging etc.
Statistics on misdemeanor offences include only data on the cases in which the main part of the misdemeanor proceedings has started.

(2025): Criminal cases: As of 2022, i.e. the Evaluation of the judicial systems 2024 (2022 data), the statistics for severe criminal cases and other cases for this question include data for criminal cases from the first instance jurisdiction of second instance courts. In addition, since 2025 statistical data on the investigation phase of criminal proceedings in Bosnia and Herzegovina, which falls under the competence of the prosecutor's offices, are not included in the other criminal cases category; also, from 2025 onwards, these data do not include statistics on decisions of judges on motions/applications submitted to a judge by prosecutors during the preliminary phase of the criminal case, nor data on cases for the execution of final convictions in criminal cases, hence the huge discrepancies in the statistical data values for 2025 compared to 2024.
The general trends for the second instance criminal cases in 2025 remain similar to the tendencies from the previous reporting cycle, with the only exception being that in percentage terms the number of pending cases older than 2 years from the date the case came to the second instance court has significantly increased, although in absolute terms that number of cases has not increased substantially.
Misdemeanor cases: In 2025, the total number of unresolved second-instance misdemeanor cases increased marginally in terms of absolute numbers, due to a somewhat weaker results in terms of clearance rate in some courts. Otherwise, in most courts, the caseflow of second-instance misdemeanor cases continues to be stable.

(2024): Criminal cases:
As of 2022, i.e. the Evaluation of the judicial systems 2024 (data 2022), the statistics for severe criminal cases and other cases for this question include only data for criminal cases from the second instance jurisdiction of relevant courts, whereas the statistics on cases generating from their first instance jurisdiction are included in the data for the first instance courts: number of criminal law cases. Regardless of the above change, the general trends for criminal cases for this question remain similar to the tendencies from the previous reporting cycles, with small increase in the number of pending cases being registered from year to year.
Misdemeanor cases:
The number of pending second-instance misdemeanor cases was decreased during 2023 by 39%, unlike the previous reporting year (i.e. 2023) during which the number of pending cases was increased by 13%. However, it is important to note that this modification was not significant in absolute terms. The number of incoming and resolved cases remained relatively stable in the reporting year compared to 2023.

(2023): Criminal cases:
As of 2022, i.e. the Evaluation of the judicial systems 2024 (data 2022), the statistics for severe criminal cases and other cases for this question include only data for criminal cases from the second instance jurisdiction of relevant courts, whereas the statistics on cases generating from their first instance jurisdiction are included in the data for the first instance courts: number of criminal law cases. This change may lead to some inconsistencies between data for 2023 and the previous reporting cycle. Regardless of the above change, the general trends for criminal cases for this question remain similar to the tendencies from the previous reporting cycles.
Misdemeanor cases:
The number of pending second-instance misdemeanor cases rose during 2023 by 13%, unlike the previous reporting year (i.e. 2022) during which the number of pending cases decreased by 10%. There has been a significant decrease of the first instance severe criminal cases over recent years to the second instance courts of the aforementioned category. The trend advanced in 2020 due to the decrease of activity of public prosecutors and judges in the context of measures implemented against the spread of Covid-19 virus. In addition, in 2020 the number of incoming second instance criminal cases dropped additionally compared to 2019, due to Covid-19 restrictions decreasing the number of first instance court decisions. As a result, the number of appeals initiating the second instance severe criminal cases in 2020 was much lower than in 2019 and 2018. The number of the first instance severe criminal cases remained stable in 2021 and 2022.

(2022): During 2021 the High Court in Podgorica operated with 6 judges less. In the same year there were no new appointments to fill the missing judicial positions in the court. That affected the efficiency of the court, which is the one with the highest number of criminal cases in the second instance.

In the Criminal Department at the second instance, achieving 100% efficiency is not always possible due to the nature of the case flow and the timing of their receipt. Specifically, a considerable number of cases are received during the last quarter of the year, which limits the actual possibility of reviewing and adjudicating them within the same calendar year.

(2024): In section one which deals with severe criminal cases, we have included the criminal cases in the general department, the criminal cases in the serious crimes department and the criminal cases in the special department. Juvenile criminal cases are included in misdemeanor/minor cases section.
In section three, other cases we have included the number of criminal cases that are still in pre-trial proceedings.

Question 56

Albania

(2025): The clearance of the accumulated backlog of cases (carried-over cases) – the court is adjudicating pending cases from previous years, not only newly filed cases for the current year; the prioritization of older or less complex cases, as well as the stabilization or reduction of the incoming caseload, has guided the court towards reducing the backlog through their adjudication.
For civil (and commercial) contentious cases (including enforcement cases and, where possible, excluding administrative law cases—see category 3):
“Completed data for general civil cases with opposing parties and commercial cases with opposing parties.”
For non-litigious cases (civil and commercial non-litigious cases, registry cases, and other non-litigious matters):
“Completed data for civil cases without opposing parties.”

(2022): Due to the state of the management system of cases used by the Supreme Court, it is impossible to realize the specification of the typology of civil cases according to the subcategories of the corner.
The registration of cases in the High Court is done similarly to other courts at the national level, both manually in registers and through the digital ICMIS system.
This information is directly related to the judges effectively on duty, which has changed. The number of judges in the High Court has increased in 2022, resulting in an increase in the number of cases adjudicated. It is to be also considered the number of judges graduated from 2020-2022, who are part of the judicial system . In addition, in response to the needs of courts, the HJC has used various legal mechanisms such as assignment of judges to another court and delegation scheme.
The total number of “other than criminal cases” while the number of civil litigious cases and non-litigious cases is NA due to the aggregation of data into three major divisions: civil, criminal, and administrative, which we have from the statistics provided by the Supreme Court.

Bosnia and Herzegovina
(2022): In 2022, the courts in this category maintained the trend from the previous reporting cycles to make a certain decrease of the number of pending non-criminal cases. Also, these courts continued to keep the low number of pending cases older than 2 years from the date the cases came to the courts, due to the consistent implementation of the principle to deal with cases chronologically within their respective backlog reduction plans.

Montenegro
(2022): By decision of the Judicial Council in August 2021, the function of the acting president and 5 judges of the Supreme Court ended, so the Supreme Court at the end of 2021 remained with 6 judges out of 19 (including president). This situation significantly affected workload and as a consequence the backlog of cases increased.

Such kind of resolved cases in 2022 in the Supreme Court increased as a result of the action undertaken by the Supreme Court aimed to decrease its backlog. Namely, judges dealing with these cases gave them priority in deciding.

(2025): The clearance of the accumulated case backlog (carried-over cases) – the court is adjudicating pending cases from previous years, not only newly filed cases from the current year; the prioritization of older or less complex cases; and the stabilization or reduction of the incoming caseload have collectively guided the court towards reducing the backlog through adjudication.

Other cases can be: cases upon requests to expedite the proceedings (the control request) and a claim for just satisfaction, cases of solving issues of jurisdiction etc.

North Macedonia

(General Comment): Supreme Court deals with misdemeanor cases only upon the request for protection of legality and requests for repetition of the criminal procedure. However, the number of this kind of cases is negligible.

(2025): In general, it is not justified to compare the performance data of the Supreme Court for 2025 with the latest available data from the CEPEJ Questionnaire for 2022, for two reasons: first, there is a significant temporal gap between the two datasets (2022 and 2025); and second, the 2022 court performance data are not suitable for comparison due to the case backlog imbalance arising as a consequence of the COVID-19 crisis.

(2022): The main reason for the decrease of -34.43 % for incoming severe criminal cases compared to 2020 is the decreased number of cases brought to the courts by public prosecutors Q 107 (from 14.161 cases in 2020 to 10.374 cases in 2022). Also, in CORONA years work of the courts was reduced. As a result of that, a few years after there was a decrease of appeals and extraordinary legal remedies before the Supreme Court.

Question 58

(General Comment): Administrative cases (Administrative disputes):

In Bosnia and Herzegovina, an administrative dispute (i.e. administrative case) is a court procedure regulated by thematic legislation at four levels of government. It is a court procedure carried out by courts of general jurisdiction through which disputes between individuals (natural or legal persons) and administrative bodies or institutions are resolved. It is a special form of judicial procedure initiated by natural or legal persons and relates to challenging administrative decisions or actions made or taken by administrative bodies. The defendant in an administrative dispute is the competent administrative authority whose administrative act is being contested. An administrative dispute can also be initiated when the competent authority has not issued the appropriate administrative act regarding a party's request or appeal (i.e. administrative silence).

Under the conditions set in the above-mentioned legislation, a party can challenge a court decision by which an administrative dispute was resolved in the first instance by submitting a request for its review in the second instance court procedure.

As indicated in the general comments for Q52, courts of general jurisdiction handle administrative cases in the first and second instance. In the first instance, administrative cases are handled by the courts of general jurisdiction, which in other types of cases act as second instance courts (i.e., second instance civil and commercial litigious cases), while regarding other types of cases, these courts deal with both first instance and second instance cases (i.e., criminal cases) depending on the severity of punishment prescribed by criminal legislation. In the second instance, administrative cases on the appealed legal remedy are handled by courts classified in the group of highest instance courts, with that part of the caseload included in the answer to question Q54.

Civil and commercial litigious cases:

In Bosnia and Herzegovina, a civil and commercial litigious case is a court procedure regulated by civil procedure legislation at four levels of government. It is a court procedure initiated by a plaintiff with a civil lawsuit against defendant which is carried out by courts of general jurisdiction based on which courts conduct hearings and make decisions in civil law disputes with regard to matters such as: determination of ownership of real estate, claims for damages, non-fulfillment of contractual obligations, labor disputes, property disputes, interference with property, small claims disputes, commercial disputes, divorce proceedings and other family matters etc.

Under the conditions set in the above-mentioned legislation, a party can challenge a first instance court decision by submitting an appeal to the second instance court.

In addition, the parties may file the request for revision of the final second instance judgment within thirty (30) days from the day of the service of the judgment. The revision shall not be allowed if the value of the contested part of the final judgment does not exceed 15,000 €. In addition, the revision may also allow be allowed in all cases if it finds that deciding on revision is important for the application of law in other cases.

Exceptionally, in one of the jurisdictions in Bosnia and Herzegovina, commercial litigation cases (e.g. disputes between business companies, bankruptcy proceedings) are dealt with by specialized first-instance and second-instance commercial court, while these cases at the third instance are resolved by the relevant court of general jurisdiction.

Non litigious cases (civil and commercial non litigious cases, registry cases, other non-litigious)

The most relevant categories among civil and commercial non-litigious cases are non-litigious enforcement cases initiated by creditors on the basis of uncontested payment orders or court verdicts delivered in civil or commercial litigious cases, inheritance proceedings, non-contentious proceedings related to personal and family matters (e.g. establishing that

Question 59

(General Comment): Q53
Severe criminal offences: a criminal offense is an unlawful act which violates or jeopardizes the protected values and which is, because of the danger it represents, defined by law as a criminal offense and for which a punishment is prescribed. Criminal sanctions are: punishments, suspended sentence, security measures and educational measures. Examples of serious criminal offenses are: criminal acts against state, homicide, organized crime, criminal acts against official duty (i.e. corruption cases), theft and other crimes against property, rape and other crimes against sexual integrity, traffic accidents where a person suffered grievous bodily injury or a significant damage and other crimes against public transportation etc.
Statistics on severe criminal offences include data on the cases in which the main part of the proceedings has started following the confirmation of indictment by court.
Minor offence or misdemeanor cases: minor offences are violations of public order or of regulations on economic and financial operations defined as such by laws or other regulations, whose characteristics are described and for which sanctions are prescribed. The following sanctions may be imposed upon a person found responsible for commission of a minor offence: fine; suspended sentence; reprimand; and protective measures. The following measures may be imposed because of being found responsible for a minor offence: confiscation of gains; obligation to compensate damages; penalty points; and deprivation of liberty to compel payment of a fine. Examples of minor offences: traffic offences, violations of public order, begging etc.
Statistics on misdemeanor offences include data on the cases in which the main part of the misdemeanor proceedings has started.
Since 2025 statistics regarding the execution phase of misdemeanor cases are not included in the other criminal cases category, hence the huge discrepancies in the statistical data values for 2025 compared to 2024.
As of 2022, i.e. the Evaluation of the judicial systems 2024 (2022 data), the statistics for severe criminal cases and other cases for this question include data for criminal cases from the first instance jurisdiction of second instance courts. In addition, since 2025 statistical data on the investigation phase of criminal proceedings in Bosnia and Herzegovina, which falls under the competence of the prosecutor's offices, are not included in the other criminal cases category; also, from 2025 onwards, these data do not include statistics on decisions of judges on motions/applications submitted to a judge by prosecutors during the preliminary phase of the criminal case, nor data on cases for the execution of final convictions in criminal cases, hence the huge discrepancies in the statistical data values for 2025 compared to 2024.
Q55
Second instance courts have a dual subject matter in criminal matters. The second instance courts have first instance jurisdiction for criminal offences for which more than 10 years of imprisonment is prescribed, they also have second instance jurisdiction to decide on appeals against the decisions brought by the first instance courts for criminal offences for which up to 10 years of imprisonment is prescribed. The statistics of second instance courts on criminal law cases (Q55, i.e. incoming, resolved, pending, pending older than two years) include only second instance cases within the jurisdiction of the second instance courts, whereas the first instance cases within their jurisdiction are included in the statistics under the question Q52 First instance courts: number of criminal law cases. In addition, the statistics included under the question Q55 do not include data on severe criminal cases dealt with by the three courts that are included in the category of supreme courts under the Q57 Highest instance courts (Supreme Court): Number of criminal law cases. Question 60

Albania

(2025): The average time required for the resolution of civil cases overall, administrative cases overall, and criminal cases overall has been calculated for each category using the following formula:
(total number of cases pending at the end of the year / total number of cases adjudicated during the year) × 365.
For Civil and commercial litigious cases the requested data concerning the average length of proceedings (Disposition Time – DT indicator) at the first and second instance levels for general civil cases with opposing parties and commercial cases with opposing parties cannot be provided, as their calculation would reflect an inaccurate situation.
In the absence of a breakdown into sub-sections, the analysis has been conducted at the level of the civil section as a whole, in accordance with the CEPEJ methodology. Under this approach, the DT indicator (average case disposition time) is approximately 297 days at the first instance level and approximately 2,318 days at the second instance level.
Also for Criminal cases (severe and misdemeanour) the requested data concerning the average length of proceedings (Disposition Time – DT indicator) at the first and second instance levels for criminal cases, including felonies and misdemeanors, cannot be provided, as their calculation would reflect an inaccurate situation.
In the absence of a breakdown into sub-sections, the analysis has been conducted at the level of the criminal section as a whole, in accordance with the CEPEJ methodology. Under this approach, the DT indicator (average case disposition time) is approximately 87 days at the first instance level and approximately 920 days at the second instance level.

(2022): In the present condition of the CMS system, we cannot calculate the exact average length of proceedings. We use the disposition time as a proxy.

Bosnia and Herzegovina
(General Comment): Description of calculation method: The average length of court procedure is calculated as the average of time needed to resolve a case for cases resolved during the reporting year. The average length of court procedure for resolving the case is calculated separately for different phases of the court procedure - from the day of initiating the phase of the court procedure to its completion. The data are retrieved from the case management system.
Average total length of the total procedure:
The average length of the total procedure is calculated as the average of time needed to resolve a case for all cases resolved in the different phases of court procedure during the year. (e. g. The first instance civil case is resolved in 100 days from its lodging with the first instance court, second instance civil case is resolved in 120 days from its lodging with the second instance court, and third instance civil case was resolved in 120 days. The average length of the total procedure is calculated as follows: 100+120+120/3=113,3 days.)

(2025): In 2025, the average duration of resolved civil and commercial litigious proceedings decreased at all three levels of the court system compared to the values reported in 2024.
Average length of resolved cases in the first instance got reduced slightly (i.e. 6%), which is in line with this indicator at a value of about 500 days in the previous two reporting years (2023 and 2024), as well as in line with a certain decrease in the number of unresolved cases of this category in the reporting year.
Average length of resolved cases in the 2nd instance got reduced considerably (i.e.28%) because the backlog of old cases is continuously decreasing and new cases are being resolved faster, also, as in 2024, one of the courts from this group had to resolve a large number of new simple cases in a short period of time, as indicated in the commentary for Q54 Second instance courts (appeal): Number of 'other than criminal law' cases.
Average length of resolved cases in the 3rd instance got reduced substantially (i.e. 40%) mostly because one of the courts in this category drastically reduced the number of old cases, which allows that court to resolve new cases in a very short time, reducing the overall duration of proceedings at this level of the court system in 2025.

(2024): In 2024, data on the average duration of civil and commercial litigious proceedings remains mostly stable, with the exception of a significant reduction in the average length of second instance cases. This reduction is largely due to the fact that one of the courts had to resolve a large number of new cases in a short period of time, as indicated in the commentary for 039 Second instance courts (appeal): Number of 'other than criminal law' cases.
As in previous years, changes have been recorded in the data for this reporting year compared to the previous year regarding other types of court cases under 041 (Contested divorce cases, Termination cases, Insolvency cases, Robbery cases and Intentional homicide, Bribery cases, Influence peddling). It is important to place these differences in the following context. Primarily, the variations are registered within a relatively small number of cases, so the variations could be influenced significantly by the length of proceedings and other circumstances of individual cases (e.g. robberies and intentional homicides) or the registered variations are high percentage wise but they are not significant in absolute terms (e.g. litigious divorce cases, employment dismissal cases, insolvency cases). When it comes to the Bribery cases and Trading in influence cases, it is important to note that the prosecutors’ offices and the courts in Bosnia and Herzegovina process very often the corruption cases as the cases of the Abuse of Office (i.e. An official or responsible person who, by taking advantage of his office or official authority and by exceeding the limits of his official authority or by failing to perform his official duty, acquires a benefit to himself or to another person or causes damage to another person or seriously violates the rights of another, shall be punished by imprisonment). The statistics included in the reply for the Question 41 do not include the court cases in which Bribery and Trading in influence are dealt with together in conjunction with the Organized crime and other criminal offences.

As in previous years, as far as other types of court cases are concerned under the Question 41 (Litigious divorce cases, Employment dismissal cases, Insolvency cases, Robbery cases, and Intentional homicides, Bribery cases, Trading in influence), it is important to put these differences into the following context. Primarily, the variations are registered within a relatively small number of cases, so the variations could be influenced significantly by the length of proceedings and other circumstances of individual cases (e.g. robberies and intentional homicides) or the registered variations are high percentage-wise but they are not significant in absolute terms (e.g. litigious divorce cases, employment dismissal cases, insolvency cases). When it comes to the Bribery cases and Trading in influence cases, it is important to note that the prosecutors' offices and the courts in Bosnia and Herzegovina process very often the corruption cases as the cases of the Abuse of Office (i.e. An official or responsible person who, by taking advantage of his office or official authority and by exceeding the limits of his official authority or by failing to perform his official duty, acquires a benefit to himself or to another person or causes damage to another person or seriously violates the rights of another, shall be punished by imprisonment). The statistics included in the reply for the Question 41 do not include the court cases in which Bribery and Trading in influence are dealt with together in conjunction with the Organized crime and other criminal offences.

(2022): Generally, the relevant indicators regarding civil and commercial litigious cases for the reference year are consistent with the statistical information for such cases in 2021. It is important to note that the backlog of old litigious small claims cases for unpaid utility bills is concentrated in the several first instance courts in the biggest cities in Bosnia and Herzegovina.
The average duration of second-instance litigation and economic resolved cases decreased significantly due to the increase in the number of resolved cases in the largest courts of second instance in Bosnia and Herzegovina.
As in previous years, as far as other types of court cases are concerned under the Question 41 (Litigious divorce cases, Employment dismissal cases, Insolvency cases, Robbery cases, and Intentional homicides, Bribery cases, Trading in influence), it is important to put these differences into the following context. Primarily, the variations are registered within a relatively small number of cases, so the variations could be influenced significantly by the length of proceedings and other circumstances of individual cases (e.g. robberies and intentional homicides) or the registered variations are high percentage-wise but they are not significant in absolute terms (e.g. litigious divorce cases, employment dismissal cases, insolvency cases). When it comes to the Bribery cases and Trading in influence cases, it is important to note that the prosecutors' offices and the courts in Bosnia and Herzegovina process very often the corruption cases as the cases of the Abuse of Office (i.e. An official or responsible person who, by taking advantage of his office or official authority and by exceeding the limits of his official authority or by failing to perform his official duty, acquires a benefit to himself or to another person or causes damage to another person or seriously violates the rights of another, shall be punished by imprisonment). The statistics included in the reply for the Question 41 do not include the court cases in which Bribery and Trading in influence are dealt with together in conjunction with the Organized crime and other criminal offences.

Montenegro

(2025): An increase in the average length of proceedings is observed in both the first instance (from 391 to 490 days) and the overall duration (from 399 to 511 days).
This corresponds to an increase of approximately 25% and 28%.
The increase is mainly due to a higher proportion of older and more complex cases being resolved during the reporting period, as well as cases processed

North Macedonia

(2025): Until now, these data were calculated manually by the courts. Starting this year, a new tool has been introduced in the software application for their automatic calculation. Additionally, the results in this reporting cycle are calculated using a new formula that provides a fully accurate picture of the duration of proceedings.

(2022): It must be emphasized that the data are collected manually from the ICT system in all courts within North Macedonia. After that, the data are calculated manually in the courts and in the Ministry of justice (Excel calculation). Some of data are only from one court (for example: 130 days at first instance - trading in influence cases). 2/27 from courts didn't answer correctly to the tables, so 2 courts are excluded from calculations. According to this, the collection of data for these questions is without guarantees for total accuracy.

Serbia

(2025): The average length of proceedings is calculated on the annual basis, and it is determined based on the following formula:
number of pending cases at the end Average duration = _____ x 365 number of disposed cases during the year With regard to civil and commercial litigious cases, these comprise all those specified in question no. 52.1, 54.1 and 56.1, and the relevant registers may be consulted within the response to question no.58.
Regarding administrative cases (Q.no. 52.3 and 56.3), relevant registers may be consulted within the response to question no.58 (under administrative cases).
With regard to criminal cases (severe and misdemeanor), these comprise all those specified in question no. 53.1, 53.2; 55.1, 55.2; and 57.1, 57.2, and the relevant registers may be consulted within the response to question no.59.

(2024): As already stated in previous reports only data on the insolvency cases is available (according to the calculation of the Commercial Appellate Court). The notable decrease in the average duration of second-instance proceedings (41 days in the 2025 report compared to 52 days in the 2024 report) is primarily due to the resolution of several long-standing bankruptcy cases, some of which had been pending for more than 20 years.
These cases concerned former socially-owned enterprises (including banks) whose assets were located in various republics of the former SFRY. Since the Agreement on Succession Issues did not address this matter, bankruptcy proceedings against such entities could not be concluded for years before the Commercial Court of Appeal.
In 2023, the Supreme Court issued four legal opinions in the field of commercial law, which facilitated the resolution or suspension of a number of these long-pending cases (see: https://www.vrh.sud.rs/sr/2023-0). This had a direct impact on reducing the average duration of proceedings before the second-instance commercial court.
According to the CEPEJ formula:
In 2023: 396 cases were resolved and 56 remained pending → average duration: 51,61 days
In 2024: 351 cases were resolved and 39 remained pending → average duration: 40,55 days

(2023): As already stated in previous reports only data on the insolvency cases is available (according to the calculation of the Commercial Appellate Court)

Question 61

Bosnia and Herzegovina
(2025): Overall, the statistics on the case flow of specific cases in the first instance courts, which are concerned under Q61, remain relatively stable in the reference year (i.e. 2025) compared to the previous relevant reporting period (i.e. 2022). Primarily, the variations exist within a relatively small number of cases. In addition, the registered variations are high percentage wise but they are not significant in absolute terms. It is important to note that certain number of pending criminal cases (i.e. robbery cases, homicide cases), which are older than 2 years, cannot be resolved due to the procedural gridlock that the courts cannot resolve (e.g. an accused person is not traceable). When it comes to the Bribery, Trading in influence, it is important to note that the prosecutors' offices and the courts in Bosnia and Herzegovina process very often the corruption cases as the cases of the Abuse of Office (i.e. An official or responsible person who, by taking advantage of his office or official authority and by exceeding the limits of his official authority or by failing to perform his official duty, acquires a benefit to himself or to another person or causes damage to another person or seriously violates the rights of another, shall be punished by imprisonment). In addition, the statistics included in the reply for Q61 do not include the court cases in which Bribery, Trading in influence, and Money laundering are dealt with together in conjunction with Organized crime and other criminal offences.

Albania

(2025): Regarding categories such as suspended, transferred, joined/split, or reopened cases, these categories are treated dynamically within the prosecution case management system and do not always represent a definitive exit from the caseflow. Therefore, they may not always be directly reflected as 'processed cases', since their procedural status may change during the reporting period. For example, cases initially dismissed may later be returned by the court for further investigation, or cases sent for trial may be returned during the preparatory hearing phase for additional investigative actions, thus re-entering the active caseflow.
So, in line with the solution suggested, these categories may be reflected under 'discontinued for other reasons', in order to ensure horizontal consistency of the data.

Bosnia and Herzegovina
(General Comment): Traffic offence cases are dealt with by the courts under the legislation on misdemeanor proceedings. In general, the misdemeanor offences are determined by the law and other regulations as violations of public order punishable by fines. The police, not the prosecution, initiate and present traffic offence cases in the courts.

Please note that data presented in column 3.2. Concluded by a penalty or a measure imposed or negotiated by the public prosecutor were excluded from the column 3. Processed cases, since that data in already included in 3.3. Cases brought to court in order to avoid double counting of the same data.

Question 62-b

Bosnia and Herzegovina
(General Comment): Traffic offence cases are dealt with by the courts under the legislation on misdemeanor proceedings. In general, the misdemeanor offences are determined by the law and other regulations as violations of public order punishable by fines. The police, not the prosecution, initiate and present traffic offence cases in the courts.

(2025): Out of 19 593 received cases in 2025 in this category, the prosecutors' offices in Bosnia and Herzegovina received 48% of cases in which their perpetrators could not be identified by the police when the case was filed (KTN cases), while the prosecutors' offices received 52% of cases in which a prosecutor needs to preliminarily establish if an illegal behavior constitutes a criminal act (KTA cases).
Prosecutors are not responsible for traffic offences.
Namely, in Bosnia and Herzegovina traffic offences (e.g. speeding) are dealt with by police as minor offences. When the legal conditions are met, the police submit a request to initiate misdemeanor proceedings against the perpetrator of the misdemeanor to the competent court of general jurisdiction.
Other minor offences are violations of public order or of regulations on economic and financial operations defined as such by laws or other regulations. The following sanctions may be imposed upon a person found responsible for commission of a minor offence: fine, suspended sentence, reprimand, and protective measures. The following protective measures may be imposed as a consequence of being found responsible for committing a minor offence: confiscation of gains; obligation to compensate damages; penalty points; and deprivation of liberty to compel payment of a fine.

Albania

(2025): GPO-Article 328 of the Criminal Procedure Code Dismissal of charge or case 1. Upon termination of preliminary investigations, where it is proceeded against criminal misdemeanours, the prosecutor shall decide on dismissing the charge or case when: a) it is clear that the fact does not exist; b) the fact is not provided for by law as a criminal offence; c) the victim has not lodged a complaint or waives it, in cases where the proceedings are initiated on his request;)
ç the person cannot be taken as defendant or he may not be punished; d) there exists a reason that extinguishes the criminal offence or for which the criminal proceedings should not be initiated or continued; dh) it is proven that the defendant has not committed the offence or it is not proven that the defendant has committed the offence; e) the defendant has been adjudicated by a final court decision for the same act;)
ë the defendant dies; f) in other cases provided for by the law.
2. The prosecutor shall, within 5 days of the decision on dismissal being made, notify the defendant, his defence lawyer, the victim and their heirs, when their identity and domicile results from the proceeding acts, as well as the person having filed the criminal report or complaint, thus making known the right to get to know the acts, to take copies thereof and to file an appeal before the court.
Article 329/a Request for dismissal of a charge or case 1. Upon termination of the preliminary investigations, when it is being proceeded for crimes and when any of the cases provided for in paragraph 1 of Article 328 of this Code occurs, the prosecutor asks the judge of the preliminary hearing to dismiss the charge or the case.
2. In cases where the prosecutor has filed a request to send the case to trial, the request for dismissal of the charge or case, shall be adjudicated jointly with the request for sending the case to trial. 3. All acts and documents contained in the investigation file shall be attached to the request of the prosecutor, including also the acts carried out before the judge of preliminary investigations, as well as material evidence, unless they are stored in another location.
4. The request is notified to the defendant, their defence lawyer, the victim or their heirs, when their identity and residence emerge from proceedings acts, as well as to the person who has filed the criminal report or the complaint. They have the right to have access to the acts and evidence, and to take copies of them.
GPO-The prosecutor plays a central role in initiating and negotiating these 2 institutions, a penalty order and a plea agreement, which may be concluded with the defendant only when the legal conditions set out in the Criminal Procedure Code are met. Once the agreements are reached, they are submitted to the court for judicial review, and the court has the authority to approve or reject them. The data presented in the table reflect the number of requests submitted by prosecutors to the court, not the court's decisions.The data entered in the table (point 3.2), refers only to the requests of the prosecutor in front of the court, pursuant to the Criminal Procedure Code, articles Article 406/a- 406/ç for the penalty order and articles 406/d-406/f for the guilty plea agreement.
Specifically;
"Article 406/a
Request for approval of the penalty order
1. When the defendant is accused for committing a misdemeanour, the prosecutor, within three months from the registration of the name of the person to whom the criminal offence is attributed, shall issue a reasoned penalty order determining the punishment and request its approval by the court, if he deems that a prison sentence shall not apply.

(2024): 2. Incoming/received cases- Proocedings registered for the year 2024.
3.1.1 -In albanian legislation this figure refers to suspension of investigation Art. 326 of Criminal Procedure Code Suspension of the investigation
“1. In case the defendant is unknown, or when the defendant suffers from a serious illness which prevents further investigations, the prosecutor shall decide the suspension of investigations....”
3.1.2- In albania legislation the legal defition in this table, refers to non initiation of investigation by the prosecutor, Art. 290 of the Albanian CPC. “Criminal proceedings shall not commence when:
A the person has died;
B the person has no criminal responsibility or has not reached the criminal liability age;
C the complaint of the victim is lacking or he/she withdraws the complaint;
Ç the act is not provided by law as a criminal offence or when it is clearly proven that the act does not exist;
D the criminal offence has been extinct;
Dh an amnesty has been issued;
E in all other cases provided for by the law.”
Following the clarification provided by the General Prosecutor's Office of Albania, it is important to note that the data reported under 3.1.2 ("Discontinued by the public prosecutor due to the lack of an established offence or a specific legal situation") do not represent criminal proceedings that were initiated and later discontinued. According to Article 290 of the Albanian Criminal Procedure Code, the figures reported under 3.1.2 refer to criminal complaints or referrals for which a decision was made not to initiate proceedings, and that were therefore never registered as official cases.
Furthermore, these cases are not included under "incoming cases" in the questionnaire, as they do not enter the official procedural flow. This methodological difference explains the apparent inconsistency in the data, as these complaints are not aligned with the CEPEJ definition of "discontinued cases".

(2023): 2. Incoming/received cases Procedings registered for the year 2023.
3.1.1 In albanian legislation this figure refers to suspension of investigation Art. 326 of Criminal Procedure Code

Bosnia and Herzegovina

(2024): Around 84% of pending cases on 31 December 2024 were cases involving criminal acts in which their perpetrators could not be identified by police when the case was filed, cases in which a prosecutor needs to preliminarily establish if an illegal behavior constitutes a criminal act. Additionally, around 16% of pending cases were cases against known minor and adult perpetrators. These cases are considered to be more important for the society and the criminal justice system compared to the other group of cases (cases involving criminal acts in which their perpetrators could not be identified by police when the case was filed, cases in which a prosecutor needs to preliminarily establish if an illegal behavior constitutes a criminal act). The number of unresolved cases in prosecutor's offices at the end of 2023 is lower by about 18000 than the number of unresolved cases at the beginning of 2024. This inconsistency occurred because during 2024, the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina and some prosecutor's offices noticed in the Case Management System in prosecutor's offices that some prosecutors did not mark as completed cases that were resolved in previous years. Mostly these were cases involving criminal acts in which their perpetrators could not be identified by police when the case was filed, cases in which a prosecutor needs to preliminarily establish if an illegal behavior constitutes a criminal act. As a result, these cases were marked during the reporting year as resolved in the Case Management System in Prosecutor's Offices, which led to the aforementioned inconsistency in the data on the work of prosecutors' offices.

(2023): Around 88% of pending cases on 31 December 2023 were cases involving criminal acts in which their perpetrators could not be identified by police when the case was filed, cases in which a prosecutor needs to preliminarily establish if an illegal behavior constitutes a criminal act. Additionally, around 12% of pending cases were cases against known minor and adult perpetrators. These cases are considered to be more important for the society and the criminal justice system compared to the other group of cases (cases involving criminal acts in which their perpetrators could not be identified by police when the case was filed, cases in which a prosecutor needs to preliminarily establish if an illegal behavior constitutes a criminal act).

This year under the category „offender could not be identified“ we put NAP due to the fact that in our legal system these cases are ongoing and not discontinued. However, we count this cases under the category incoming cases/ 4546 as unknown offender.

Albania

(General Comment): GPO- According to the Criminal Procedure Code of the Republic of Albania, the prosecutor plays a central and leading role in the criminal process, from the moment information about a criminal offence is received until the case is brought before the court. The prosecutor conducts criminal prosecution and represents the accusation before the court on behalf of the State. The prosecutor directs and controls preliminary investigations, supervises the activity of the judicial police, and is entitled to carry out any investigative action deemed necessary for establishing the acussation.
In this context, the prosecutor is the authority that decides on the initiation or non-initiation of criminal proceedings, the dismissal of the case or the charges, as well as on requesting that the case be brought to trial, in accordance with the cases and criteria provided by law. The prosecutor may also conclude cooperation agreements with collaborators of justice, reach agreements on the admission of guilt and the determination of the sentence, or submit a request to the court for the approval of a penal order. The prosecutor initiates where the law does not require a complaint by the victim, criminal prosecution ex officio.
The prosecutor exercises his or her functions independently, in accordance with the rules provided by law. Prosecutors of first instance exercise these functions during preliminary investigations and first-instance proceedings, and by prosecutors of appeal and the High Court in appealed cases. With regard to the judicial police, the Criminal Procedure Code establishes a clear relationship of functional subordination. The judicial police are obliged to become aware of criminal offences, prevent further consequences, identify perpetrators, and conduct investigations; however, all investigative actions are carried out under the orders and delegation of the prosecutor. Judicial police officers act as auxiliary bodies in support of the exercise of criminal prosecution.
The judicial police are accountable to the prosecutor for the activities carried out during criminal proceedings, are obliged to carry out the tasks assigned by the prosecutor, and must promptly inform the prosecutor of the results of the actions undertaken.
The prosecutor is therefore the authority that leads, supervises, and takes the key decisions throughout the criminal process, while the judicial police perform auxiliary and executive investigative functions under the functional authority of the prosecutor. This framework ensures a balance between the efficiency of investigations, procedural legality, and the independence of the prosecutor in the exercise of his or her constitutional and legal functions.

(General Comment): PUBLIC PROSECUTOR:
Pursuant to the criminal procedure legislation in Bosnia and Herzegovina, the basic duty of the prosecutor is the detection and prosecution of perpetrators of criminal offenses. The prosecutor has the following powers: a) as soon as the prosecutor becomes aware that there are grounds for suspicion that a criminal offense has been committed, to take necessary steps to discover it and investigate it, to identify the suspect(s), guide and supervise the investigation, as well as direct the activities of authorized officials pertaining to the identification of suspect(s) and the gathering of information and evidence; b) to conduct an investigation in accordance with the law; c) to grant immunity in accordance with law; d) to request information from governmental bodies, companies and other physical and legal persons; e) to issue summonses and orders and to propose the issuance of summonses and orders in accordance with the law; f) to order authorized officials to execute an order issued by the court as provided by the law; g) to propose the issuance of a warrant for pronouncement of the sentence; h) to issue and defend indictment before the court; i) to file legal remedies; j) to perform other tasks as provided by the law.
According to the legislation in Bosnia and Herzegovina on the protection and treatment of children and minors in criminal proceedings, prosecutor may end the cases against juvenile offenders by imposing certain types of criminal sanctions - i.e. cases in which prosecutors impose educational measures against minor defendants without bringing them to court. In addition, for criminal offenses punishable by a fine or imprisonment of up to five years, the prosecutor may decide not to initiate preliminary proceedings even if there is evidence that the minor has committed a criminal offense, if he considers that it would not be appropriate to conduct proceedings against the minor, taking into account the nature of the criminal offense and the circumstances under which it was committed, the minor's previous life, and his personal characteristics. The prosecutor may act in the same manner in the case of a criminal offense punishable by imprisonment of more than five years if such action is in accordance with the principle of proportionality as stated in Article 9 of this law. To determine these circumstances, the prosecutor may request information from the parents, i.e., the guardian of the minor, other persons and institutions, and when necessary, may summon these persons and the minor for direct information. The prosecutor seeks the opinion of the guardianship authority on the appropriateness of initiating proceedings against the minor.
JUDGE:
The preliminary proceeding judge is a judge who acts during the investigative procedure in accordance with the criminal procedure legislation in Bosnia and Herzegovina. For example, the preliminary proceedings judge decides at the request of the prosecutor on the issuance of a search warrant.
POLICE: An authorised official person is a person having an appropriate authorisation within the police authorities in Bosnia and Herzegovina. In acordance with the criminal procedure legislation in Bosnia and Herzegovina, if there are grounds for suspicion that a criminal offense has been committed that carries a prison sentence of more than five (5) years, an authorized official shall immediately inform the prosecutor and shall under the Prosecutor’s direction take the steps necessary to locate the perpetrator, to prevent the suspect or accomplice from hiding or fleeing, to detect and secure the clues to the criminal offense and objects which might serve as evidence, and to gather all information that might be of use for the criminal proceedings. If there are grounds for suspicion that a criminal offense has been committed that carries a prison sentence of more than five (5) years, and the delay would pose a risk, an authorized official is obligated to carry out necessary actions in order to fulfil the above mentioned tasks. When carrying out these actions, the authorized official is obligated to act in accordance with the criminal procedure legislation. The authorized official shall be bound to inform the prosecutor on all taken

(2025): According to the Criminal Procedure Code, the State Prosecutor directs the investigation and issues an order for the conduct of an investigation where there are reasonable grounds to suspect that a criminal offence has been committed. The police act upon the orders of the State Prosecutor, collect evidence and undertake investigative actions. The investigating judge decides on the imposition of coercive measures (such as detention and searches).
The State Prosecutor plays a central role in the pre-investigation and investigation phases of criminal proceedings. The prosecutor is competent for the prosecution of perpetrators of criminal offences prosecuted ex officio and directs the proceedings. In this capacity, the State Prosecutor directs and supervises the work of the police and other competent authorities in the pre-investigation phase, adopts decisions on the initiation and conduct of investigations, undertakes evidentiary actions, decides on the deferral of criminal prosecution or the dismissal of criminal complaints, concludes plea agreements, and files and represents indictments or charging proposals before the competent court.
The police and other state authorities (such as customs and tax authorities, military police and others) participate in the detection of criminal offences and their perpetrators, undertake actions within the pre-investigation phase and act upon the binding orders of the State Prosecutor. Except in urgent circumstances, they are obliged to notify the State Prosecutor prior to undertaking such actions and to act in accordance with the prosecutor's instructions.
At this stage, the court does not decide on criminal liability, but participates through the judicial control of the legality of specific procedural actions, particularly by deciding on measures that interfere with fundamental rights and freedoms (for example detention and special investigative measures), in accordance with the law.
Accordingly, prior to trial, criminal proceedings are conducted under the direction of the State Prosecutor, with operational activities carried out by the police and other competent authorities, and with judicial oversight ensuring the legality of the most significant procedural measures.
The investigating judge decides on detention and other measures involving human rights matters

North Macedonia

(2025): According to the Law on Criminal Procedure, the investigative procedure is conducted by the competent public prosecutor, with the judicial police at his disposal. The judicial police include the Ministry of Interior, the Financial Police, officials of the Customs Administration working on the detection of criminal offences, and officials of the Ministry of Defence working on the detection and reporting of criminal offences.
The public prosecutor shall reject the criminal charges with a decision, if, from the criminal report itself, one may conclude that the reported crime is not a criminal offense that is being prosecuted ex-officio, or if the statute of limitation applies or if the criminal offense is subject to amnesty or pardon, or if there are other circumstances that exclude any prosecution or if there are no grounds for suspicion that the reported person has committed the crime.
According to the Article 43 „Conditional postponement of the criminal prosecution“ paragraph 1 form CPC, in agreement with the injured party, the public prosecutor, with a decision, may postpone the criminal prosecution for a criminal offense that entails a prison sentence of up to three years, if the suspect is willing to behave according to the instructions given by the public prosecutor and fulfill certain obligations that would reduce or eliminate the harmful consequences from the criminal offense, put an end to the disturbances that have resulted from the criminal offense, i.e. influence is exerted in order to reintegrate the suspect. Such obligations may include the following:
1) obviating or compensating for the damages;
2) returning any items that have been taken away;
3) making a monetary contribution in favor to the Budget of Republic of Macedonia or to some other institution with a public authority or for humanitarian purposes;
4) fulfilling any obligations regarding subsistence;
5) undergoing treatment for any addictions;
6) undergoing psychosocial therapy in order to eliminate any violent behavior;
7) prohibited visits or contacts with the victims of the crime as well as with third parties as determined by the public prosecutor for a period that shall not exceed six months;
8) community work in a duration of 40-120 hours; or
9) when the conditions for release are met as a result of damage compensation as determined by the Criminal Code.
(2) With regards to the obligations as referred to in paragraph 1, items 1, 2, 3, 4, 7, 8 and 9 of this article, if the suspect has fulfilled his or her obligation in a period not longer than six months, i.e. he or she observed the ban, the public prosecutor shall enact a decision, thus not criminally prosecuting the suspect for the criminal offense referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article.
(3) With regards to the obligations as referred to in paragraph 1, items 5 and 6 of this Article, the public prosecutor shall determine the duration of the conditional postponement in consultation with a specialized institution for treatment of addictions, i.e. with the competent center for social work. The duration of the conditional postponement shall not be longer than one year.
(4) If the perpetrator has started, but not completed the imposed obligations in the prescribed deadline, the public prosecutor shall file an application for initiation of a summary procedure, also taking into account the portion of the obligations that has been completed.

Serbia

(2025): The basic right and the basic duty of the public prosecutor is to prosecute the perpetrators of criminal offences. In the case of criminal offences prosecutable ex officio, the public prosecutor is authorised to: manage pre-investigation proceedings; decide on not undertaking or deferring criminal prosecution; conduct investigations; conclude plea agreements and agreements on giving testimony; file and represent an indictment before a competent court; abandon charges; file appeals against court decisions which are not final and submit extraordinary legal remedies against final court decisions; conduct other actions when specified by the Criminal Procedure Code.
Furthermore, all authorities participating in pre-investigation proceedings are obliged to act upon the requests of the public prosecutor and inform them of the actions taken.
The public prosecutor is obliged to protect the victim or witness from insults, threats, and any other attacks. Additionally, for a victim or witness who is particularly vulnerable due to age, life experience, lifestyle, gender, health status, the nature, manner, or consequences of the committed criminal offense, or other circumstances of the case, the public prosecutor may, ex officio or at the request of the parties or the victim or witness themselves, grant the status of especially vulnerable witness.

Kosovo*

(2025): 1. Receive a complaint: In the Republic of Kosovo, a criminal complaint/report can be filed by the victim, citizens or public or private institutions, the media, etc. After receiving information that a criminal offense is suspected to have been committed, the police begin investigations with the authorization of the state prosecutor.
2. Initiate investigation: it is the sole competence of the state prosecutor who issues a decision to initiate investigations when there is reasonable suspicion that a criminal offense has been committed. Therefore, the State Prosecutor is the only authority that decides to initiate an investigation.
The police do not have the authority to initiate a formal investigation, but act in the pre-investigation phase by collecting initial information.
3. Conduct investigations: investigations are conducted by the police with the authorization of the prosecutor and under the supervision of the prosecutor.
4. Supervising investigations: it is the exclusive competence of the state prosecutor, ensuring that investigative actions are legal, the rights of the suspect are respected, and the police act within legal authorizations.
5. Dismissal of criminal charges or suspension of investigations: If during the investigation it is concluded that: there is no reasonable doubt that the suspect has committed the criminal offense; the committed offense is not a criminal offense that is prosecuted ex officio or upon proposal; the statute of limitations for criminal prosecution has expired or the criminal offense has been included in an amnesty, pardon, has been judged by a final decision; the suspect enjoys immunity and its dismissal is not possible or has not been approved by the competent body or there are circumstances that exclude criminal liability, then the State Prosecutor is the competent authority for the termination of the investigation or the dismissal of the criminal report.
6. Bringing the case to court: is done by the state prosecutor after the completion of the investigation when it results from the collection of evidence that there is a well-founded suspicion that the defendant has committed a criminal offense and files an indictment. Whereas for criminal offenses for which the maximum penalty is not more than three years and the state prosecutor assesses that there is a well-founded suspicion to support the indictment, he may file an indictment without issuing a ruling to initiate the investigation.
7. Decide an alternative to prosecution: The state prosecutor decides, where alternatives include, for example: mediation procedure, temporary suspension of the procedure, conditions when prosecution is not mandatory. While the pre-trial judge decides on diversion according to the proposal of the state prosecutor.
8. Close a case by imposing or negotiating a penalty or measure: The state prosecutor decides, as is the case in the mediation procedure, dismissal of criminal charges, termination of investigations, etc.
In the preliminary procedure, the main role is played by the state prosecutor, who is the sole authority competent for the initiation, development and completion of investigations, including decisions to dismiss criminal charges, suspension of investigations or file indictments. Police acts as an auxiliary body, undertaking investigative actions only under the guidance and supervision of the prosecutor, without the authority to make final procedural decisions. The police carry out evidence-gathering actions (e.g., raid, questioning of witnesses, and seizure of evidence) only under the instructions of the prosecutor.
State prosecutor initiates criminal proceedings with a ruling to initiate investigations when there is reasonable suspicion that a criminal offense has been committed. After collecting evidence, the prosecutor decides whether there is sufficient evidence to file an indictment against the suspect. This means when the evidence collected provides a well-founded suspicion that the defendant has committed a criminal offense.

Article 406/dh

Where the agreement is submitted during the preliminary hearing, the court shall decide in accordance with the provisions of Article 332/dh, paragraph 1, letter “b”, of this Code……”

(2024): Article 406/d of the Criminal Procedure Code;
Content of the agreement
“From the registration of the name of the person to whom the criminal offence is attributed until the beginning of judicial review, the prosecutor, the defendant or his special representative may propose to reach an agreement on the conditions of admission of guilt and setting punishment.
2. In the negotiation for reaching an agreement, the presence of the defense lawyer of the defendant is mandatory. The conclusion of the agreement shall be allowed for criminal offences for which the law provides for a maximum punishment of not more than 7 years of imprisonment. This restriction shall not apply in the case of the justice collaborator…….”

(2023): Severe criminal cases: The guilty plea agreement is reached before the trial has started and is allowed for criminal offenses for which the law provides for a maximum sentence of no more than 7 years.

Bosnia and Herzegovina

(2025): The number of cases with an indictment filed based on a plea agreement was significantly lower in several prosecutor's offices in 2025 compared to 2024. These indicators are not the result of the application of any special guidelines or legislative changes. Otherwise, in 2025, the trend from previous years continued, with the overall number of criminal cases resolved through plea agreements between prosecutors and perpetrators of criminal offenses decreasing in Bosnia and Herzegovina.

Serbia

(2024): According to the Criminal Procedure Code, every plea agreement, wheather it`s concluded before or during the main trial, needs to be confirmed by the court and it is the only way to conclude the case by this procedure.
Information on number of guilty plea procedures reffer to number of suspects/defenfants who concluded plea agreements with the Public Prosecution which were confirmed by the court in 2023.
Please note that improsonment is foreseen as a sanction for every criminal act envisaged by the Criminal Code.
Depending on the gravity of criminal act, imprisonment is foreseen in defferent forms: as the only sanction, together with the money fine or alternatively to the money fine. For that reason, it is not possible to make a distinction between severe and misdemeanour/minor criminal case as described in the Explanatory note.

(2023): According to the Criminal Procedure Code, every plea agreement, wheather it`s concluded before or during the main trial, needs to be confirmed by the court and it is the only way to conclude the case by this procedure.
Information on number of guilty plea procedures reffer to number of suspects/defenfants who concluded plea agreements with the Public Prosecution which were confirmed by the court in 2023.
Please note that improsonment is foreseen as a sanction for every criminal act envisaged by the Criminal Code.

For that reason, it is not possible to make a distinction between severe and misdemeanour/minor criminal case as described in the Explanatory note.

Question 230

Albania

(2025): The judicial system operates within an overall Information and Communication Technology (ICT) strategic framework. All major ICT-related projects within the judicial system are aligned with and based on the strategic decisions, policies, and governance directions approved by the Steering Board of the Justice Technology Centre (ICT).
The High Judicial Council (HJC) ensures that every significant project related to the judicial information systems is designed, implemented, and governed in accordance with these decisions. The resolutions and strategic guidelines adopted by the ICT Steering Board constitute the core ICT governance reference for the justice sector and provide a unified, coordinated, and sustainable approach to digital transformation.
All relevant decisions and strategic documents of the ICT Steering Board are publicly available on the official website:

Judicial Council remark: This plan's main activity is building the new information system called - ISP (abbreviation for information system of Judiciary - in Montenegrin, "Informacioni Sistem Pravosuđa"). Due to the delays and problems with the company selected on the tender to build the system, we have decided to cancel the contract with them and search for other options. We were forced on this because they failed to deliver parts of the system and documentation on time, even after many prolongations and compromises from our side.

North Macedonia
(2024): The last ICT Strategy for judiciary covered the period 2019-2024, currently the ICT Council at the Ministry of Justice is preparing a new ICT Strategy for judiciary 2025-2030

(2023): The strategy for ICT in the judiciary was adopted in 2019 for the time period of 2019-2024.
The strategy expired in 2024. It is still being implemented, and this year, the Council for ICT in the Judiciary will start a procedure for adopting a new strategy for the next 5 years, as well as new revised operational plan.
At this moment there is no new strategy and no new operational plan.
During 2023, according to the operational plan for digitization in the judiciary, a complete change of the CMS system is planned with the introduction of a new modern and integrated system of management and movement of cases, which will be compatible with the new software, and new applications will be created at the same time namely, an application for issuing certificates from criminal records, for issuing certificates from misdemeanor records, creation of the E-delivery platform, which will establish full two-way communication between the courts and all parties, i.e. state authorities and institutions, development of the platform for a mobile application, which will enable unhindered access of the parties to the electronic file of the case, as well as the creation of web services with 12 state organs and institutions.
According to the operational plan and the provided budget funds, the Court Budget Council has created a plan and program with dynamics and necessary financial resources for the digitization of the courts in 2023, namely:
1. Upgrade and installation of the Femida True Records system for audio recording in civil courts and audio-video recording in criminal courts.
- upgrade means the installation of Femida True Records or SRS Femida software, based on an existing Femida license installed on a computer in the courts (through previous purchases), regardless of whether it is currently in operation or not;
- a new license implies the installation of Femida True Records or SRS Femida software on an additional number of computers, which are not included in the number of existing licenses in the courts.
2. Procurement and replacement of hardware equipment for the courts – 410 computers.
3. Current maintenance of the hardware and software for the operation of the ACMISS system and the equipment for issuing certificates from criminal records.
4.Upgrade and ongoing maintenance of centralized hardware and system software for centralized backup/restore of the court database.
5. Restoration of Kaspersky Anti-virus and Trend Micro inter Scan messaging for personal computer protection in the court system and Gateway virus protection in the Supreme Court of RNM.
6. Ongoing maintenance of software for recording events by collating logs from ICT devices located in the Supreme Court of the RNM.
Creation of a mobile application for access to the electronic file of the case - a service for reviewing the files in the case by the parties in the procedure. Service for a complete review of a court case by the parties in the case (prosecutors, lawyers and all involved parties, natural and legal persons). Web Portal and mobile application through which each of the parties after prior authentication (service for identification of persons at the MIOA state level) can view all data and acts in the case that are available to the parties. DETAILED DESCRIPTION OF THE SERVICE AND BASIC FEATURES
Possibility for reviewing of all data and documents from the court case for the participants in the case from the court web portal and mobile application.

Digitization, digital transformation and the increasing development of information technology inevitably led to it being integrated in all the pores of the justice system, and especially in the last 2 years, through digital transformation in all courts and public prosecutor's offices by developing new web pages for the courts, with hardware and software for audio recording, system for audio visual recording, electronic issuance of documents, creation of web services, software development and case management, as well as platforms for two-way communication between the courts and the parties and access to the electronic file of the case.
Given that the strategy has a time period until 2024, it is still being implemented, and this year, the Council for ICT in the Judiciary will start a procedure for adopting a new strategy for the next 5 years, as well as new revised operational plan.
At this moment there is no new strategy and no new operational plan.

Question 231

Albania

(2025): The judicial system currently operates a Case Management System (CMS) that is used for the registration and management of judicial proceedings.
At present, courts use existing case management solutions to support core activities such as case registration, assignment, procedural tracking, and basic reporting. However, these systems have limitations in terms of functionality, interoperability, and standardization across different courts and jurisdictions.
For this reason, the High Judicial Council (HJC) is leading the transition toward a new, fully integrated Case Management System (JURONIX). The new system is designed to replace the existing fragmented solutions with a unified, modern, and nationwide platform that will manage the entire lifecycle of judicial proceedings, enhance efficiency, ensure data integrity, and enable secure interaction with external stakeholders and other justice institutions.

(2022): Regarding the option "centralized or interoperable database" the answer changed from "yes" to "no", tbecause during 2022, due to cyber-attacks in Albania, some institutions such as the Civil Status Office and the National Business Center have disconnected interoperability with the case management system.
The status of integration with statistical tool changed from "integrated" to "not connected" because HJC has approved new statistical formats which have not yet been integrated with the case management system. These integrations are expected to end with the finalization of the new judicial map.

Bosnia and Herzegovina

(2022): Correction of technical mistake: The reply from the previous reporting cycles regarding the status of criminal case online should be changed from "Accessible to parties" to "Not accessible at all".

Montenegro

Serbia

(2025): There are AVP applications for the needs of the business processes of basic, higher, and commercial courts, the SAPS application for the needs of appellate courts, the Supreme Court, and the Administrative Court, and the SIPRES application for the needs of misdemeanor courts.

(2023): There are several ICT systems. The most represented is the AVP which is used in basic, higher, and commercial courts. This system is decentralized, and it has been in use for more than 10 years for the time being. On the other hand, CMS used by appellate courts, Administrative court and Supreme Court is called SAPS, and it is relatively newly developed. Also, misdemeanor courts are provided with SIPRES newest developed CMS.
The strategic act has foreseen rollout of SAPS called SUPER SAPS to replace old AVP in basic, higher, and commercial courts. It is important to emphasize that there are other applications for electronic communication with the courts such as eCOURT for administrative disputes, and eCOURT for enforcement proceedings before the commercial courts and enforcement agents. Public prosecutorial offices are using SAPO CMS.

(2022): In civil and commercial cases, parties can see the status of case online.
CMS is fully integrated in sense that it uses data from cases from court DMS via web services to generate predefined and ad hoc reports.

Kosovo*
(2022): In the KJC web portal, on September 2022 are deployed two web applications; the Case Tracking Mechanism (CTM) and Open Data Platfor, (ODP). In the CTM, parties can follow their case status data, while in the OPD are available all statistical reports of the CMIS.

Question 232

Albania
(2025): At present, three main systems are operational and functionally linked to the management of judicial cases.
Currently it turns out that out of 20 courts in the Albanian territory, 18 of them are using the ICMIS system, 2 of them using the ARKIT system. While, only two courts, respectively Tirana Judicial District Court and the Special Court of First Instance for Corruption and Organized Crime are using the ARKIT system
1. ICMIS (Integrated Case Management Information System)
   - Used primarily by courts of general jurisdiction.
   - Supports case registration, procedural tracking, scheduling, assignment of cases, and basic reporting.
   - While it covers essential case management functions, it has limitations in terms of interoperability, scalability, and support for fully digital case files.
2. ArkIT Used mainly by administrative courts and for specific case registration and document management workflows.
   - Supports administrative and archival aspects of case handling.
   - Operates largely as a standalone system with limited integration with other judicial platforms.
3. FTR / RDA System (Digital Audio Recording System)
   - Used across courts for audio (and in some cases video) recording of court hearings.
   - Although it is not a standalone CMS, it operates in direct functional relation to judicial cases and hearings, as recordings are associated with specific cases and sessions.
   - Currently, it functions as a separate system and requires manual or semi-manual linkage with case management processes.

The coexistence of multiple systems has resulted in fragmentation of case-related data and workflows, increased manual effort, and limited end-to-end digital case management. To address these challenges, the High Judicial Council (HJC) is implementing JURONIX, a new integrated Case Management System designed to consolidate and replace ICMIS and ArkIT, while also integrating the FTR/RDA system. This will enable seamless linkage of audio/video recordings with digital case files, ensuring a unified, efficient, and fully digital management of judicial proceedings

(2024): The Case Management Systems with which the Albanian courts operate are CMIS and ARKIT.
A broad consensus has been achieved in the Albanian judiciary about the need to replace both existing case management systems used by Albanian courts (ARK-IT and ICMIS, with their variants and their 2 and 36 local installations respectively) with a single new generation, state-of-the-art system.
The Centre for the IT in the Judiciary of Albania has adopted in December 2021, upon proposal of the High Judicial Council (HJC), a Road Map for the development of the new Albanian Court Case Management System. Among these, the relevant decisions of the Information Technology Centre in the High Judicial Council were approved in order to start work on the development of a new Court Case Management System. However, it's obvious that the systems used in the Albanian courts are almost obsolete despite frequent updates with new features. Additionally, each of the courts have their own servers installed locally which are not unified. The internal network architecture across the courts is specific to each court and is not standardized and unified yet. The renewal of the licenses of the various software components used by the courts is managed by each court in particular. This also applies to security programs that must be used on each of the court servers.
In terms of security, the case management system operates offline and can only be accessed locally by court users. Each court through the institutions of the IT is responsible for guaranteeing security and implementing policies that protect the system from possible threats.

(2025): There are 2 CMS/TCMS version currently in use: - CMS/TCMS v3 which was implemented during 2024 and it has been in use in all judiciary institutions for most of the functionalities, - CMS/TCMS v1 which is still used in judiciary institutions for just a few administrative functionalities and for some of the statistical reports.
Both versions of CMS are based on a single database. Two versions of the application are being used, both accessing the same data, until the final transition to the CMS/TCMS v3 version is completed.

(2024): Currently there are 3 CMS/TCMS versions in use: CMS/TCMS v3 which is implemented during 2024 and is in use in all judiciary institutions except the Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina and the Municipal Court in Sarajevo (implementation planned for January 2025); CMS/TCMS v2 which is still used only in the Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina and the Municipal Court in Sarajevo; CMS/TCMS v1 which is still used in all judiciary institutions for a few administrative functionalities and for some of the reports.

Comment from Supreme Public Prosecution Office: There is one pilot CMS (SAPO) for public prosecution which is in use in 13 public prosecution offices since 2013. However, new CMS was developted which is in use in additional 10 public prosecution office. This new SAPO is updated and upgraded version of 2013 software. Staff of an additional three public prosecution offices have completed the training; however, the CMS is not yet operational in these offices due to issues arising from the data migration from the pilot SAPO software. Addressing of the identified shortcomings is underway and the re-testing of the migrated data is underway. Implementation of new CMS in all 90 public prosecution is planed after all shortcomings have been resolved.

Albania

(2025): The currently running Case Management Systems (CMS) were initially developed in earlier phases, and since their first deployment they have undergone continuous improvements, incremental enhancements, and functional updates on an annual basis.
Rather than a single major redesign at one specific point in time, the CMS solutions have followed an evolutionary development model, which includes:
- Periodic functional upgrades in response to legal, procedural, and organizational changes;
- Ongoing technical improvements to address performance, security, and usability requirements;
- Continuous maintenance services, including the resolution of newly identified errors, bugs, and operational issues.

This approach has ensured the operational continuity of the systems and their adaptation to emerging needs. However, despite these regular developments and maintenance activities, the existing CMS platforms have reached structural and technological limitations, which is why the judicial system is now transitioning toward a new, fully integrated and modern Case Management System.

(2024): Thanks to the developments occurred in the field of Information Technology, for more than 15 years from now, services offered by courts are easily accessible online by citizens, media representatives, as well as other civil society actors. While, only two courts, respectively Tirana Judicial District Court and the Special Court of First Instance for Corruption and Organized Crime are using the ARKIT system

Albania

(2025): There are concrete and formally approved plans for a significant change in the judicial IT landscape in the coming period, including the replacement of the existing Case Management Systems.
The High Judicial Council (HJC) has initiated and approved the implementation of a new, unified and integrated Case Management System (JURONIX). This system is planned to replace the current CMS platforms (ICMIS and ArkIT) and to integrate other key judicial IT solutions, including the Digital Audio Recording System (FTR/RDA).
The transition to JURONIX represents a major structural and technological change, aiming to:
- Standardize judicial workflows across all courts;
- Enable full digital case files and end-to-end electronic case management;
- Improve interoperability with other justice institutions;
- Enhance security, auditability, and data quality.

The upcoming period will therefore focus on development, piloting, gradual rollout, and user training, ensuring a controlled transition while maintaining continuity of judicial operations.

(2025): It is planned to completely shut down CMS/TCMS v1 during 2026.
It is planned to transfer from Oracle 11g to Oracle 19c database.

(2024): It is planned to completely shut down CMS/TCMS v1 and CMS/TCMS v2 during 2025.

(2023): CMS/TCMS v3 is based on a new WEB technologies and has been tested in 7 judiciary institutions from September to December 2023. The full-scale implementation will take place in 2024.

(2022): The new version of the Case Management System (version 3.0) will be tested in several courts and prosecutors' offices during 2023. It is based on new WEB technologies. The full-scale implementation of the new version of the Case Management System will take place in 2024.

Montenegro

(2025): Regarding changes within the existing CMS, the planned activities are primarily security-focused and aligned with 2026 requirements. This would include upgrading application server and database versions, performing data transformation/migration, and potentially adjusting parts of the database relational model. Major changes are planned for other supporting subsystems used to support and optimize user processes.

(2024): We are improving the existing case management system by cleaning up existing data, adding new automated reports for court users, and introducing additional metadata about processes and phases. This helps us track quality and increase transparency across the judiciary.
Internally, we have developed a new module for handling misdemeanour cases. This module went live on 9 January 2025, and training sessions for staff in the respective courts began on the same date. Currently, the Higher Misdemeanour Court and the Misdemeanour Court in Budva (including branch offices in Bar and Ulcinj) have gone live with the new system. We plan to continue the rollout on a week-by-week basis to other branch offices in the south (under Budva's jurisdiction), followed by the northern region (Bijelo Polje and its branch offices), and ultimately the central region, aiming for full coverage of all Misdemeanour Courts. The functionality for random case assignment is already operational in courts where the new system is active.
We are encountering several challenges: limited staffing (only two ICT staff members within the Secretariat of the Judicial Council are responsible for user training across the entire country, encompassing 17 Misdemeanour Courts), no approved budget yet for additional engagement of external trainers or staff, outdated hardware in some courts, and a shortfall in administrative personnel that delays certain processes. Despite these obstacles, the rollout is ongoing, and we expect further improvements in efficiency and user adoption as the system continues to be implemented throughout the judiciary.
After achieving full coverage, we plan to update the entire system to the latest version of our technology stack. Additionally, due to staffing shortages in many courts, it remains difficult to collect and process historical (cause they need to collect around 50.000 data for cases) data for unresolved cases as of 1 January 2025. Once these data are gathered, however, we will be able to provide automated reporting functionality for Misdemeanour Courts—similar to the level already in place for regular courts.

(2023): Update of current system planned in 2024. Significant changes to the current IT system in the judiciary are planned with the implementation of PRIS version 2. This update will feature cleansed data, enhanced reporting capabilities, and the integration of misdemeanor courts. The new system is expected to become operational by the first quarter of 2025 at the latest.

Improved Digitalization of State Institutions in the Areas of Judiciary and the Fight against Corruption.
EC-ENEST/SKP/2025/EA-RP/0011
Contracting Authority
Delegation of the European Union to North Macedonia
Partner Country
Republic of North Macedonia
Project Objectives and Components
The main objective and impact to which this project contributes is improved efficiency of the judiciary system and the fight against corruption in North Macedonia. The specific objective (result) of this project is improved digitalization of selected state institutions in the areas of judiciary and the fight against corruption. This objective is implemented through the following components:
• Component 1 – Improving IT management and implementing standards-based security measures
• Component 2 – Design, development and implementation of an electronic case management system for the prosecution offices
• Component 3 – Design, development and implementation of an electronic case management system for the State Attorney's Office
• Component 4 – Design, development and implementation of the AKstats case tracking system
• Component 5 – Upgrading the case management system in the State Commission for the Prevention of Corruption
Beneficiary institutions
The institutions that directly benefit from this project (beneficiary institutions) are the following:
Public Prosecution Office (PO) and Public Prosecutors' Council (PPC) for Component 1 and Component 2
• State Attorney's Office (SPO) for Component 1 and Component 3
• Ministry of Justice (MOJ) for Component 4
• State Commission for the Prevention of Corruption (SCPC) for Component 1 and Component 5

(2024): Within the framework of the prosecution office, a project for a completely new CMS has been launched. In this regard, multi-layered in-depth investigations have been carried out in the field and an analysis of the functioning and functionality of the existing system has been made. It has been concluded that it is outdated and cannot be upgraded, but a completely new system is needed that will satisfy modern communication flows with other state bodies as well as the court, and will enable both a rapid flow of information and the purposeful preservation of data as a Register and meta data from each criminal case separately, regardless of which Register the case is entered into, with the possibility of horizontal and vertical movement of the case. Given that it is a joint project of the state and the EU, supported by the EU Rule of Law Mission, it has an international character and a short listing has been prepared for companies that would participate in the procedure, with an announcement for international companies to be able to participate in it. It is expected to be used in production in 2027.

According to the operational plan and the provided budget funds, the Court Budget Council has created a plan and program with dynamics and necessary financial resources for the digitization of the courts in 2023, namely:
1. Upgrade and installation of the Femida True Records system for audio recording in civil courts and audio-video recording in criminal courts.
- upgrade means the installation of Femida True Records or SRS Femida software, based on an existing Femida license installed on a computer in the courts (through previous purchases), regardless of whether it is currently in operation or not;
- a new license implies the installation of Femida True Records or SRS Femida software on an additional number of computers, which are not included in the number of existing licenses in the courts.
2. Procurement and replacement of hardware equipment for the courts – 410 computers.
3. Current maintenance of the hardware and software for the operation of the ACMISS system and the equipment for issuing certificates from criminal records.
4.Upgrade and ongoing maintenance of centralized hardware and system software for centralized backup/restore of the court database.
5. Restoration of Kaspersky Anti-virus and Trend Micro inter Scan messaging for personal computer protection in the court system and Gateway virus protection in the Supreme Court of RNM.
6. Ongoing maintenance of software for recording events by collating logs from ICT devices located in the Supreme Court of the RNM.
Creation of a mobile application for access to the electronic file of the case - a service for reviewing the files in the case by the parties in the procedure. Service for a complete review of a court case by the parties in the case (prosecutors, lawyers and all involved parties, natural and legal persons). Web Portal and mobile application through which each of the parties after prior authentication (service for identification of persons at the MIOA state level) can view all data and acts in the case that are available to the parties. DETAILED DESCRIPTION OF THE SERVICE AND BASIC FEATURES
Possibility for reviewing of all data and documents from the court case for the participants in the case from the court web portal and mobile application.
Availability of the service:
- Computer, laptop - view via browser
- Mobile devices (phone) – separate mobile application.
The service will provide the following subject data:

(2025): The improvement of the AVP system is planned through the improvement of the court fees module, in accordance with the new amendments to the Law on Court Fees. In the coming period, it is planned to replace the entire CMS with a newer version of the platform, which will be integrated with other existing systems in judicial authorities.

(2025): KJC Comment: In coming years, KJC aims to upgrade the CMIS technology, extend the interoperability of the system with other systems, such as: Police system for minor offence cases, cadaster system, prisons etc. extend online services, implement electronic signature etc. KPC Comment: In 2025, a questionnaire was conducted with prosecutors and administrative staff of the Basic Prosecution Offices in Prishtina, Prizren and Mitrovica, with the aim of identifying the practical needs of users and advancing the Case Management Information System (CMIS) in accordance with their real operational requirements.
Based on the findings of this questionnaire, during 2026, it is planned to advance the CMIS in the following main directions:
• simplifying processes by reducing steps and tasks in CMIS, in order to facilitate and accelerate data recording;
• advancing and standardizing existing templates, in accordance with the functional needs of prosecutors and administrative staff;
• improving the electronic exchange of data and documents with the courts and the Kosovo Police, in order to increase efficiency and reduce manual procedures.

Question 01a

Bosnia and Herzegovina

(General Comment): The High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina has deployed the System for electronic filing of enforcement and small claims cases in all of the first instance courts (i.e. civil cases), that use it to register the new cases and receive documentation in the existing cases the utility companies submit electronically. It is important to note that the cases may be transferred from the System to the general case management system in courts, if certain procedural requirements have been met. However, the use of the System is optional for utility companies. Accordingly, the utility companies in certain local communities are yet to begin to send cases to the courts electronically.

However, the use of the System is optional for utility companies. Accordingly, the utility companies in certain local communities are yet to begin to send cases to the courts electronically.
Deployment Rate_ reasoning: As for 2025, all 61 competent courts in Bosnia and Herzegovina have the aforementioned System. The number of new court cases registered through the System in the reporting year was 104 925. The number of pending cases in the System at the end of 2025 was 1 201 870. Bearing in mind that the total number of new relevant cases received in the courts of first instance was 1 061 543 in 2025 (i.e. Q52, Civil + Non litigious cases), the deployment rate was 10% (i.e. 1-25%). Usage Rate_ reasoning: 43 (i.e. 70%) courts out of the aforementioned number of first instance courts registered new cases and/or received documentation in the existing cases using the System. Consequently, the usage rate was 50-75%.

Montenegro
(2025): Electronic submission of cases is currently not available. The e-submission project is planned to be enabled in 2027: the system development is scheduled to be completed by the end of 2026, and production deployment is expected to start during 2027. Therefore, deployment and usage rates are not applicable at this time.

(2025): The Case Management Information System (CMIS) is available in all courts, in three instances for the processing the all type of cases; Civil, Criminal, Commercial, administrative etc. Regarding the Civil and Administrative cases, parties can submit or initiate the case in the courts only manually with paper file. The court clerk, enter reference data, scans these cases and uploads into the system and initiate the case.
While, for the Criminal Cases system receives all cases electronically from prosecution office through the interoperability of the CMIS of courts with the CMIS in prosecution offices. The interoperability of the CMIS in courts with the CMIS in prosecution offices, transfers on real time the criminal case created or initiated in the prosecution offices with the all-structured data and documents. For this purpose, the answer is: Deployment rate - 95-100 % and Usage Rate – 95 – 100.

Question 01b

North Macedonia
(2025): There are legal grounds to submit a case to a court electronically, but in a practice there are still not technical possibilities for implementation of that tool.

Serbia

(2025): The introduction of the option of recording interveners in digital administrative procedures is based on the need to ensure full procedural protection of persons who have a direct legal interest in the subject matter of the procedure. The Law on General Administrative Procedure primarily regulates the position of the party and the interested party, while case law in administrative disputes before the Administrative Court confirms that the absence of participation of a person whose rights may be affected by an administrative act constitutes a significant violation of the rules of procedure and a basis for annulment of the decision. Especially in situations where the legal interest arises from the right of pre-emption, prior ownership or tenancy right, failure to enable procedural participation increases the risk of initiating and succeeding in an administrative dispute. Digital recording of interveners contributes to the legality of the procedure, the prevention of judicial annulments and the strengthening of legal certainty of adopted administrative acts.

(2025): The Case Management Information System (CMIS) in the Courts is fully interoperable with the CMIS in Prosecution Offices. Interoperability supports the manual work, the exchange of documents and reference data. Example, the prosecutor initiates and create the criminal case in the CMIS. Once the case is ready to submit in the courts, the last step in the CMIS is to transfer the electronic file in the courts. After this step, the prosecutor sends the manual case in the courts.
After receiving the case in the courts electronically and manually, court clerk proceeds the case in the court. In this phase, CMIS in the courts link the case number in the court with the case number in prosecution office and then all communication is linked through case numbers on real time.

Question 04a

Bosnia and Herzegovina

(General Comment): The electronic consultation of court case files for the parties is possible in civil and administrative matters. The High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina approves the requests of parties in court cases for the issuance of a uniform access code. Detailed requirements for issuing the code are prescribed by the Rulebook on the Case Management System in Courts, which is adopted by the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina. The code can be used in the Online Case Access Module to get case information. The access through the Module is available to parties in court proceedings and their lawyers. The Module can be accessed through the website of the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina. In addition, lawyers can also use the mobile app to access cases in which they represent their clients. This is an official app developed by the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina. If the parties have multiple cases in the courts, they must apply for a single access code for each of these cases, but they are provided with a possibility to create a user account that allows access to all these cases in one place. The same possibility is given to lawyers for all civil and administrative cases in which they represent their clients.

Montenegro

(2025): The Case Tracking Mechanism is a web application that allows online access to individual court case records, through which it is accessible to all citizens of Kosovo from the KJC portal and E-Kososova platform.
After successful identification through eKosova, the CTM will check whether the individual is involved in any court case in the CMIS (Case Management Information System). If party has a case into the CMIS, then CTM shows all data regarding the case. Some of the date available on CTM are; unique case number, initiation date, the date of case assignment to the judge, name of the judge, information of the sessions, information about decisions, length of procedures etc. The CTM is read only system that enables party to follow activities taken by the court regarding its cases, while party cannot initiate actions or submit documents through the CTM. The CTM is available tool for all type of cases and provides information for three court instances (Basic Courts, Appellate Court, and Supreme Court).

Albania

(2025): With the current systems, interoperability with other systems is no longer possible.

Bosnia and Herzegovina

(General Comment): Interoperability with other systems: There is an interoperability function between the Case Management System and the database of the Agency for Identification Documents, Registers and Data Exchange of Bosnia and Herzegovina, through which the two systems are connected ensuring exchange of data between police agencies and courts. Namely, courts, when registering new cases, take the personal data of the parties in those cases from the database of the Agency for Identification Documents, Registers and Data Exchange of Bosnia and Herzegovina, if the information on Unique Master Citizen Number of the parties in new cases is available to them. This information is then automatically displayed in the Case Management System. In this way, data from the official register for citizens in Bosnia and Herzegovina are registered into the Case Management System.
In addition, the electronic consultation of court case files for the parties is possible in civil and administrative matters. (2025): The allocation is automatic based on predefined rules.
In terms of case weighting, the distribution is based on several criteria, namely repeated cases, life imprisonment, organized crime, a five-judge panel, public session, detention, urgent case, more than 5 parties in the proceedings, bankruptcy and other criteria by grounds, types of grounds, registers, types of cases, etc.
In the CMS - ACCMIS, there is a special module for data anonymization that is automatic, but is additionally checked manually if the module has not recognized any personal data.

Question 07c

Montenegro

(2025): PRIS, the Judicial Information System, is a centralized case management system used in Montenegro and serves as the main tool supporting the daily work of all courts. The system is established in 100% of courts and provides a unified, standardized and efficient approach to the registration, processing, monitoring and archiving of cases.
PRIS is used to manage all processes, from the receipt of the initial filing and case creation, through the assignment of cases to judges and the recording of all procedural actions and decisions, up to the final resolution and archiving of cases. The system enables continuous monitoring of the work of judges and the status of cases, thereby contributing to greater efficiency, transparency and quality of judicial work.
PRIS supports the random allocation of cases in accordance with established rules and procedures. It enables the identification and tracking of cases through different procedural stages, electronic document management, access to active and closed cases, advanced search capabilities, as well as the maintenance of user activity records through secured log files.
The system also supports the preparation of statistical reports, analytical overviews and other data necessary for monitoring court performance, resource management and decision-making based on relevant indicators. In addition, PRIS enables the exchange and use of data with other relevant information systems, in accordance with legal and technical requirements, thereby improving procedural efficiency and reducing the need for multiple data entries.
The system’s deployment rate is assessed at 100%, as PRIS is implemented in all courts in Montenegro. The usage rate is also assessed at 100%, given that case registration, allocation, processing, monitoring and management are carried out through this system as an integral part of the courts’ daily operations.
The functionalities indicated in questions 07-b and 07-c correspond to the functionalities currently available within PRIS and are used on a daily basis in the work of the courts. In this way, PRIS represents a key instrument of digitalisation of the judiciary in Montenegro and significantly contributes to more efficient case management, improved organisation of work and the overall strengthening of the effectiveness of the judicial system.

Bosnia and Herzegovina
(General Comment): Writing tools are consisted of two groups of templates of various legal documents that can be used by judges, prosecutors and other staff (i.e. users) at the judicial institutions: (i) templates with headers and case details, which also include auto-generated text, and (ii) templates with headers and case details. Considering the needs of judges, prosecutors, and other staff it is estimated that that templates of 50 – 75% of relevant documents are made available in the Case Management System for all the users.
As for the usage rate, it is estimated that 50-75% of users are using the available templates. The templates are developed by the judges and prosecutors selected by the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina. The templates are integrated into the Case Management System. The use of templates is optional.

Montenegro
(2025): Writing assistance tools are not yet in production. Following the procurement of a server in December 2025, we are developing models/tools for this purpose. Templates exist, but we treat templating separately (not as writing assistance). Deployment and usage rates are not applicable yet.

Database of court decisions accessible online: https://portalfo1.pravosudje.ba/vstvfo/B/142/kategorije-vijesti/141/simple, which focuses primarily on publication of selected decisions of all court levels, focusing on cases of public interest. 2. All publication is done in line with the Guidelines for publication of judicial decisions, acts and information about cases which was issued by High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina and the Rulebook for court decisions' publication issued by the Ministry of Justice of Republika Srpska.

Montenegro
(General Comment): In the CMS are stored all court decisions except those from misdemeanor courts. However, it should be noted that at the website of courts final judgements are published, and with with anonymization. So it is about percentage of final decisions. It is also important to know that some types of court decisions are not published regardless of anonymization, e.g. decision on minors and similar categories with the privacy sensitive aspects.
The percentage of decisions published bz the supreme court is around 85%

Question 11b

Bosnia and Herzegovina

(General Comment): In the judicial system of Bosnia and Herzegovina, an Information System for Reporting and Decision Support (hereinafter: SIPO) is in use. The SIPO system provides support to court presidents in proactively managing courts, with the goal of ensuring more efficient, higher-quality, and more reliable use of statistical data through improved statistical reports. SIPO is designed to integrate data from all information systems used within the judiciary of Bosnia and Herzegovina (CMS/TCMS, HRMIS, SOKOP). Reports can be generated incomparably faster and more securely than from the databases in which they were originally created, ensuring consistency of reports produced by various institutions within the justice sector. In addition, the system facilitates stronger cooperation and information exchange with institutions operating within the justice sector, as well as with the media and other public and non-profit organizations, thereby increasing transparency in the work of the judiciary. Another major advantage of the SIPO system is the ability to generate pre-prepared reports and automatically deliver them to a predefined location (e-mail address) at a predetermined time. In this way, the system ensures not only the accuracy and quality of the information provided to judicial management, but also the timeliness of its delivery, which is a key factor in the effective management of judicial institutions. Other statistical indicators systematically calculated based on the available data are Most of the data recorded in the aforementioned information systems used in the judiciary of Bosnia and Herzegovina can be processed within the SIPO system. These include, among others: implementation of the plan for resolving old cases, calculation of the achievement of the indicative norm, predicted timeframes for case resolution, statute of limitations, inheritance cases referred to notaries, finality of decisions, unresolved cases, records of criminal proceedings, discrimination cases in first-instance courts, overview of cases assigned to judges working with legal associates, overview of cases assigned to independent legal associates, cases with or without a decision etc.
Additionally, the HJPC BiH developed a website where the public can monitor the Overall Efficiency Indicators, Efficiency, Human and Budgetary Resources, Quality Indicators, and Quality Indicators by Case Type for all courts in Bosnia and Herzegovina (https://public.tableau.com/app/profile/hjpc/viz/DashboardsHJPCBH_17473883136560/1-OverallEfficiencyindicator)

Montenegro

(2025): PRIS, the Judicial Information System in Montenegro, is an integrated platform that includes reporting and statistical functionalities enabling the analysis of court case data. Statistical data is generated based on information recorded in the case management system and is used for monitoring court performance, workload distribution and efficiency indicators. Statistical tools are deployed in all courts, covering 100% of registries and cases, as well as the overall functioning of the courts. This high level of deployment reflects the fact that statistical reporting is an integral part of the court information system and is routinely used in daily operations and institutional reporting. The system enables the generation of predefined statistical reports and, to a certain extent, customised reports according to user needs. Statistical outputs are mainly available through internal reporting functionalities and dashboards linked to the case management system. Data is automatically consolidated at the national level, ensuring consistent reporting across all courts. The data available for statistical analysis includes key performance indicators such as case flow, including incoming, resolved and pending cases, the age of pending cases, the length of proceedings, the number of hearings, the number of cases per judge, case distribution and workload indicators, as well as information on procedural outcomes and appeals. Statistical reporting is based on real-time data, ensuring reliable monitoring of judicial efficiency and case management trends. These tools are used for internal analysis, institutional reporting and strategic planning within the judicial system.

Albania

Q09-0 (2025): The increase in the Approved and Implemented Legal Aid (LA) budget is mainly due to the increase in the salaries of the employees working within the system of state-guaranteed free legal aid. This adjustment was made in line with the broader public administration salary policy and has directly affected the overall budget allocated and implemented for legal aid.
Q09-0 (2024): The legal aid implemented budget has increased by 8.6% compared to the previous year.
Cases brought to the court, we have referred to cases of secondary legal assistance (payment of lawyers, experts who have provided secondary legal services). The rest is considered as providing advice and any other financial commitment in function of the institution's activity. The further increase is related to the fact of the opening of the primary legal aid service provision centers throughout the Republic of Albania and the changes in the legislation on employee salaries.
Q09 (2025): The increase in the Approved and Implemented Legal Aid (LA) budget is mainly due to the increase in the salaries of the employees working within the system of state-guaranteed free legal aid. This adjustment was made in line with the broader public administration salary policy and has directly affected the overall budget allocated and implemented for legal aid.
The budget related to mandatory representation in court (ex officio lawyers) is not included in the figures reported under Q09.

Q09 (2023): We emphasize that the planning of funds is done based on the number of decisions received by the court, while the liquidation of payments is done after all the procedural steps of judicial representation have been completed. Trials take time, especially in the nowadays conditions regarding the absence of judges due to the vetting process. This is reflected in the delays until the arrival of the liquidation practice in the Directorate.
Q17 (General Comment): Article 5 of Law Nr.111/2017, determines the Forms of legal aid, provided in the following forms:
a) primary legal aid;
b) secondary legal aid;
c) exemption from payment of court fees and court expenses, according to the law, and exemption from the obligation to prepay the execution fee of the execution order.
Primary legal aid is defined in Article 3 (b) and also Article 3 of Appendix 1 of the Order of the Minister of Justice No 226 dated 25/3/2019 on 'The approval of the contracts of legal aid guaranteed by the state". It comprises • providing of information regarding the legal system and legal acts, • the delivery of counselling, o which "is the delivery of information on the manners and the possibilities of solution of a concrete legal matter" (Article 3 (ç)) • the delivery of advice on the procedures of mediation and the alternative means of dispute resolutions, • the delivery of assistance in drafting and establishing of documentation to o put in motion the state administration or o for requesting secondary legal aid • representation before administration bodies, o Secondary legal aid is only provided before (administrative and civil) courts, and • the delivery of all other forms of necessary legal support not constituting secondary legal aid.
According to Article 3 (c) "Secondary legal aid" is the legal service that is offered for • the compilation of the necessary legal acts for putting in motion the court (i.e. the pre-court phase), • the delivery of counselling, representation and defence before the court in o administrative and o civil and o in criminal cases • for which is not applied the mandatory defence in accordance of the criminal procedural legislation. That means that in this respect the Law on Legal Aid is subsidiary to the Code on Criminal Procedure.

Q17 (2025): State-guaranteed legal aid in Albania covers both criminal and non-criminal cases and includes legal representation before courts as well as legal advice, assistance and other legal services. The system operates through primary legal aid (information, counselling and assistance provided mainly via service centers, NGOs and legal clinics) and secondary legal aid (court representation by advocates appointed upon a court decision), coordinated by the Directorate of Free Legal Aid in accordance with Law No. 111/2017.

Q18 (2025): Legal aid in Albania is granted or refused on the basis of the following criteria, applicable to both criminal and non-criminal cases:
Financial criteria (Articles 12 and related provisions)
Legal aid is granted when the applicant demonstrates insufficient income and assets to cover the costs of legal assistance or representation.
Special beneficiary categories (Article 11)
Legal aid is granted regardless of income or assets to specific categories explicitly listed in the law (e.g. victims of domestic violence, victims of trafficking or sexual abuse, children, persons with disabilities, persons subject to involuntary mental health treatment, beneficiaries of social protection schemes, and victims of discrimination).
Grounds for refusal (procedural and substantive conditions)
Legal aid may be refused or discontinued in both criminal and non-criminal cases when:
- the legal request is manifestly unfounded, abusive, or lacks legal grounds;
- the applicant does not meet the statutory conditions for benefiting from legal aid;
- false or misleading information has been provided in the application.
The system is implemented and coordinated by the Directorate of Free Legal Aid, while decisions on granting or refusing legal aid—particularly for secondary legal aid—are taken by the competent courts, in accordance with the law.

Q19 (2025): Secondary legal aid under Law no. 111/2017 covers the drafting of legal acts and the provision of legal counselling, representation and defence before courts in administrative, civil and criminal cases, only where mandatory defence does not apply under criminal procedural law.
Accordingly:
automatic legal aid based on status applies under Law no. 111/2017;
automatic legal aid based on case category applies exclusively in cases of mandatory defence under the Code of Criminal Procedure.

Q20 (2025): Primary Legal Aid / Maximum duration prescribed in law/regulation
First legal aid is provided immediately at the moment requested verbally or written. If it is needed can be extended the days of consolations.
Actual average duration
First legal aid is provided immediately at the moment requested verbally or written If it is needed can be extended the days of consolations dy max 2 days.
Secondary Legal Aid
Maximum duration prescribed in law/regulation
The time of decision depends on when the application was lodged:
• The court has to decide within 5 days from the date of receipt of the request, when the request has been submitted before initiation of the judicial proceeding
• during the preliminary actions or in the preparatory session before the scheduling of the judicial session/hearing, when the request for legal aid has been submitted together with the statement of claim
• according to the provisions of the procedural legislation and the provisions of this law, when the request has been filed during judicial examination
According to the Article 22 (9) the Directorate may appeal against the acceptance (only) when it claims that the request is evidently abusive or manifestly ill-founded and not if it claims that the applicant does not fulfil the criteria of Articles 10 to 12. It will have to be clarified if the reasons of appeal were restricted on purpose or if a reference to Articles 10 to 12 was omitted by error. Since Article 22 (9) does (in contrast to Article 22 (7)) not refer to the special appeal, the provisions on normal appeals apply. Article 22 (9) states that “In this case shall be applied the time-limits and the rules for appeal of final decisions in accordance with the provisions of the procedural legislation.” Thus the time-limits and the rules for appeal of final decisions in accordance with the provisions of the procedural legislation apply. I.e. that different procedural rules apply for the appeal of the Directorate against the approval than for the appeal against the dismissal. Against the decision of the court of appeal a recourse to the High Court is not allowed.
Actual average duration
From the practice, it results that the period from the moment of sending the request for secondary legal aid until the notification of the court's decision on the acceptance or not of the request is 1 month.

Q22 (2025): Based on the administered data, all applications for primary legal aid (which do not include legal representation before courts) were accepted (100%).
Furthermore, based on the administered data, 63 out of a total of 924 requests for secondary legal aid (which include legal representation before courts) were not accepted by the competent courts.

Q22 (2024): Based on the administered data, it results that the cases of primary legal aid (which do not include representation in court) are 100% accepted.
Based on the administered data, it results that 64 requests for secondary legal aid (which include representation in court) out of 340 in total are not accepted by the court. We don't do an administration of how many criminal cases granted legal aid cases.
TOTAL: Cases not brought to court (Primary Legal Aid + Secondary Legal Aid) 6220 (primary legal aid) + 66 (secondary legal aid not accepted legal aid) 6286
In criminal cases: Cases not brought to court (Primary Legal Aid + Secondary Legal Aid) 425(primary legal aid) + 5(secondary legal aid not accepted legal aid) 430
In other than criminal caseS: Cases not brought to court (Primary Legal Aid + Secondary Legal Aid) 5795 (primary legal aid) + 61 (secondary legal aid not accepted legal aid) 5856
These are the finals result for year 2024. It was made a mistake because we hadn't have this type of statistical data collected and another analyze was made.
Based on the administered data, it results that the cases of primary legal aid (which do not include representation in court) are 100% accepted. That is because Primary Legal Aid, is the type of legal service which consists in:
• information about the legal system in the Republic of Albania, applicable normative acts, rights and obligations of subjects of the law, and on the ways on how to exercise such rights in judicial and extrajudicial processes; • consultation; • consultation about mediation procedures and alternative resolution of disputes; • assistance in drafting and compiling documents necessary to put the state administration in motion or to seek secondary legal aid; • representation before administrative bodies; • any other type of necessary legal support that is not included in secondary legal aid.
And as a result it is given for all the citizens that request it in the Primary Legal Aid Service Center (20 Primary Legal Aid Centers, function in 20 cities of Albania), by 15 NGO-s operating for the year 2024 and by 13 Legal clinics at the higher education institutions.
While the Secondary Legal Aid (representation by an advocate in a court procedure), it is provided by advocates included in the list approved by the National Chamber of Advocates upon the request (according to the form) of the person entitled to receive secondary legal aid. The request has to be addressed to the competent court. The court has to decide within 5 days from the date of receipt of the request, when the request has been submitted, where the court accept or not to give the legal aid (representation by an advocate in a court procedure or exemption from payment of court fees, court costs and from the obligation for prepayment of fees for initiating execution of the execution order). 177 advocates have signed the contract for the provision of the secondary legal aid service for 2024.
The ex officio lawyers) cases aren't included in this count, because the Legal Aid advocates are not the same with ex officio lawers. The Legal Aid advocates sign every year a contract with Free Legal Aid Directorate, which legitimate them the representation in court for legal cases.

Q22 (2023): Based on the administered data, it results that the cases of primary legal aid (which do not include representation in court) are 100% accepted.
Based on the administered data, it results that 44 requests for secondary legal aid (which include representation in court) out of 773 in total are not accepted by the court.

Q22 (2022): As for the year 2022, 7616 citizens have been treated with primary legal aid and 1030 court decisions have been administered with the object of secondary legal aid.
During 2022 according to the scope of court cases that citizens have requested secondary legal assistance, it is evident that they are mainly civil cases. Out of the total number of requests for legal aid of 1030, 691 of them are civil, where the main ones are marriage settlement, pension benefits and property conflicts. While the other two categories, where 70 are criminal and 269 are administrative cases.

Q23 (2025): In the Albanian legal aid system, both primary and secondary legal aid are measured by recipient, in line with the agreed methodology. Primary legal aid reflects the number of individuals who benefit from legal information, advice, or assistance.
Secondary legal aid is also recorded by recipient, meaning that each beneficiary who is granted or refused legal aid in the context of court proceedings constitutes one statistical unit. Within a single case, different types of legal aid services—such as legal representation, exemption from court fees, or exemption from procedural costs—are not recorded separately, but as components of the same assistance provided to the recipient.

Q25 (General Comment): Other specific arrangements means:
- closed-door trial for the juvenile defendants, witnesses or victims, sexually abused victims, victims of trafficking; - the defendant's right to use the language he/she speaks or understands or either use the sings language, as well as be assisted by a translator and interpreter if he/she has disabilities in speaking and hearing. - prohibiting the publication of the personal data and photos of the juvenile defendants and witnesses; - physical protection, by the warrant of defense for the cases of violence due to the family relations, entry in the program of the defendants defense, etc.; - the right to compensation for damages through the civil lawsuit to whom that has suffered damage from the criminal offense.

Q25 (2023): After verifying the answer given this year, we confirm it
Q25 (2022): Regarding all discrepancies between years, the legal provisions have not changed. There are different procedures that can be applied to different categories but these procedures are not measures taken by the court such as placing the victims in a special facility for victim of abuse, are measures taken by local authorities.
Q26 (General Comment): In the competence of courts, shall be included the adjudication of requests for due compensation to the person, who has suffered a pecuniary or non-pecuniary damage due to the unreasonable length of a case, as per the definition of Article 6/1 of the European Convention "On Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms".
Provisions define the evaluation of reasonable duration of a process, as well as the due compensation, when unreasonable delays have been determined in investigation procedures, trial of cases, as well as in the procedures of execution of decisions.
Just satisfaction for violation of reasonable time limits shall be deemed the recognition of violation, any measures taken to expedite the proceedings of investigation, trial of the case and execution of the decision, and/or compensation of the damage, according to the provisions of this Chapter.

Q26 (2025): The Albanian legislation provides a system of compensation for all the above circumstances.
-Regarding the excessive length of proceedings and non-execution of court decisions:
The procedural legislation provides for the right of the party in a judicial process to be compensated for the damage caused due to the unreasonable length of a procedure according to legal provisions. More specifically, the Code of Civil Procedure, as amended, has provided the rules and procedures for reasonable length of procedures in its articles 399/1-399/12.
Article 399/2 of this Code provides for reasonable deadlines for the investigation, trial or execution of a final decision. In case of exceeding the deadlines provided for in this article, the parties in the process can submit a request, which is adjudicated by the competent court. If a violation is found by the court, the party can file a claim for damage compensation.
-Regarding the wrongful arrest / detention and wrongful conviction:
The Code of Criminal Procedure, as amended, has provided in its Article 268 the right to compensation for the detention suffered by those who have been found innocent by a final court decision, except in cases where it has been proven that the wrongful decision or failure to discover the unknown fact in due time, is caused, wholly or in part, by the person himself. This right is also granted for the convicted person who has been placed in precautionary detention in prison, when it is proven by a final decision that the act by which the precautionary measure was established, has been issued in absence of the requirements provided for by Articles 228 and 229 of this Code. These provisions also apply to cases where the court or prosecutor decided to dismiss the case. Whereas in cases when it is proven by a court decision that the act is not provided under the law as a criminal offence, due to the abrogation of the relative provision, the right of compensation is not recognized for the part of precautionary detention in prison served before the abrogation.
The request for compensation must be submitted within three years of the day in which the judgment of acquittal or dismissal has become final. Whereas the compensation amount, the method for its calculation, and the cases of house arrest compensation, are established by special law.

Q26 (2022): The requests for excessive length of proceedings and non-execution of court decisions, have been introduced as a separate request to the court by national law in 2017. According to the Civil Procedural Code the procedure is divided in 2 different phases. The first phase is logged as a simple request to the court and is registered in the CMS system as non-litigious cases either civil or administrative depending on the court. They are registered without a specific identifying code. The second phase is logged as litigious case based on tort legal provisions. We cannot identify these specific cases within the category. We will tackle this issue while creating the new CMS system.
Regarding the requests for wrongful arrest / detention and wrongful conviction, these cases are registered as litigious administrative cases and do not have a specific identifying code in the CMS.

Q28 (2025): The Supreme Court is organized into three panels, namely the Criminal Chamber, the Civil Chamber and the Administrative Chamber. Cases of the specialized courts for organized crime and corruption are adjudicated by the Criminal Chamber. Meanwhile, cases of administrative jurisdiction are adjudicated by the Administrative Chamber of the Supreme Court.
Article 3 of law no. 98/2016 “On the organization of the judicial power in the Republic of Albania” foresees: Types of courts
1. Judicial power is exercised by the Supreme Court, as well as by the courts of appeal and the courts of first instance, which are established by law.
2. Courts of general jurisdiction are courts of general jurisdiction of first instance and courts of general jurisdiction of appeal. Courts of general jurisdiction of first instance may have branches.
3. Special courts are:
a) administrative courts of first instance and the Administrative Court of Appeal;
b) the Special Court of First Instance and Appeal for the trial of criminal offences of corruption and organised crime.
4. The Supreme Court adjudicates cases of general and special jurisdiction.
According to the new judicial map the number of courts – geographic locations is 14. In reference to decision 147, dated 29.03.2023 of the HJC “For determining the categories of courts”, is provided as below:

Q29 (2025): As we have explained above in the comment to question 28, in reference of article 3 of law no. 98/ 2016 “On the organization of the judicial power in the Republic of Albania”:
Types of courts
1. Judicial power is exercised by the Supreme Court, as well as by the courts of appeal and the courts of first instance, which are established by law.
2. Courts of general jurisdiction are courts of general jurisdiction of first instance and courts of general jurisdiction of appeal. Courts of general jurisdiction of first instance may have branches.

a) administrative courts of first instance and the Administrative Court of Appeal;
b) the Special Court of First Instance and Appeal for the trial of criminal offences of corruption and organised crime.
4. The Supreme Court adjudicates cases of general and special jurisdiction.
The Civil Procedure Code of the Republic of Albania provides in Title III on special trials. In reference to Article 320 of the Civil Procedure Code, special sections are created within the composition of the courts of first instance for the trial of commercial disputes and bankruptcy proceedings; as well as disputes related to minors and family.
The Criminal Procedure Code of the Republic of Albania, in article 13, point 4, provides that the trial of minors is conducted by the relevant sections established by law. These sections also try adult defendants accused of committing criminal offenses to the detriment of minors.
In line with this, the Juvenile Criminal Justice Code in its article 27 provides on the competence to try juvenile justice cases as follows:
1. A minor in conflict with the law is tried by the juvenile sections, established in the district courts, according to the provisions of the legislation in force on the organization of the judicial power in the Republic of Albania. 2. The sections are also competent for the trial of adult defendants accused of committing criminal offenses against minors as victims. 3. The judge assigned to try the minor in these sections must be specialized and trained in juvenile criminal justice. 4. When a minor has committed a criminal offense together with an adult, he shall be tried in the juvenile sections of the district courts, applying the provisions of this Code, with the exception of the cases provided for in Article 80, paragraph 1, of the Code of Criminal Procedure. 5. A person over the age of 18, but not more than 21 years, who is accused of having committed a criminal offense when he was a minor, shall be tried by the juvenile section. 6. The jurisdiction of the juvenile section of the district courts shall end when the minor reaches the age of 23.
In compliance with the legal obligation as cited above, in all courts that adjudicate cases involving minors, judges have been appointed for the trial of minors who are specialized and trained in juvenile criminal justice.
In reference to the above, from the High Judicial Council, based on articles 147, point 1, and 147/a, point 1, letter “ë” of the Constitution of the Republic of Albania, article 23, point 7 of law no. 98/2016 “On the organization of the judicial power in the Republic of Albania”, as well as articles 61, point 2, letter “ë”, 97, point 1, letter “c” of law no. 115/2016 “On the governing bodies of the justice system”, has adopted decision no. 408, dated 15.07.2025 “On the approval of the rules on the criteria and procedures for the establishment of sections and panels”.

Q09-0 (General Comment): The legal aid is financed through the budgets of individual courts (e.g. funds for legal aid are mainly used to pay for the services of ex officio appointed attorneys in criminal cases) and the budgets of legal aid institutions that are government bodies independent from the courts. The accounting methodology does not make it possible to distinguish the amount of budget funds earmarked by the courts for legal aid from other funds, which are planned within the same line in the court budget. However, it is possible to differentiate the amount of funds spent for legal aid in the implemented court budget. On the other hand, the lawyers employed by the government legal aid institutions provide legal aid in different legal fields (i.e. representation in criminal, civil, administrative court proceedings; provision of legal advice outside of court or other proceedings), therefore it is not possible to split the planned or implemented budget funds of the legal aid institutions between different legal fields. In conclusion, it is only possible to make the calculation of the annual implemented public budget allocated to legal aid without dividing it among criminal and other than criminal cases.

Q16 (General Comment): The courts and the specialized government institutions provide free legal aid to citizens in relation to court proceedings.
Free legal aid is provided by the courts in criminal proceedings by assigning a lawyer to a suspected or accused person if that person meets the conditions laid down by law (e.g. obligatory defense etc.) Also, the courts may make a decision on exemption from the costs of proceedings for parties in different types of proceedings (e.g. criminal, civil). In addition, free legal aid centers have been established by the legislation adopted at all levels of government as a part of the respective public administration system. Employees of free legal aid institutions represent the citizens in various types of court and non-court proceedings or give legal advice to the citizens and compose legal documents for them. Citizens are entitled to free legal aid provided by the legal aid institutions if they fulfill financial and property criteria prescribed by the relevant legislation.

Q17 (General Comment): Legal aid is exercised in different types of court proceedings as a right to:
a) general information on rights and obligations,
b) legal advice and assistance in filling out forms,
c) legal assistance in compiling all types of correspondence,
d) representation in court,
e) making an appeal and
f) legal assistance in the procedures of peaceful settlement of the dispute (e.g. mediation).
Q18 (General Comment): Financial criteria for granting free legal aid:
In general, a person of poor financial status, who is entitled to free legal aid, is considered to be someone whose income per household member does not exceed a certain portion of the average salary in the previous calendar year and who also meets other criteria, for example, not having real estate or other assets that could cover the costs of the court proceedings.
Varying financial criteria for granting free legal aid to potential beneficiaries are used by institutions of different levels of government for deciding on granting free legal aid in Bosnia and Herzegovina; these criteria are primarily linked to the amount of average salary. These institutions also use criteria for owning property with regard to granting or refusing free legal aid cumulatively with the income criterion, as well as other additional criteria (e.g. income of other family members); however, these property criteria are not intended to be expressed through monetary amounts. The examples of the assets criteria: beneficiaries of legal aid may not own or co-own a business; they also may not own two or more housing units (i.e. a house or a flat) and they may not own business premises. Legal aid may be refused for cases lacking merit, such as frivolous actions or those with no reasonable chance of success:
A request for legal aid will not be granted if: it is obviously ill founded (i.e. legal requirements are clearly not met); the proceedings in question are unjustified (i.e. the potential client has slim chances to win the case); the right to legal aid is misused (i.e. the potential client has provided incorrect data that was relevant for approving legal aid).

Q19 (General Comment): Status or personal characteristic of the recipient:
According to the legislation on the protection of and proceedings with children and minors in criminal procedure, a minor must have a defender during the first questioning by the prosecutor or an authorized official, as well as throughout the entire criminal proceedings.
According to the laws that prescribe the rules for the work of free legal aid institutions, the right to free legal aid based on status is exercised, for example, by: children, persons deprived of legal capacity, etc. In different jurisdictions within Bosnia and Herzegovina, the laws regulating the functioning of free legal aid institutions provide additional possibilities to exercise the right to free legal aid on the basis of other types of status (e.g., asylum seekers, victims of domestic violence or gender-based violence).
Category of the case:
A suspect in the criminal proceedings must have a defense attorney at the first questioning if he is mute or deaf or if he is suspected of a criminal offense for which a penalty of long-term imprisonment may be pronounced
A suspect or accused in the criminal proceedings must have a defense attorney immediately after he has been assigned to pre-trial custody, throughout the pre-trial custody. After an indictment has been brought for a criminal offense for which a prison sentence of 10 years or more may be pronounced, the accused must have a defense attorney at the time of the delivery of the indictment.
If the suspect, or the accused in the case of a mandatory defense, does not retain a defense attorney himself, or if his family members do not retain a defense attorney, the preliminary proceeding judge, preliminary hearing judge, the judge, the presiding judge, or the court president appoints him a defense attorney in the criminal proceedings. In one of the jurisdictions in Bosnia and Herzegovina, the court selects the defense attorney for the suspect or the accused if he fails to choose an ex officio defense attorney from the predetermined list. In other jurisdiction in Bosnia and Herzegovina, the court president appoints the defense attorney using the predetermined list of ex officio defense attorneys without giving an opportunity to the suspect or accused to select the defense attorney from the list.

Q20 (General Comment): Maximum duration prescribed in law for deciding on granting initial legal aid request is 15 days. This deadline applies to all types of cases. It is prescribed in the relevant legislation on the functioning of legal aid institutions. In addition, the criminal procedure codes oblige the court to urgently appoint an ex-officio attorney to the suspect/accused persons such as minors, detainees, a defendant in a criminal case in which one my be given long-term prison sentence etc.; also, pursuant to the criminal procedure codes the court will decide urgently if an attorney shall be assigned to the suspect or accused at his request if due to an adverse financial situation, he is not able to pay the expenses of the defense in the proceedings that are conducted for an offense for which a prison sentence of three or more years may be pronounced or when the interests of justice so require. Actual average duration was 9 days in criminal cases, whereas it was 7 days in other than criminal cases. This calculation is based on the actual duration of time passed between initial requests and final approvals for all procedures for granting legal aid completed in the reference year. The aforementioned calculation is based on the data gathered from the courts and legal aid institutions for 2025. The courts provided data on the timeframes with regards to deciding on requests for appointing ex-officio lawyers in criminal proceedings as well as data on granting requests for exemption from paying court taxes and other costs in the civil proceedings. The legal aid institutions provided statistics on the actual timeframes of the procedure for granting legal aid.

Q21 (General Comment): The legal aid institutions can produce data on the number of requests for legal aid and decisions on granting legal aid. However, the manner in which it is envisaged that courts in criminal proceedings assign defense attorneys ex officio to suspects and accused persons does not allow for precise recording of requests for granting legal aid in the Case Management System.

However, the manner in which it is envisaged that courts in criminal proceedings assign defense attorneys ex officio to suspects and accused persons does not allow for precise recording of requests for granting legal aid in the case management system.

Q22 (General Comment): Criminal cases brought to court: cases (criminal/misdemeanor) in which free legal aid was given trough representation in court and cases in which free legal aid was given for the costs of proceedings.
Other cases brought to court: cases in which free legal aid was given trough representation in court and the preparation of legal documents, cases in which free legal aid was given only trough preparation of legal documents required within the court procedure, and cases in which free legal aid was given only for the costs of proceedings.
Cases not brought to court: cases (civil, enforcement, administrative, administrative-non judicial, criminal/misdemeanor, etc.) in which free legal aid was given trough legal advice only by the government founded free legal aid institutions.
Free legal aid is provided in courts and by the specialized free legal aid institutions formed by the different levels of government in Bosnia and Herzegovina. Free legal aid is provided by the courts in criminal proceedings by assigning a lawyer to a suspected or accused person if that person meets the conditions laid down by law. Also, the courts make a decision on exemption from the costs of proceedings for parties in different types of proceedings (e.g. criminal, civil). Employees of institutions providing free legal aid represent the party in various types of court proceedings, compose legal documents and give legal advice to a person who meets financial and property criteria. The data refer to the number of cases in which courts and institutions of free legal aid provided legal assistance in the described ways. It is important to that the number of persons who received free legal aid may be higher than the number of cases in which free legal aid was provided.
Q25 (2024): Other special arrangements: the possibility of an in camera proceeding, excluding the public, the language assistance during a court proceeding for ethnic minorities or disabled persons, the right for a woman who is a victim of family violence to enjoy the use of the house, the physical protection during the time of the judicial proceeding, the ban to ask an injured party about their sexual experience prior to commission of the criminal offense and if such questioning has already been carried out, the court decision cannot be based on such statement, the obligation of the prosecutor to inform the competent social welfare authority about the criminal procedure against the juvenile persons.
Q25 (2023): Other special arrangements: the possibility of an in camera proceeding, excluding the public, the language assistance during a court proceeding for ethnic minorities or disabled persons, the right for a woman who is a victim of family violence to enjoy the use of the house, the physical protection during the time of the judicial proceeding, the ban to ask an injured party about their sexual experience prior to commission of the criminal offense and if such questioning has already been carried out, the court decision cannot be based on such statement, the obligation of the prosecutor to inform the competent social welfare authority about the criminal procedure against the juvenile persons.
Q25 (2022): Exclusion of the public, language assistance during the trial procedure for ethnic minorities or persons with disabilities, the right of a woman who is a victim of domestic violence to enjoy the use of a safe house, physical protection during court proceedings, prohibition of questioning the injured party about sexual experience before the commission of the criminal act, and if such examination has already been carried out, the court decision cannot be based with such a statement, the prosecutor is obliged to inform the competent social welfare authority about the criminal proceedings against minors.
Q26 (General Comment): Parties to court proceedings may lodge complaints about the work of courts to various institutions in Bosnia and Herzegovina, as explained in the response below. If those institutions find that the complaints are well founded, they order that irregularities in the work of the court be corrected and in addition, in some cases, award compensation to the complainants. Excessive length of proceedings/Non execution of court decisions: A person whose right to a fair trial is violated by the excessive length of court proceedings or non-execution of the court decisions, can submit an appeal to the Constitutional Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina. Based on Article VI of the Constitution the Constitutional Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina inter alia has appellate jurisdiction over issues under the Constitution arising out of a judgment of any other court in the country. According to Article 16, paragraph 3 of its Rules, the Constitutional Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina may examine, within its appellate jurisdiction, an appeal when there is no decision of a competent court if the appeal indicates a grave violation of the rights and fundamental freedoms safeguarded by the Constitution or by the international documents applied in Bosnia and Herzegovina. The Court admits appeals, based on the aforementioned provision of the Rules, alleging that a court of general jurisdiction has breached both Article II/3.e of the Constitution and Article 6, paragraph 1, of the European Convention on Human Rights by exceeding a reasonable time for determining a court case (i.e. any sort of a court case). If the violation is found, the Constitutional Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina orders the court of general jurisdiction to finalize the case in question without any delay. The Constitutional Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina has no time limit for deciding on appeals.
In a decision granting an appeal, the Constitutional Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina may also award compensation for non-pecuniary damages. If the Constitutional Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina considers that compensation is necessary, it shall award it on equitable basis, taking into account the standards set forth in the case-law of the Constitutional Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina. The compensation is paid from budget of the government financing the court of general jurisdiction found to be responsible for the excessive length of proceedings. In addition, a legislative framework that regulates the protection of the right to a trial within reasonable time, according to which the courts act, has been established recently in Bosnia and Herzegovina. According to this legal framework, the party has two options: to file a motion for procedure expedition to the court processing the case for which expedition is requested or file a complaint with the highest court in respective jurisdictions to determine the violation of the right to a trial within reasonable time, which requires the determination of financial compensation. The court makes a decision on compensation for the lawsuit within the period prescribed by law, however, this legislation in different jurisdictions provides different deadlines for making a court decision at the latest within 30, 90, or 180 days from the date of receipt of the lawsuit.
Wrongful arrest/detention and wrongful conviction: Terms under which person is entitled to compensation of damages for wrongful arrest and wrongful conviction are provided in criminal procedure codes. These terms are provided as follows:
Wrongful arrest - a person is entitled to compensation of damages in the following cases: (i) a person who was in detention, but criminal proceedings were not instituted or proceedings were dismissed or a final verdict was pronounced acquitting the person of charges or charges were rejected; (ii) a person who was subjected to unlawful detention or retained in detention or a correctional institution due to a mistake; (iii) a person who was in detention longer than the sentence to which he was convicted; (iv) a person who served a sentence of imprisonment, and was pronounced a shorter imprisonment sentence in reopened criminal proceedings than the sentence he had served, or was pronounced a criminal sanction other than imprisonment or he was pronounced guilty but freed from sanction; (v) a person who was imprisoned without a legal ground is entitled to compensation of damages if no pretrial detention was ordered against him or the time for which he was imprisoned was not included in the sentence pronounced for a criminal offense or minor offense.
Wrongful conviction - A person against whom an effective criminal sanction was pronounced or who was found guilty and freed from sanction, and later, based on extraordinary remedy,

Q26 (2025): As in previous years, the Constitutional Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina has continued to deal with certain organizational and political problems preventing it from setting up the judge panels because of the court's vacant posts; this contributed to slight reduction in terms of the number of resolved cases in the reporting year. In the light of the above, the judges of the Constitutional Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina make efforts to resolve priority cases as quickly as possible. As for the claims submitted to other institutions (i.e. ministries of justice at the state and entity level of government) and ordinary courts competent for their resolution, there has been no particular variation in the number of granted claims. Overall, the value of granted compensations by the decisions of the Constitutional Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina, ordinary courts, and the competent ministries of justice and public attorney's offices has decreased to 358,000 € in 2025 from 1,200,000 € in 2024.
In addition to the above-mentioned, the Institution of Human Rights Ombudsman of Bosnia and Herzegovina (the Ombudsman) handles complaints related to malfunctioning of public authorities or to human rights violations committed by any public institution in Bosnia and Herzegovina. In performing its competences, the Ombudsman cannot decide on compensation for determined human rights violations. There is no strict deadline for handling complaints. In cases where violation of rights is established, the Ombudsman issues recommendation to competent public institutions to undertake measures to restore human rights violation or poor functioning of administration. The Institution also provides assistance to citizens how to use the most adequate legal remedies or advises them which institution to address. The Ombudsman received 298 complaints against courts in 2025; the structure of the complaints was as follows: 38 complaints alleging excessive length of proceedings, 35 complaints alleging ineffective enforcement of court decisions, 22 complaints against judges for violation of procedural laws, 8 complaints against the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina and 197 complaints related to the violation of other rights related to court procedure. In 2025 the Ombudsman issued 52 recommendations to the courts. These statistics are not included in the data prepared for Question 26, as the Ombudsman does not have the authority to determine compensation for damages caused to complainants by the work of courts and prosecutors' offices.
The High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina (HJPC) receives complaints against judges and prosecutors, conducts disciplinary proceedings, determines disciplinary liability, and imposes disciplinary measures. The Office of Disciplinary Counsel (ODC) within HJPC performs prosecutorial functions concerning allegations of misconduct against judges and prosecutors.
ODC investigates complaints alleging misconduct of judges and prosecutors, initiates and presents cases of disciplinary violations before the disciplinary panels of the HJPC. The legal deadline for completing disciplinary investigation is two years, given that at the expiration of this deadline complaint reaches the statute of limitations for initiating disciplinary proceedings. However, the vast majority of complaints are resolved well before the expiry of two years period. If disciplinary investigation results in initiation of the disciplinary proceeding, such proceeding must be completed within one year from the date of the filing of a formal complaint before a disciplinary panel, unless upon a showing of a cause that an extension is justified. In these proceedings, complainants are not entitled to compensation if their complaint is found to be sound. The number of complaints ODC received in 2025 was 868. This information is not included in the data prepared for Question 26, as the HJPC does not have the authority to determine compensation for damages caused to complainants by the work of courts and prosecutors' offices.

Q26 (2024): The particular circumstances under which the Constitutional Court of BiH operated in 2024 are one of the factors contributing to the higher number of granted claims. As in previous years, the Constitutional Court of BiH has experienced certain organisational problems with regard to its inability to set up the judge panels because of the court's vacant posts, which affects the dynamics of its work. In the light of the above, the Constitutional Court of BiH makes efforts to resolve priority cases as quickly as possible. As a result, the number of resolved claims alleging the violation of the right to a decision within a reasonable time has increased.
As for the claims submitted to other institutions (i.e. ministries of justice at the state and entity level of government) competent for their resolution, there has been no variation in the number of granted claims. What is important to note is that the circumstances in each individual case (the length of pre-trial detention and similar) have contributed to an increase in the amount of compensation for the violation of the party's rights because of unjustified deprivation of liberty.
In addition to the above-mentioned, the Institution of Human Rights Ombudsman of Bosnia and Herzegovina (the Ombudsman) handles complaints related to malfunctioning of public authorities or to human rights violations committed by any public institution in Bosnia and Herzegovina. In performing its competences, the Ombudsman cannot decide on compensation for determined human rights violations. There is no strict deadline for handling complaints. In cases where violation of rights is established, the Ombudsman issues recommendation to competent public institutions to undertake measures to restore human rights violation or poor functioning of administration. The Institution also provides assistance to citizens how to use the most adequate legal remedies or advises them which institution to address. The Ombudsman received 280 complaints against courts in 2024; the structure of the complaints was as follows: 50 complaints alleging excessive length of proceedings, 32 complaints alleging ineffective enforcement of court decisions, 17 complaints against judges for violation of procedural laws, 8 complaints against the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina and 173 complaints related to the violation of other rights related to court procedure. In 2024 the Ombudsman issued 62 recommendations to the courts. These statistics are not included in the data prepared for Question 156, as the Ombudsman does not have the authority to determine compensation for damages caused to complainants by the work of courts and prosecutors' offices.
The High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina (HJPC) receives complaints against judges and prosecutors, conducts disciplinary proceedings, determines disciplinary liability, and imposes disciplinary measures. The Office of Disciplinary Counsel (ODC) within HJPC performs prosecutorial functions concerning allegations of misconduct against judges and prosecutors.
ODC investigates complaints alleging misconduct of judges and prosecutors, initiates and presents cases of disciplinary violations before the disciplinary panels of the HJPC. In these proceedings, complainants are not entitled to compensation if their complaint is found to be sound. The number of complaints ODC received in 2024 was 945. This information is not included in the data prepared for Question 156, as the HJPC does not have the authority to determine compensation for damages caused to complainants by the work of courts and prosecutors' offices.

Q26 (2023): As the most relevant institution for the Question 156, the Constitutional Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina (the Constitutional Court) reported it resolved fewer requests in 2023 compared to 2022. Namely, during 2023, the Constitutional Court functioned to a reduced extent because the vacant positions in this court could not be filled due to reasons falling within the competence of legislative institutions. In addition, the Constitutional Court stated that the appellate jurisdiction of this institution continues to be influenced by the right of parties in court proceedings to appeal to the court of general jurisdiction for the acceleration of proceedings under relatively new legislation that regulates the protection of the right to a trial within reasonable time, according to which the courts act, has been established in three out of four main different jurisdictions in Bosnia and Herzegovina.
According to this legal framework, the parties to the court proceedings have two options: to file a motion for procedure expedition to the court processing the case for which expedition is requested or file a complaint with the highest court in respective jurisdictions to determine the violation of the right to a trial within reasonable time, which requires the determination of financial compensation. As for the time-limits under this legislative framework, the court proceedings may file a motion for procedure expedition to the court processing the case for which expedition is requested (time limits for the court to decide: 60 days in first instance proceedings; 30 days in second instance proceedings). Furthermore, parties to legal proceedings have the right to seek damages for violation of the right to a trial within a reasonable time (time limit for the relevant courts to decide: no later than six months from the date of receipt of the action).
When it comes to the number of motions to expedite case resolution, a total of 128 motions were filed to the courts in 2023. In 2023, the courts granted 25 and denied/dismissed 49 motions of the parties. In addition, the courts received 19 claims for damages last year. In 9 cases, the courts decided to award compensation to the plaintiffs, while they rejected the lawsuit with a claim for damages in 14 cases.
The Institution of Human Rights Ombudsman of Bosnia and Herzegovina (the Ombudsman) handles complaints related to malfunctioning of public authorities or to human rights violations committed by any public institution in Bosnia and Herzegovina. In performing its competences the Ombudsman cannot decide on compensation for determined human rights violations. There is no strict deadline for handling complaints. In cases where violation of rights is established, the Ombudsman issues recommendation to competent public institutions to undertake measures to restore human rights violation or poor functioning of administration. The Ombudsman received 367 complaints against courts in 2023; the structure of the complaints was as follows: 62 complaints alleging excessive length of proceedings, 50 complaints alleging ineffective enforcement of court decisions, 23 complaints against judges for violation of procedural laws, 9 complaints against the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina and 223 complaints related to the violation of other rights related to court procedure. In 2023 the Ombudsman issued 51 recommendations to the courts. These statistics are not included in the data prepared for Question 156, as the Ombudsman does not have the authority to determine compensation for damages caused to complainants by the work of courts and prosecutors' offices.

Q26 (2022): The Constitutional Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina reported that the influx of cases at the Constitutional Court of BiH varies from year to year. Depending on the influx, other data on cases of the Constitutional Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina also vary. The Constitutional Court of BiH could not give an answer as to what factors influenced that figure. In previous years, the only thing that was evident was that cases involving the length of court procedures and the non-enforcement of court decisions had an effect on the total number of incoming cases. This was not the case in 2022, due to the fact that a certain number of these cases were processed by courts within the new legislative framework that regulates the protection of the right to a trial within reasonable time. According to the Constitutional Court of BiH, most of their cases concern allegations regarding the violation of the right to a fair trial (Article 6 of the European Convention) and the right to property (Article 1 of Protocol No. 1 to the European Convention) as well as cases in which the Constitutional Court of BiH is petitioned to proceed as a court of the fourth instance.
A legislative framework that regulates the protection of the right to a trial within reasonable time, according to which the courts act, has been established in one part of the jurisdiction in Bosnia and Herzegovina. According to this legal framework, the party has two options: to file a motion for procedure expedition to the court processing the case for which expedition is requested or file a complaint with the highest court in respective jurisdictions to determine the violation of the right to a trial within reasonable time, which requires the determination of financial compensation. In other parts of the jurisdiction of BiH, the establishment of this legislative framework is underway. When it comes to the number of motions to expedite case resolution, a total of 154 motions were filed to the courts in 2022. In 2022, the courts granted 39 and denied/dismissed 76 motions of the parties. In addition, the courts received 15 claims for damages last year. In 7 cases, the courts decided to award compensation to the plaintiffs, while they rejected the lawsuit with a claim for damages in 5 cases.
The Institution of Human Rights Ombudsman of Bosnia and Herzegovina (the Ombudsman) handles complaints related to malfunctioning of public authorities or to human rights violations committed by any public institution in Bosnia and Herzegovina. In performing its competences the Ombudsman cannot decide on compensation for determined human rights violations. There is no strict deadline for handling complaints. In cases where violation of rights is established, the Ombudsman issues recommendation to competent public institutions to undertake measures to restore human rights violation or poor functioning of administration. The Institution also provides assistance to citizens how to use the most adequate legal remedies or advises them which institution to address. The Ombudsman received 347 complaints against courts in 2022; the structure of the complaints was as follows: 29 complaints alleging excessive length of proceedings, 22 complaints alleging ineffective enforcement of court decisions, 12 complaints against judges for violation of procedural laws, 2 complaints against the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina and 282 complaints related to the violation of other rights related to court procedure. In 2022 the Ombudsman issued 67 recommendations to the courts. These statistics are not included in the data prepared for Question 156, as the Ombudsman does not have the authority to determine compensation for damages caused to complainants of the work of courts and other institutions.

Q26-1 (General Comment): Other court and Ministry of justice - Requests that include compensation claims:
The Constitutional Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina has appellate jurisdiction over issues under the Constitution arising out of a judgement of any other court in Bosnia and Herzegovina. This includes appeals regarding excessive length of court proceeding, non-enforcement of judicial decisions, and other aspects of the right to a fair trial, as well as other rights protected by the European Convention. In addition, a legislative framework that regulates the protection of the right to a trial within reasonable time, according to which the courts act, has been established recently in several jurisdictions in Bosnia and Herzegovina. According to this legal framework, the party has two options: to file a motion for procedure expedition to the court processing the case for which expedition is requested or file a complaint with the highest court in respective jurisdiction to determine the violation of the right to a trial within reasonable time, which requires the determination of financial compensation. The court must decide within the strict legal deadline. In the remaining jurisdictions in Bosnia and Herzegovina, a legislative procedure is underway for the adoption of a legal framework on the protection of the right to a trial within a reasonable time. Compensation for wrongful arrest/detention and wrongful conviction is awarded in civil court proceedings which are initiated against public authorities by the person entitled to compensation. The filing of a lawsuit is preceded by an attempt to reach a settlement through the ministry of justice at the relevant level of government, which must decide on the compensation request within the strict legal deadline.
The High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina and The Institution of Human Rights Ombudsman of Bosnia and Herzegovina - Requests that do not include compensation claims:
The High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council (HJPC) receives complaints against judges and prosecutors, conducts disciplinary proceedings, determines disciplinary liability, and imposes disciplinary measures. The Office of Disciplinary Counsel (ODC) within HJPC performs prosecutorial functions concerning allegations of misconduct against judges and prosecutors. ODC investigates complaints alleging misconduct of judges and prosecutors, initiates and presents cases of disciplinary violations before the disciplinary panels of the HJPC. The legal deadline for completing disciplinary investigation is two years, given that at the expiration of this deadline complaint reaches the statute of limitations for initiating disciplinary proceedings. However, the vast majority of complaints are resolved well before the expiry of two years period. If disciplinary investigation results in initiation of the disciplinary proceeding, such proceeding must be completed within one year from the date of the filing of a formal complaint before a disciplinary panel, unless upon a showing of a cause that an extension is justified. In these proceedings complainants are not entitled to compensation if their complaint is found to be sound. The Institution of Human Rights Ombudsman of Bosnia and Herzegovina (the Ombudsman) handles complaints related to malfunctioning of public authorities or to human rights violations committed by any public institution in Bosnia and Herzegovina. There is no strict deadline for handling complaints. In cases where violation of rights is established, the Ombudsman issues recommendation to competent public institutions to undertake measures to restore human rights violation or poor functioning of administration. Q28 (General Comment): Courts and court branches are established and dissolved by law. The law regulates the organization, jurisdiction and operation of courts.
1.1 First instance courts of general jurisdiction - legal entities: all courts that are included in this category have jurisdiction only over the first instance cases (i.e. criminal cases for which less than 10 years of imprisonment is prescribed, minor offence matters, civil and enforcement matters, commercial matters, non contentious matters etc.).
1.2 Second instance courts of general jurisdiction - legal entities: Only one court from this category has exclusive second instance subject matter jurisdiction. The rest of the courts (i.e. 16 courts) included in this category have prevailing second instance subject matter jurisdiction, namely they decide on appeals against all decisions of the aforementioned first instance courts; in addition, they have first instance jurisdiction in administrative cases and these courts also have mixed competencies in the criminal matters - firstly, they have first instance jurisdiction in criminal cases for which more than 10 years of imprisonment is prescribed; secondly, they decide on appeals against the decisions of first instance courts in criminal cases and minor offence cases. Due to the mixed competencies of the above mentioned group of courts (i.e. 16 courts), they were placed in the category of the first instance courts of general jurisdiction in the previous reporting cycles (i.e. since 2020), together with the courts which have exclusive first instance subject matter jurisdiction. 1.3 Highest instance courts of general jurisdiction - legal entities:
There are 3 courts of general jurisdiction in Bosnia and Herzegovina that are included in the Supreme Court category.
Firstly, at entity level, there are two courts: the Federation of Bosnia and Herzegovina Supreme Court and the Republika Srpska Supreme Court; both courts are competent to decide within the respective entity on legal remedies concerning decisions of the immediately lower courts.
Secondly, the Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina is established at the State level. Its competencies are regulated by the Law on the Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina and are related to criminal, administrative and appellate jurisdiction. However, the Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina has no jurisdiction over the decisions adopted by the entity – level Supreme Courts. Within its criminal jurisdiction, the Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina tries cases pertaining to the specific category of crimes laid down by the laws of Bosnia and Herzegovina, which include war crimes, organized crime, economic crime and corruption cases. The administrative jurisdiction means that the Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina adjudicates cases pertaining to the decisions issued by the State institutions and other organizations in charge of public functions, such as property disputes related to the performance of public functions between the State and the entities, breaches of the election law, etc. Its Appellate Division only decides appeals against the decisions of the Court’s first instance divisions. Accordingly, there are three Prosecutor’s Offices representing criminal cases before the courts that are included in the Supreme Court category: the Prosecutor’s Office before the Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina; the Prosecutor’s Office before the Federation of Bosnia and Herzegovina Supreme Court; the Prosecutor’s Office before the Republika Srpska Supreme Court.

Q28 (2023): The relevant laws regulate the organization, jurisdiction and operation of courts. Courts and court branches are established and dissolved by law. Courts conduct their activities at their seats. Courts may conduct their activities outside their seats in: court branches and by holding court days. Court president decides on holding court days. There were 21 additional geographical locations in 2023 outside the geographical locations of the respective courts' seats at which the first instance courts of general jurisdictions were conducting their activities such as holding hearings and other activities. The vast majority of the additional geographical locations were classified as court branches, whereas court days were scheduled in only 2 geographical locations.

Q29 (General Comment): Specialized courts (legal entities) - Specialized commercial courts:
The judicial authority in Bosnia and Herzegovina is exercised by courts of general jurisdiction. As an exception, in one of the jurisdictions within Bosnia and Herzegovina (i.e., Republika Srpska), independent commercial courts (i.e., legal entities) have been established by law: 6 first-instance commercial courts and one appellate commercial court (i.e., Higher Commercial Court).
The Higher Commercial Court decides on appeals against the decisions of district commercial courts. The Supreme Court of the Republika Srpska is competent to decide on extraordinary legal remedies against final decisions of commercial courts.
District commercial courts of first instance decide: i. in civil and non-litigious disputes relating to rights and obligations arising from legal transactions of goods, services, securities, ownership and other real rights in real estate, as well as rights and obligations arising from securities, in which both parties in the proceedings are legal or natural persons, who in the capacity of independent entrepreneurs and in another capacity carry out commercial or other registered activities as their primary or supplementary occupation,
ii. in disputes arising from the application of the Companies Act or any other regulation concerning the organization and status of companies, the resolution of disputes arising between members of a company among themselves, as well as between the members and the company, concerning the position of members in the company, the management of the company, and the conduct of matters arising from their position in the company, iii. in disputes relating to ships and navigation on inland waters, as well as in disputes to which maritime law applies, except for disputes regarding passenger transport, iv. in disputes relating to airplanes, as well as in disputes to which aviation law applies, except for disputes regarding passenger transport, v. in disputes concerning copyright, related rights, and industrial property rights.
vi. in disputes arising from acts claimed to constitute unfair competition or a monopolistic agreement, vii. in bankruptcy and liquidation proceedings, in accordance with the law, as well as in all disputes arising during and in connection with the implementation of bankruptcy and liquidation proceedings, viii. in matters of registration of legal entities or independent entrepreneurs regulated by the Law on the Registration of Business Entities in the Court Register, ix. regarding the enforcement proceedings based on final and binding enforcement court decisions of commercial courts, x. regarding enforcement proceedings based on authentic documents in which both parties in the proceedings are legal entities or natural persons who, as independent entrepreneurs or in another capacity, perform economic or other registered activities as a primary or supplementary occupation, and on enforcement notarial deeds in which both parties in the proceedings are legal entities,
xi. in disputes arising from foreign investment.
The Higher Commercial Court has jurisdiction to: i. decide on appeals against decisions of district commercial courts, and in the first instance also on other matters determined by law, ii. decide on conflicts of jurisdiction and on the transfer of jurisdiction of district commercial courts, iii. establish legal stances for the uniform application of laws within the jurisdiction of district commercial courts, and iv. perform other tasks determined by law.
Specialized chambers and/or judges:
Courts are established and dissolved by the laws on courts adopted at the relevant levels of government in Bosnia and Herzegovina. The laws on courts regulate the organization, jurisdiction, and operation of courts. According to these laws, the judicial authority in Bosnia and Herzegovina is exercised by courts of general jurisdiction, except for 7 commercial courts which were established by the law on courts in one of the jurisdictions within Bosnia and Herzegovina (i.e., Republika Srpska). Thus, in Bosnia and Herzegovina, the establishment of special specialized

An administrative dispute may also be initiated when a public authority has failed to issue an administrative act, has not decided on a party's appeal, has not undertaken an administrative action, or has not decided on a party's objection (administrative silence).
In addition to the above, the jurisdiction of the Administrative Court is determined by special laws which prescribe the possibility of conducting an administrative dispute.
The Commercial Court, acting as a court of first instance and a special court (cepej methodology), decides on disputes arising from commercial-law relations between commercial entities, as well as on status-related matters, bankruptcy and liquidation proceedings, protection of intellectual property and competition, and disputes related to ships, aircraft, and other matters prescribed by law.
In addition, the Commercial Court conducts bankruptcy and liquidation proceedings, carries out enforcement and security measures in cases prescribed by law, decides in non-contentious proceedings, and recognizes foreign court and arbitral decisions.
It also confirms settlements reached through mediation and provides international legal assistance within the scope of its jurisdiction.

Serbia
Q09-0 (2025): The stated amount of EUR 15,746,664 (approved budget) refers to the costs of lawyers appointed ex officio.
The exact total amount of expenditures for free legal aid (column other than criminal cases) is not centrally available. The presented figures are only partially based on the amounts reimbursed by the Ministry of Justice and therefore do not reflect the full financial scope of the system.
Article 41 of the Law on Free Legal Aid (“Official Gazette of the Republic of Serbia”, No. 87/2018) stipulates that, upon completion of the provision of free legal aid, the drafting of a notarial document, or mediation in dispute resolution, a request for payment shall be submitted together with supporting evidence and a final calculation (paragraph 1). Furthermore, in cases where the costs are jointly borne by the Republic of Serbia and a local self-government unit, the local self-government unit pays the full amount of the fee to the service provider and subsequently claims reimbursement of 50% from the competent ministry (paragraph 2).
Accordingly, while the actual direct expenditure from the budget of the Ministry of Justice amounted to EUR 46,554, the amount of EUR 93,108 was reported in line with the recommendation of CEPEJ evaluators, who suggested that the reported figure should reflect the estimated total cost of the system rather than only the Ministry’s reimbursed share. For this reason, and by recommendation of CEPEJ evaluators, the reimbursed amount was doubled in order to present the overall estimated expenditure corresponding to both the Ministry’s contribution and the participation of local self-government units.
At the same time, the reported data still does not capture the total nationwide costs of the free legal aid system. It should therefore be emphasized that the actual overall expenditures are likely significantly higher due to the substantial financial participation of local self-government units.
Q09-0 (2023): Annual approved public budget for the High Judicial Council for mandatory defense 11536009 EUR.
In question 012 we counted only free legal aid. I see now we made a mistake.
Q09 (2025): The stated amount of EUR 15,652,468 (implemented budget) refers to the costs of lawyers appointed ex officio.
The exact total amount of expenditures for free legal aid (column other than criminal cases) is not centrally available. The presented figures are only partially based on the amounts reimbursed by the Ministry of Justice and therefore do not reflect the full financial scope of the system.

For this reason, and by recommendation of CEPEJ evaluators, the reimbursed amount was doubled in order to present the overall estimated expenditure corresponding to both the Ministry’s contribution and the participation of local self-government units.

Q09 (2024): We received all the information from the relevant institutions.
Q09 (2023): Official data obtained from the Sector for financial affairs in the MOJ
Annual implemented public budget for the High Judicial Council for mandatory defense 11469009 EUR.
In question 012 we counted only free legal aid. I see now we made a mistake.

Q09 (2022): Please note that the total amount refers only to the cases of granted free legal aid according the Law on free legal aid. This amount does not cover the free legal aid that was provided according to the Criminal Procedure Code (mandatory defense, etc.)
Q013: TOTAL - Annual implemented public budget allocated to legal aid (1 + 2) - 92056 euros. A greater number of cases of free legal aid in 2022 resulted in a greater amount of money spent on the provided free legal aid. The amount for 2022 is higher compared to the previous two years, taking into account that during 2022 all measures against covid-19 were canceled.

Q16 (General Comment): The Law on Free Legal Aid ("Official Gazette of RS", No. 87 of November 13, 2018, in force from October 1st 2019): The purpose of this law is to provide every person with effective and equal access to justice. Free legal aid consists of providing legal advice, drafting submissions, representation and defending in courts. When person applies for free legal aid, he/she must address to local self-government unit, which is entitled to approve/reject the request for granting free legal aid. If the request is granted, the person will be provided free legal aid by the benefactor who must be registrated on a list of benefactors kept by the Minister of Justice. Benefactor are lawyers, mediators, notaries, employees of the self-government unit, Faculties of Law and association which are registrated to provide legal aid in matters of asylum and discrimination. The request for granting free legal aid can be submitted personally or legal representative or attorney, can submit it on their behalf. The Criminal Procedure Code, Article 59:
When criminal proceedings are conducted for a criminal offense for which a sentence of imprisonment of more than five years may be imposed by law, court may, at the request of injured party, appoint a proxy (from the list of lawyers submitted to the court by the competent bar association) if it is in the interest of the proceedings and if the injured party financial situation, cannot bear the costs of representation.
Article 77: Defendant who, due to his financial situation, cannot pay the defense attorney's fee and expenses, will be assigned attorney at his request, if criminal proceedings are conducted for a criminal offense punishable by imprisonment for more than three years. In that case, the defense costs are borne by the court's budget.

Q17 (2025): The responses provided under this section relate exclusively to free legal aid.
Q18 (General Comment): In the Republic of Serbia, the property status of the applicant for free legal aid is taken into account as a criterion for granting free legal aid. The Law on Free Legal Aid does not recognize partial legal aid.
According to Article 4, Paragraph 1, Item 1) of the Law, free legal aid may be provided to a citizen of the Republic of Serbia, a stateless person, a foreign national with permanent residence in the Republic of Serbia, and other individuals who have the right to free legal aid under another law or a ratified international agreement, if:
1. they meet the conditions to be a beneficiary of the right to cash social assistance according to the law governing social protection, or a beneficiary of child allowance according to the law governing financial support to families with children, as well as members of their family or joint household as defined by this law;
2. they do not meet the conditions to be a beneficiary of cash social assistance or child allowance, but due to the payment of legal aid from their income in a specific legal matter, they would meet the conditions to become a beneficiary of cash social assistance or child allowance.
Therefore, in this second case, the income of the applicant for free legal aid is taken into account. The Rulebook on the appearance and detailed content of the application form for approving free legal aid specifies the data and evidence the applicant must provide in the application form, including evidence of the applicant's property status. Thus, an applicant who is not a beneficiary of cash social assistance or child allowance, according to Article 6 of this Rulebook, must submit proof of their property status to demonstrate that paying for legal aid or support would jeopardize their existence (Article 4, Paragraph 1, Item 2) of the Law). The applicant must provide information about income, family members they are obligated to support, real estate, vehicles, and other assets.
Article 6 of the Rulebook stipulates that the applicant meets the conditions for granting free legal aid if their monthly income does not exceed the minimum wage set by the Government in accordance with the law. In addition to the amount of income, data on real estate owned by the applicant for free legal aid are also considered. It is prescribed that the applicant is entitled to free legal aid if the immovable property is used as a residence or if it is used to perform activities that support the applicant or a member of their family or joint household. The Rulebook also stipulates that when deciding on the application for free legal aid, the value and purpose of the vehicle are considered. The applicant is entitled to free legal aid if the vehicle is used for self-employment or if the value of the vehicle does not exceed the annual minimum wage set by the Government in accordance with the law.

Q18 (2025): The responses provided under this section relate exclusively to free legal aid.
Q19 (General Comment): Article 4 of the Law provides certain categories of people who are entitled to free legal aid without considering other criteria, as follows: 1. a child whose rights, obligations, or interests established by law are decided in a proceeding before a court, another state authority, or a public authority; 2. a person subject to a security measure of compulsory psychiatric treatment and detention in a healthcare institution or a protective measure of compulsory psychiatric treatment; 3. a person against whom proceedings for partial or complete deprivation or restoration of legal capacity are conducted; 4. a person seeking legal protection from domestic violence; 5. a person seeking legal protection from torture, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment, or human trafficking; 6. a person seeking asylum in the Republic of Serbia; 7. refugees, persons under subsidiary protection, or internally displaced persons; 8. a person with a disability; 9. a child protected by accommodation services in the social protection system; 10. children and youth whose social housing services have ended until the age of 26; 11. adults and elderly persons placed in a social welfare institution without their consent; 12. a person exercising the right to determine the time and place of birth in accordance with the law governing non-litigation procedures; 13. a person affected by the procedure of forced eviction and resettlement in accordance with the law governing housing. Free legal aid may be provided to these persons regardless of whether the financial conditions prescribed in paragraph 1 of this Article have been met. However, free legal aid shall not be granted if the request is submitted for procedures in which its provision is excluded, in accordance with the provisions of Article 7 of the Law.

Q19 (2025): The responses provided under this section relate exclusively to free legal aid.
Q20 (General Comment): Article 32 of the Law stipulates that the procedure for granting free legal aid is urgent. The administrative authority must issue a decision on the request within eight days of receiving it, and if additional documentation is requested from the applicant, within eight days from the date it is delivered. If there is a risk of irreparable damage to the applicant or if the period for taking action in the procedure is about to expire, the administrative authority is obligated to issue a decision within three days of receiving the request.

Q20 (2025): The responses provided under this section relate exclusively to free legal aid.
Q21 (2025): The value stated in the "total" field includes the number of requests submitted for the approval of free legal aid, as well as requests for free legal support related to the preparation of a notarial statement and mediation in resolving disputes. With regard to other data, we emphasize that we do not have them, bearing in mind that the existing record system does not allow for their monitoring according to the required criteria.
The data provided pertains exclusively to free legal aid.

Q22 (General Comment): The Law distinguishes free legal aid (legal advice, representation before court, defense, drafting of motions) and free legal support (general legal information, mediation, services of public notaries). Legal advice and general legal information are available to everyone and are not subject to approval. The Law prescribes that citizens shall address local self-government units (hereinafter: LSG) to apply for free legal aid. Staff in LSG decide on the applications pursuant to Articles 4 and 7 of the Law (eligibility). Article 67 of the Constitution of RS provides that everyone shall be guaranteed the right to legal aid under conditions stipulated by the law. Legal aid is provided by lawyers, as an independent and autonomous service, and legal aid offices established in the units of local self-government in accordance with the law. The court shall exempt a party from the liability of paying the costs of the proceedings where that party's material situation does not allow him/her to bear such costs. Exemption from the payment of the costs of proceedings includes exemption from the payment of fees and the deposit for the costs of witnesses, expert witnesses, on-site inspections and court notices.

Q25 (General Comment): The authority conducting proceedings may ex officio, at the request of parties or the witness himself, designate as an especially vulnerable witness a witness who is especially vulnerable in view of his age, experience, lifestyle, gender, state of health, nature, the manner or the consequences of the criminal offence committed, or other circumstances (Art. 103 CPC).
An especially vulnerable witness may be examined only through the authority conducting the proceedings, which will treat the witness with particular care, endeavoring to avoid possible detrimental consequences of the criminal proceedings to the personality, physical and mental state of the witness. Examination may be conducted with the assistance of a psychologist, social worker or other professional, which will be decided by the authority conducting proceedings.
If the authority conducting proceedings decides to examine an especially vulnerable witness using technical devices for transmitting images and sound, the examination is conducted without the presence of the parties and other participants in the proceedings in the room where the witness is located.
An especially vulnerable witness may also be examined in his place of living or other premises or in an authorized institution professionally qualified for examining especially vulnerable persons. In such case the authority conducting proceedings may order application of these measures.
An especially vulnerable witness may not be confronted with the defendant, unless the defendant himself requests this and the authority conducting proceedings grants the request, taking into account the level of the witness's vulnerability and rights of defense (Art. 104 CPC).
If there exist circumstances which indicate that by giving testimony or answering certain questions a witness would expose himself or persons close to him to a danger to life, health, freedom or property of substantial size, the court may authorize one or more measures of special protection by issuing a ruling determining a status of protected witness.
The measures of special protection include questioning the protected witness under conditions and in a manner ensuring that his identity is not revealed to the general public, and exceptionally also to the defendant and his defense counsel, in accordance with this Code (Art. 105 CPC).
The measures of special protection ensuring that the identity of a protected witness is not revealed to the public are excluding the public from the trial and prohibition of publication of data about the identity of the witness.
The measure of special protection whereby data about the identity of a protected witness is withheld from the defendant and his defense counsel may be ordered by the court exceptionally if after taking statements from witnesses and the public prosecutor it determines that the life, health or freedom of the witness or a person close to him is threatened to such an extent that it justifies restricting the right to defence and that the witness is credible (Art. 106 CPC).
The provisions related to protected witness apply accordingly to the protection of an undercover investigator, expert witness, professional consultant and professional.
The Law on Program of Protection of Participants in Criminal Proceedings envisages that the protection program is implemented if participants in the criminal proceedings and close people are due to giving evidence or notifications important for proving in criminal proceedings exposed to danger to life, health, physical integrity, freedom or property, and without that testimony or notification proving would be significantly difficult or impossible in criminal proceedings for criminal offenses:

Q26 (General Comment): The Law on Protection of Right to Trial within a Reasonable Time („Official Gazette RS", No. 40/15 and 92/23)
Article 3
The legal means that protect the right to a trial within a reasonable time are:
1) objection to speed up the procedure (hereinafter: objection);
2) appeal;
3) request for just satisfaction.
The party does not pay the court fee in proceedings in which the right to a trial within a reasonable time is protected. They are urgent and have priority in decision-making.
Complaint submission and complaint procedure
Article 7.
The party submits an objection to the court conducting the proceedings or the court before which the proceedings are conducted if he believes that the public prosecutor has violated his right.
The attorney of the party who is authorized to undertake all actions in the procedure that is requested to be accelerated does not need particularly many opportunities to submit the contract.
If the attorney of the party is authorized to foresee only individual actions in the procedure, which does not include the submission of legal means for the protection of the right to a trial within a reasonable time, he is obliged to submit a special power of attorney along with the objection.
If it is suspected that one of the legally prescribed reasons for the termination of the power of attorney has occurred, the court will, by means of a reasoned decision against which no personal appeal is allowed, order the attorney to submit a special deadline for the power of attorney to be issued in accordance with the law, with a warning that the objection to the contrary will be rejected as illegal.
The procedure for the objection is led by the president of the court, who decides on the objection. With the annual schedule of work, he can designate one court or several judges to lead the proceedings alongside him and decide on interviews.
An oral hearing is not held, and the law governing non-litigation proceedings is applied accordingly to other issues.
The president of the court is obliged to decide on the objection within two months from the date of receipt of the contract.
Article 14.
The party has the right to appeal if his objection is rejected or if the president of the court does not decide on it within two months from the day of receipt of the objection.
An appeal can also be filed if the objection was accepted, but the chief public prosecutor did not issue a mandatory instruction within eight days from the date of receipt of the court president's decision, then if the court president or the immediately superior public prosecutor did not order the judge or the public prosecutor to take procedural actions that effectively speed up the procedure, or if the judge or public prosecutor has not taken the ordered procedural actions within the deadline set for him.
An appeal can be filed even if the president of the court, in the decision by which he accepted the objection and determined the violation of the right to a trial, did not set a deadline for taking Q26 (2025): According to the current Code of Criminal Procedure ("Official Gazette of the Republic of Serbia", No. 72/2011, 101/2011, 121/2012, 32/2013, 45/2013, 55/2014, 35/2019, 27/2021 – decision of the Constitutional Court and 62/2021 – decision of the Constitutional Court), the categories of wrongful arrest/detention and wrongful conviction are different in terms of defining persons wrongly deprived of liberty and persons wrongly convicted (Articles 584 and 585). However, the Ministry of Justice is not legally obliged to keep separate records for these two categories of persons and is therefore not able to provide data separately. Accordingly, in the table titled "Wrongful arrest/detention", the data presented would also include the category of wrongful conviction. In addition, it should be noted that the total amount of compensation paid is 575.192,50 euros (67.471.000,00 dinars). When deciding on the submitted claims, the Commission for Compensation of Damage to Persons Unlawfully Deprived of Liberty and Unjustly Convicted of the Ministry of Justice takes into account the facts established by Article 9 of the Rules of Procedure on the Composition and Work of the Commission ("Official Gazette of the Republic of Serbia", No. 73/2020), such as the time spent in detention, age, family and marital status, previous convictions or the lack thereof, the gravity and nature of the criminal offense charged, and other relevant circumstances for determining the intensity and duration of physical and mental suffering and fear caused by the unlawful deprivation of liberty or unjustified conviction.

Regarding the category "Excessive duration of proceedings", i.e. violations of the right to a trial within a reasonable time and violations of property rights, the total amount of compensation paid based on the decisions of the Constitutional Court amounts to 19.374.544,17 euros (2.272.665.030,95 dinars).
In the legal system of the Republic of Serbia, there is a clearly established framework for the protection of the right to a trial within a reasonable time, which includes certain competent authorities, protection mechanisms and the possibility of awarding compensation for damages.
First of all, the Law on the Protection of the Right to a Trial within a Reasonable Time provides for a combined protection mechanism. The competent authority for out-of-court settlement is the State Attorney's Office, to which the party submits a proposal for settlement within six months of acquiring the right to just satisfaction. If an agreement is not reached, the competent courts decide on the claim for compensation for damages. The payment itself is made by the courts or public prosecutor's offices whose work led to the violation of rights, and the funds are provided from the budget of the Republic of Serbia. This law explicitly establishes a system of compensation for damages, which includes both non-pecuniary (just satisfaction) and material damage. The amount of compensation for non-pecuniary damage is legally determined in the range of 300 to 3.000 euros in dinar equivalent, with the amount being determined according to criteria such as the complexity of the case, the actions of the authorities and the importance of the case for the party.
In addition, a constitutional complaint is an additional and, in certain situations, an independent protection mechanism. It is decided by the Constitutional Court of the Republic of Serbia, and can be filed after the exhaustion of legal remedies or, in special cases (especially in bankruptcy and enforcement proceedings against entities with a majority state or social capital), without their exhaustion. Within the framework of a constitutional complaint, there is a possibility of seeking compensation for damage, which also establishes a compensation framework at this level. Although the law does not prescribe fixed amounts, practice shows that compensation for non-pecuniary damage ranges approximately from 100 to 3.000 euros, while compensation for material damage is not determined as a lump sum, but depends on the claims already established in the relevant court proceedings.
The amendments of 2023 further specified the jurisdiction, so that for certain bankruptcy and enforcement proceedings, protection is concentrated before the Constitutional Court, while the Ministry of Justice acts on its decisions and pays the awarded amounts. This further strengthens the institutional framework, but essentially retains the dual model of protection – extrajudicial and judicial, i.e. constitutional.

Q29 (2025): Commercial and insolvency - Commercial courts are courts of special jurisdiction that adjudicate disputes between companies, entrepreneurs, and other business entities, as well as disputes arising from the conduct of commercial activities. The Republic of Serbia has 16 commercial courts, each established for the territory of one or more cities or municipalities. Appeals against decisions of commercial courts are decided in the second instance by the Commercial Appellate Court.
Commercial courts in the first instance decide disputes between business entities and disputes arising between business entities and other legal persons engaged in commercial activities. They also adjudicate disputes concerning copyright and related rights, the protection and use of inventions, industrial designs, models, samples, trademarks, geographical indications, topographies of integrated circuits, i.e., semiconductor products, and plant variety breeders' rights. They decide disputes related to enforcement and security measures within proceedings under their jurisdiction.
Commercial courts conduct bankruptcy and reorganization proceedings, order and carry out enforcement based on enforceable and credible documents when related to business entities and entities engaged in commercial activities. They also order and carry out enforcement and security of their own decisions, decide on the recognition and enforcement of foreign court and arbitral decisions rendered in commercial disputes, and conduct non-contentious proceedings arising from the application of the Law on Companies.Finally, they also adjudicate commercial offenses.
Labour – In basic courts, labour disputes are handled within civil departments. Judges often specialize in this field, but there are no formal chambers dedicated to labour disputes. Higher courts decide on appeals against decisions of basic courts in labour disputes, also within civil departments that deal with labour cases. Judges in higher courts who handle labour disputes have experience and specialization. In the Appellate Court in Belgrade, there are five specialized chambers for labour disputes within the civil department of the Appellate Court.
Family- Within the basic and higher courts, specialized departments for family disputes are established. Judges assigned to these departments are duly specialized, having completed the required training and obtained certification attesting to their specific expertise in the field of children's rights. Within the same departments, proceedings in cases of domestic violence are conducted. Judges assigned to these cases are specialized in issuing urgent protective measures.
Enforcement of criminal sanctions - At each Higher Court, in accordance with the Law on the Enforcement of Criminal Sanctions ("Official Gazette of RS", No. 55/14,35/19) a judge for the enforcement of criminal sanctions is appointed. In cases within their jurisdiction, the enforcement judge acts as a single judge.
Administrative - Administrative Court is a court of special jurisdiction that adjudicates disputes initiated against state administration bodies and local self-government authorities, as well as against public enterprises and agencies, for the purpose of determining the legality of acts by which, in administrative proceedings, a right, obligation, or interest has been decided. An administrative dispute is initiated against final administrative acts. These are acts adopted in the second instance (upon an appeal submitted to an administrative body) or in the first instance, when an appeal is not permitted. Under certain conditions, an administrative dispute may also be initiated when the competent authority fails to adopt an administrative act ("administrative silence"). The Administrative Court is a court of republican rank, and therefore has both subject-matter and territorial jurisdiction over all administrative disputes throughout the territory of the Republic of Serbia.
Juvenile – In higher and appellate courts, specialized departments for criminal proceedings involving juveniles are established. In the first instance, proceedings against a juvenile are conducted before a juvenile judge and a juvenile chamber of the higher court. The juvenile judge and the judges of the juvenile chamber must be persons who have acquired special knowledge

Q16 (General Comment): Legal aid in Kosovo is a constitutional right. Article 31(6) of the Constitution of the Republic of Kosovo guarantees free legal aid for persons who lack sufficient financial resources where such aid is necessary to ensure effective access to justice.
The legal aid system is primarily organized and implemented by the Free Legal Aid Agency (FLAA), an executive agency within the Ministry of Justice. The Agency operates under the Law on Free Legal Aid and its subsequent amendments, which establish a functional state system to provide access to justice for persons in need.
Free legal aid is available in civil, criminal, administrative, and misdemeanor proceedings. Services include legal information and advice, drafting of submissions and documents, and representation before courts and administrative bodies.
Institutionally, FLAA provides services through a network of 7 regional offices and 23 mobile legal aid offices covering municipalities throughout Kosovo. These offices are funded by the state budget and ensure broad geographical access to services.
To further expand access, FLAA with the support of UNDP operates a Mobile Office (minibus) that delivers legal aid in areas where the Agency has no permanent presence. This unit also conducts awareness and information campaigns to inform citizens about their legal rights and available services.
In addition, FLAA has signed cooperation agreements with eight non-governmental organizations, which provide legal aid in municipalities without FLAA offices or fort the support of specific vulnerable groups, including victims of conflict-related sexual violence, repatriated persons, asylum seekers, stateless persons, and members of non-majority communities

Q18 (General Comment): Free legal aid - is a right in a free legal professional service for the citizens who fulfil the criteria determined by Law No. 04 / L-017 on Free Legal Aid: Qualification, Financial and Legal Criteria. Notwithstanding the required criteria, free legal aid is offered to: Sexually raped persons during the war in Kosovo in 1998-1999; Victims of domestic violence; Victim witnesses of violence, who are dependent on victims of domestic violence; Victims of gender-based violence; Victims of any kind of sexual violence, including sexual harassment; Victims of trafficking in human beings; Juvenile victims; Children living in social care institutions; Children under guardianship seeking to initiate proceedings without the consent of their legal guardian or against their legal guardian; Persons whose rights have been violated through an act or failure to act that constitutes discrimination, based on the decision of the competent body under applicable law for protection against discrimination; Journalists, independent journalists, photo-reporters, cameramen and editors who for media licensed by the Independent Media Commission (IMC) and/or in media that are members at the Press Council of Kosovo (PCK).

Q19 (General Comment): Based on the legislation in force for free legal aid, there are situations where legal aid is automatically granted either based on the status of the recipient or the category of the case without the applicant having to satisfy the normal eligibility criteria.
1. Based on beneficiary status
Free legal aid is automatically provided to persons who are beneficiaries of social assistance or those in a similar socio-economic situation, under the primary legal aid category. This means they qualify by status and do not need to meet additional financial thresholds.
2. Based on special categories of recipients or case types
Amendments to the Law on Free Legal Aid (Law No. 08/L-035) establish that certain vulnerable groups receive free legal aid regardless of meeting the standard financial or legal criteria. These include:
• Persons sexually abused during the 1998-99 war
• Victims of domestic violence and gender-based violence
• Victims of human trafficking
• Juvenile victims and children in care institutions
• Children under guardianship initiating proceedings against guardians
• Persons whose rights have been violated by discriminatory acts and
• journalists under specific conditions.
3. Immediate legal aid in exceptional situations
There are also provisions for immediate legal aid (e.g., for persons who are arrested or detained), ensuring access to counsel even if the usual criteria are not yet assessed.
These automatic provisions help ensure that especially vulnerable individuals and cases of high social importance receive legal support as part of Kosovo's access-to-justice framework.

Q20 (General Comment): Timeframe of the procedure for granting legal aid, in relation to the duration from the initial legal aid request to the final decision on the legal aid request is defined in the Law no. 04/L-017 for Free Legal Aid, article no. 32, paragraph no. 5. The Free Legal Aid Agency takes the final decision on who is granted the free legal aid.

Q21 (2025): Our records in the database include only cases in which free legal aid has actually been granted and provided to beneficiaries. Therefore, the figures reported in the next answer reflect only confirmed beneficiaries of legal aid, and not the total number of requests received. This approach ensures that our data accurately represents the cases where legal aid services were delivered, while requests that did not result in granted assistance are not captured in our database.
Q22 (2025): Mandatory representation is not included in the table
Q22 (2024): This number does not include ex officio cases
Q25 (General Comment): With regard to other special arrangements, they are as follows: the language assistance during a court proceeding for ethnic minorities or disabled persons and the physical protection during the time of the judicial proceeding. With regard to information mechanisms, for categories specified above, Courts send a mail to this categories in order to keep them informed regarding the procedure and for the next steps in the procedure. While, with special arrangements we meant the possibility for a minor to have his/her first declaration recorded so he/she does not have to repeat it; video conferencing of the hearing of a vulnerable person; excluding the public in case of a victim of sexual violence/rape.

Q25 (2025): Based on the Strategic Plan for Improving Access to Justice 2026–2028 and the relevant acts of the Kosovo Judicial Council, priority treatment and special procedural arrangements are ensured for vulnerable groups, including victims of sexual abuse, domestic violence, minors, persons with disabilities, women, journalists, and civil society activists.

Q25 (2024): The Kosovo Judicial Council (KJC) has signed a cooperation agreement with the Office for Victim Protection regarding the provision of electronic services, the electronic submission and receipt of requests for Protection Orders, as well as the allocation of office spaces in court branches for the staff of the Office for Victim Protection and Assistance, based on the Council's capacities and possibilities.
The Commission for Monitoring, Evaluation, and Reporting on the Strategic Plan for Improving Access to Justice 2022–2025 and the Strategic Plan for the Efficiency of Handling Corruption, Abuse of Official Duty, and Organized Crime Cases 2025–2027, composed of five judges from the Supreme Court of Kosovo, is responsible for monitoring, evaluating, and reporting on the Strategic Plan for Improving Access to Justice 2022–2025. This plan establishes priority case categories, including:
Criminal Cases:
Cases of Domestic Violence:
Judges must ensure that these cases are handled within a short timeframe, ensuring that hearings are scheduled within a set period and held continuously until the case is resolved.
Failure to handle such cases in a timely manner has serious negative consequences within families and for society, leading to irreparable harm.
The number of such cases is continuously increasing, making it essential to address them in a timely and prioritized manner.
Cases Involving Vulnerable Victims:
Judges must ensure these cases are handled within a short timeframe, scheduling hearings within a set period and ensuring continuity until resolution.
This category includes a significant number of victims, as defined in the Criminal Code of the Republic of Kosovo.
There has been a recent rise in crimes against vulnerable individuals, including persons with disabilities, the LGBT community, and journalists.
These cases must be handled promptly and with priority.
Retrials of Juvenile Criminal Cases:
Although no specific legal deadline exists under the Criminal Procedure Code, such cases must be processed no later than 8 days after receiving the ruling from the higher court ordering the retrial.
Hearings should be scheduled continuously until the case is resolved.
According to the Juvenile Justice Code, procedures involving juveniles are urgent and should be conducted in the best interest and well-being of the minor.
One of the key priorities of Kosovo's judicial system is ensuring timely trials, as required by both national legislation and international legal instruments.
Sexual Offenses:
Judges must handle these cases promptly, ensuring that hearings are scheduled within a set timeframe and continue without delays until resolution.
The number of sexual offense cases has increased, particularly against minors, which has severe consequences for their education, personal development, family life, and social integration.
Prioritizing these cases is essential in every court.
Crimes Against Life and Physical Integrity:

• Remaining cases (in execution, pending decision, or refused) are not counted as granted.
• All procedures and calculations follow Articles 525 and 529 of the Kosovo Criminal Procedure Code and Administrative Instruction 01/2023:
• Non-material damage: €15/day for house arrest, €25/day for pre-trial detention
• Material damage: based on gross salary for employed; minimum gross wage for unemployed

Q26 (2024): Regarding the compensation procedure for individuals unjustly deprived of liberty, this category—specifically the cases in which compensation is permitted—is regulated by Articles 525 and 529 of the Kosovo Code of Criminal Procedure. Among other provisions, compensation is granted to individuals who have been unjustly deprived of liberty in any form, and later:
The charges against them were dismissed,
They were acquitted by a final court decision, or
The investigation was terminated.
Additionally, Instruction 01/2023 on the compensation procedure for individuals wrongfully convicted or arrested establishes the compensation amounts:
House arrest: €15 per day
Pretrial detention: €25 per day
For material damage (lost earnings):
If the person was employed, the compensation is calculated based on the gross salary they earned before being deprived of liberty.
If the person was unemployed, the compensation is equivalent to the minimum gross wage in the Republic of Kosovo.
Furthermore, wrongfully detained individuals are entitled to compensation for family visit expenses and care packages, up to €100 per month.
After completing the administrative procedure before the relevant Commission, established by the Council, individuals may either:
Reach a compensation agreement with the Commission, or
If they disagree with the offered amount, either partially (e.g., accepting compensation only for material or non-material damages) or entirely, they may file a lawsuit before the competent court.
During 2024, a total of 227 compensation requests were submitted by parties to the Compensation Commission established by the KJC. Of these, 23 requests from 2023 and 227 requests from 2024 were compensated, making a total of 247 cases. The total compensation amount, based on court decisions, was €142,568.00.
Q26 (2022): The amount of 251 302 euro covers compensations for cases of Wrongful arrest / detention and Wrongful conviction.
Q26-1 (2025): The Commission for Compensation operates under the Judicial Council (KJC) as the main administrative body responsible for processing compensation requests. All requests are initially reviewed and decided by this Commission. If the claimant does not accept the Commission's decision, the case may then be submitted to the competent court for adjudication.

Basic Court of Prishtina: Branches in Podujeva, Graçanica, Lipjan, Gllogovc, and Fushë Kosovë.
Basic Court of Gjilan: Branches in Kamenica, Viti, and Novobërdë.

Kosovo also has a Court of Appeals with jurisdiction covering the entire territory of the Republic and a Supreme Court as the highest judicial authority.
Excluding the Commercial Court (First and Second Instance Chambers), Kosovo has a total of 7 Basic Courts, a Court of Appeals and a Supreme Court across its judicial system. As of 2026, Kosovo has a specialized Administrative Court as well, which serves as a first instance court.
Q28 (2025): Note 1:
The Administrative Court is not included in the CEPEJ table, as although it is established by law (Law No. 08/L-291), it was not operational in practice during the reporting year. Relevant information is therefore provided only in the Comments / Narrative section.
Note 2:
Although operating under a single institutional title, the Commercial Court exercises independent jurisdiction at both first- and second-instance levels. For CEPEJ statistical purposes, its first-instance and second-instance chambers are therefore reported separately.
1. Basic Courts
•Seven (7) Basic Courts cover the entire territory of Kosovo.
•Certain municipalities are served through branches (e.g. Fushë Kosovë branch for Obiliq municipality; Junik branch for Junik municipality).
•Branches are not independent legal entities and are therefore not counted separately in CEPEJ tables. Only main court seats are reported.
2. Court of Appeal
•Serves as the second instance for courts of general jurisdiction.
•Exercises jurisdiction over the entire territory of Kosovo.
3. Supreme Court
•Acts as the highest judicial instance for all courts, including courts of general jurisdiction and specialized courts.
•For extraordinary legal remedies (e.g. extraordinary appeals and review of sub-legal acts), the Supreme Court serves as the highest and final instance.
•The Special Chamber operates through first-instance panels and an appellate college for specific categories of cases (e.g. Kosovo Property Agency cases); however, it constitutes an internal chamber of the Supreme Court and is not counted as a separate court for CEPEJ purposes.
4. Commercial Court
•Operates through two judicial levels within the same institutional framework:
oFirst instance, functionally equivalent to the Basic Courts.
oSecond instance, functionally equivalent to the Court of Appeal.
•Although institutionally unified, both instances exercise independent jurisdiction at their respective judicial levels.
•For CEPEJ reporting purposes, the first-instance and second-instance chambers of the Commercial Court are therefore counted separately.
•The Supreme Court intervenes only in cases involving extraordinary legal remedies.
5. Administrative Court
•Established by Law No. 08/L-291.

Question 09-0

Albania

(2025): The increase in the Approved and Implemented Legal Aid (LA) budget is mainly due to the increase in the salaries of the employees working within the system of state-guaranteed free legal aid. This adjustment was made in line with the broader public administration salary policy and has directly affected the overall budget allocated and implemented for legal aid.

(2024): The legal aid implemented budget has increased by 8.6% compared to the previous year.
Cases brought to the court, we have referred to cases of secondary legal assistance (payment of lawyers, experts who have provided secondary legal services). The rest is considered as providing advice and any other financial commitment in function of the institution's activity. The further increase is related to the fact of the opening of the primary legal aid service provision centers throughout the Republic of Albania and the changes in the legislation on employee salaries.

Bosnia and Herzegovina

(General Comment): The legal aid is financed through the budgets of individual courts (e.g. funds for legal aid are mainly used to pay for the services of ex officio appointed attorneys in criminal cases) and the budgets of legal aid institutions that are government bodies independent from the courts. The accounting methodology does not make it possible to distinguish the amount of budget funds earmarked by the courts for legal aid from other funds, which are planned within the same line in the court budget. However, it is possible to differentiate the amount of funds spent for legal aid in the implemented court budget. On the other hand, the lawyers employed by the government legal aid institutions provide legal aid in different legal fields (i.e. representation in criminal, civil, administrative court proceedings; provision of legal advice outside of court or other proceedings), therefore it is not possible to split the planned or implemented budget funds of the legal aid institutions between different legal fields. In conclusion, it is only possible to make the calculation of the annual implemented public budget allocated to legal aid without dividing it among criminal and other than criminal cases.

Montenegro

(2025): Regarding the issue of free legal aid, the allocated budget amounted to €144,617.00, of which €90,357.30 was spent in 2025, while the remaining amount was returned to the Budget of Montenegro.

(2022): in 2022 no separate amount for legal aid for courts was allocated, but that was a part of the budget section 4146 - lawyer services. In 2022 for legal aid the amount implemented is 108.776 Eur

North Macedonia

(2025): The increase in the budget is due to the increase of the costs for mandatory legal representation in criminal proceedings

(2024): This discrepancy is result of decrease of budget within of Ministry of Justice dedicated to free legal aid

Serbia

(2025): The stated amount of EUR 15,746,664 (approved budget) refers to the costs of lawyers appointed ex officio.
The exact total amount of expenditures for free legal aid (column other than criminal cases) is not centrally available. The presented figures are only partially based on the amounts reimbursed by the Ministry of Justice and therefore do not reflect the full financial scope of the system.
Article 41 of the Law on Free Legal Aid ("Official Gazette of the Republic of Serbia", No. 87/2018) stipulates that, upon completion of the provision of free legal aid, the drafting of a notarial document, or mediation in dispute resolution, a request for payment shall be submitted together with supporting evidence and a final calculation (paragraph 1). Furthermore, in cases where the costs are jointly borne by the Republic of Serbia and a local self-government unit, the local self-government unit pays the full amount of the fee to the service provider and subsequently claims reimbursement of 50% from the competent ministry (paragraph 2).
Accordingly, while the actual direct expenditure from the budget of the Ministry of Justice amounted to EUR 46,554, the amount of EUR 93,108 was reported in line with the recommendation of CEPEJ evaluators, who suggested that the reported figure should reflect the estimated total cost of the system rather than only the Ministry's reimbursed share. For this reason, and by recommendation of CEPEJ evaluators, the reimbursed amount was doubled in order to present the overall estimated expenditure corresponding to both the Ministry's contribution and the participation of local self-government units.
At the same time, the reported data still does not capture the total nationwide costs of the free legal aid system. It should therefore be emphasized that the actual overall expenditures are likely significantly higher due to the substantial financial participation of local self-government units.

(2023): Annual approved public budget for the High Judicial Council for mandatory defense 11536009 EUR.
In question 012 we counted only free legal aid. I see now we made a mistake.

Kosovo*

(2025): FLAA comment: Based on the Law No. 08/L-332 on Budgetary Allocations for the Budget of The Republic of Kosovo for the year 2025, a budget of €563,418.0 was allocated to the Free Legal Aid Agency, while by the end of the year the final budget was €621,237.86, of which €611,654.43 were implemented. The budget was allocated in the following categories: Salaries and allowances 374,278.29 € goods and services 236,959.57 €; and utilities 10,000.00 €.

(2024): KPC COMMENT: In our budget categories we don't have separate category for budget for lawyers, but the budget code is named "legal representation cost" which include lawyers and experts. The total budget approved for this category was 1,218,303€ which we divided in 2 and the budget approved for lawyers being 609,151.5€.
FREE LEGAL AID AGENCY COMMENT: Based on the budget law No. 08/L-260, a budget of 537,831.00 € was allocated to the Free Legal Aid Agency in the following categories: Salaries and allowances 307,831.00 € goods and services 220,000.00 €;, and utilities 10,000.00 €.

(2022): Budget increased

Albania

(2025): The increase in the Approved and Implemented Legal Aid (LA) budget is mainly due to the increase in the salaries of the employees working within the system of state-guaranteed free legal aid. This adjustment was made in line with the broader public administration salary policy and has directly affected the overall budget allocated and implemented for legal aid.
The budget related to mandatory representation in court (ex officio lawyers) is not included in the figures reported under Q09.

(2023): We emphasize that the planning of funds is done based on the number of decisions received by the court, while the liquidation of payments is done after all the procedural steps of judicial representation have been completed. Trials take time, especially in the nowadays conditions regarding the absence of judges due to the vetting process. This is reflected in the delays until the arrival of the liquidation practice in the Directorate.

Bosnia and Herzegovina

(General Comment): The legal aid is financed through the budgets of individual courts (e.g. funds for legal aid are mainly used to pay for the services of ex officio appointed attorneys in criminal cases) and the budgets of legal aid institutions that are government bodies independent from the courts. The accounting methodology does not make it possible to distinguish the amount of budget funds earmarked by the courts for legal aid from other funds, which are planned within the same line in the court budget. However, it is possible to differentiate the amount of funds spent for legal aid in the implemented court budget. On the other hand, the lawyers employed by the government legal aid institutions provide legal aid in different legal fields (i.e. representation in criminal, civil, administrative court proceedings; provision of legal advice outside of court or other proceedings), therefore it is not possible to split the planned or implemented budget funds of the legal aid institutions between different legal fields. In conclusion, it is only possible to make the calculation of the annual implemented public budget allocated to legal aid without dividing it among criminal and other than criminal cases.

Montenegro

(2025): In 2025, the courts had an individually allocated amount for the provision of free legal aid, which is contained within account 4146-lawyer services and amounted to €144,617.02

(2024): Courts in 2024 had an individually determined amount for providing BPP, it is contained within account 4146-advocate services and it amounted to €145,517.85. In 2024, €91,801.16 was realized for free legal aid. The remaining funds in the amount of €53,716.69 were returned to the State Treasury.

(2023): Not including ex officio mandatory representation. Legal aid is different specific category

(2022): in 2022 no separate amount for legal aid for courts was allocated, but that was a part of the budget section 4146 - lawyer services. In 2022 for legal aid the amount implemented is 108.776 Eur

North Macedonia

(2025): The increase in the budget is due to the increase of the costs for mandatory legal representation in criminal proceedings

(2024): The amount of the approved budget was exceeded due to an increased number of requests and amounts, and payments were made from other lines of the budget of the Ministry, through repurposing.

(2023): In 2023, more criminal cases brought to court were concluded. The rise in the budget allocated to criminal cases may also be attributed to the complexity of these cases and their longer durations, resulting in higher expenses for lawyers.

(2022): Implementation of the new Law on free legal aid was one of the strategic goals. Campaigns in 2022 through the whole country to raise awareness of beneficiaries about their rights to free legal aid were very successful. These Numbers are the proof for improvement of usage of free legal aid system in our country.

Serbia

(2025): The stated amount of EUR 15,652,468 (implemented budget) refers to the costs of lawyers appointed ex officio.
The exact total amount of expenditures for free legal aid (column other than criminal cases) is not centrally available. The presented figures are only partially based on the amounts reimbursed by the Ministry of Justice and therefore do not reflect the full financial scope of the system.
Article 41 of the Law on Free Legal Aid (“Official Gazette of the Republic of Serbia”, No. 87/2018) stipulates that, upon completion of the provision of free legal aid, the drafting of a notarial document, or mediation in dispute resolution, a request for payment shall be submitted together with supporting evidence and a final calculation (paragraph 1). Furthermore, in cases where the costs are jointly borne by the Republic of Serbia and a local self-government unit, the local self-government unit pays the full amount of the fee to the service provider and subsequently claims reimbursement of 50% from the competent ministry (paragraph 2).
Accordingly, while the actual direct expenditure from the budget of the Ministry of Justice amounted to EUR 38,886, the amount of EUR 77,772 was reported in line with the recommendation of CEPEJ evaluators, who suggested that the reported figure should reflect the estimated total cost of the system rather than only the Ministry’s reimbursed share. For this reason, and by recommendation of CEPEJ evaluators, the reimbursed amount was doubled in order to present the overall estimated expenditure corresponding to both the Ministry’s contribution and the participation of local self-government units.
At the same time, the reported data still does not capture the total nationwide costs of the free legal aid system. It should therefore be emphasized that the actual overall expenditures are likely significantly higher due to the substantial financial participation of local self-government units.

(2024): We received all the information from the relevant institutions.

(2023): Official data obtained from the Sector for financial affairs in the MOJ
Annual implemented public budget for the High Judicial Council for mandatory defense 11469009 EUR.
In question 012 we counted only free legal aid. I see now we made a mistake.

(2022): Please note that the total amount refers only to the cases of granted free legal aid according the Law on free legal aid. This amount does not cover the free legal aid that was provided according to the Criminal Procedure Code (mandatory defense, etc.)
Q013: TOTAL - Annual implemented public budget allocated to legal aid (1 + 2) - 92056 euros. A greater number of cases of free legal aid in 2022 resulted in a greater amount of money spent on the provided free legal aid. The amount for 2022 is higher compared to the previous two years, taking into account that during 2022 all measures against covid-19 were canceled.

Kosovo*

These expenses of the lawyers are expenses of the lawyers who are engaged over the years, not just in 2024.

Kosovo*

(General Comment): Legal aid in Kosovo is a constitutional right. Article 31(6) of the Constitution of the Republic of Kosovo guarantees free legal aid for persons who lack sufficient financial resources where such aid is necessary to ensure effective access to justice.
The legal aid system is primarily organized and implemented by the Free Legal Aid Agency (FLAA), an executive agency within the Ministry of Justice. The Agency operates under the Law on Free Legal Aid and its subsequent amendments, which establish a functional state system to provide access to justice for persons in need.
Free legal aid is available in civil, criminal, administrative, and misdemeanor proceedings. Services include legal information and advice, drafting of submissions and documents, and representation before courts and administrative bodies.
Institutionally, FLAA provides services through a network of 7 regional offices and 23 mobile legal aid offices covering municipalities throughout Kosovo. These offices are funded by the state budget and ensure broad geographical access to services.
To further expand access, FLAA with the support of UNDP operates a Mobile Office (minibus) that delivers legal aid in areas where the Agency has no permanent presence. This unit also conducts awareness and information campaigns to inform citizens about their legal rights and available services.
In addition, FLAA has signed cooperation agreements with eight non-governmental organizations, which provide legal aid in municipalities without FLAA offices or fort the support of specific vulnerable groups, including victims of conflict-related sexual violence, repatriated persons, asylum seekers, stateless persons, and members of non-majority communities

Albania

(General Comment): Article 5 of Law Nr.111/2017, determines the Forms of legal aid, provided in the following forms:
a) primary legal aid;
b) secondary legal aid;
c) exemption from payment of court fees and court expenses, according to the law, and exemption from the obligation to prepay the execution fee of the execution order.
Primary legal aid is defined in Article 3 (b) and also Article 3 of Appendix 1 of the Order of the Minister of Justice No 226 dated 25/3/2019 on 'The approval of the contracts of legal aid guaranteed by the state". It comprises • providing of information regarding the legal system and legal acts, • the delivery of counselling, o which "is the delivery of information on the manners and the possibilities of solution of a concrete legal matter" (Article 3 (ç)) • the delivery of advice on the procedures of mediation and the alternative means of dispute resolutions, • the delivery of assistance in drafting and establishing of documentation to o put in motion the state administration or o for requesting secondary legal aid • representation before administration bodies, o Secondary legal aid is only provided before (administrative and civil) courts, and • the delivery of all other forms of necessary legal support not constituting secondary legal aid.
According to Article 3 (c) "Secondary legal aid" is the legal service that is offered for • the compilation of the necessary legal acts for putting in motion the court (i.e. the pre-court phase), • the delivery of counselling, representation and defence before the court in o administrative and o civil and o in criminal cases • for which is not applied the mandatory defence in accordance of the criminal procedural legislation. That means that in this respect the Law on Legal Aid is subsidiary to the Code on Criminal Procedure.

(2025): State-guaranteed legal aid in Albania covers both criminal and non-criminal cases and includes legal representation before courts as well as legal advice, assistance and other legal services. The system operates through primary legal aid (information, counselling and assistance provided mainly via service centers, NGOs and legal clinics) and secondary legal aid (court representation by advocates appointed upon a court decision), coordinated by the Directorate of Free Legal Aid in accordance with Law No. 111/2017.

Bosnia and Herzegovina

(General Comment): Legal aid is exercised in different types of court proceedings as a right to:
a) general information on rights and obligations,
b) legal advice and assistance in filling out forms,
c) legal assistance in compiling all types of correspondence,
d) representation in court,
e) making an appeal and
f) legal assistance in the procedures of peaceful settlement of the dispute (e.g. mediation).

Question 18

Albania
(2025): Legal aid in Albania is granted or refused on the basis of the following criteria, applicable to both criminal and non-criminal cases:
Financial criteria (Articles 12 and related provisions)
Legal aid is granted when the applicant demonstrates insufficient income and assets to cover the costs of legal assistance or representation.
Special beneficiary categories (Article 11)
Legal aid is granted regardless of income or assets to specific categories explicitly listed in the law (e.g. victims of domestic violence, victims of trafficking or sexual abuse, children, persons with disabilities, persons subject to involuntary mental health treatment, beneficiaries of social protection schemes, and victims of discrimination).
Grounds for refusal (procedural and substantive conditions)
Legal aid may be refused or discontinued in both criminal and non-criminal cases when:
- the legal request is manifestly unfounded, abusive, or lacks legal grounds;
- the applicant does not meet the statutory conditions for benefiting from legal aid;
- false or misleading information has been provided in the application.
The system is implemented and coordinated by the Directorate of Free Legal Aid, while decisions on granting or refusing legal aid—particularly for secondary legal aid—are taken by the competent courts, in accordance with the law.

Bosnia and Herzegovina
(General Comment): Financial criteria for granting free legal aid:
In general, a person of poor financial status, who is entitled to free legal aid, is considered to be someone whose income per household member does not exceed a certain portion of the average salary in the previous calendar year and who also meets other criteria, for example, not having real estate or other assets that could cover the costs of the court proceedings.
Varying financial criteria for granting free legal aid to potential beneficiaries are used by institutions of different levels of government for deciding on granting free legal aid in Bosnia and Herzegovina; these criteria are primarily linked to the amount of average salary. These institutions also use criteria for owning property with regard to granting or refusing free legal aid cumulatively with the income criterion, as well as other additional criteria (e.g. income of other family members); however, these property criteria are not intended to be expressed through monetary amounts. The examples of the assets criteria: beneficiaries of legal aid may not own or co-own a business; they also may not own two or more housing units (i.e. a house or a flat) and they may not own business premises. Legal aid may be refused for cases lacking merit, such as frivolous actions or those with no reasonable chance of success:
A request for legal aid will not be granted if: it is obviously ill founded (i.e. legal requirements are clearly not met); the proceedings in question are unjustified (i.e. the potential client has slim chances to win the case); the right to legal aid is misused (i.e. the potential client has provided incorrect data that was relevant for approving legal aid).

Montenegro

(General Comment): The scope of beneficiaries of free legal aid has been expanded, so that victims of torture and other forms of abuse, victims of criminal offences against sexual freedom, as well as children in proceedings for the protection of their rights, are granted an automatic entitlement, in line with the recommendations of the UN Committee against Torture (CAT), the Committee on the Rights of the Child, UNICEF and GREVIO Status of the recipient: The right to free legal aid can be exercised by Montenegrin citizens, stateless persons (apatrids), foreigners with permanent or temporary residence, and asylum seekers, as well as other persons in accordance with international treaties, provided they meet certain property criteria (financially vulnerable). An exception is "vulnerable categories" (e.g., victims of domestic violence) who receive special treatment, but still go through the application process.

(2025): In Montenegro, legal aid is primarily granted based on the financial situation of the applicant. In criminal cases, legal aid is ensured to persons who lack sufficient financial means, and in cases of mandatory defence it is granted regardless of financial status. In non-criminal cases, legal aid is subject both to a financial means test and a merits assessment, and may be refused if the claim is manifestly unfounded or constitutes an abuse of rights.

North Macedonia

(2025): According to the Law on Free Legal Aid, free legal aid can be refused if the person has given false data regarding his/her status.
The request for free legal aid will also be rejected if the lawyer has submitted a reasoned opinion that it is inexpedient to continue the procedure for which secondary legal aid was previously approved, and which relates to the same legal issue and legal basis.

Serbia

(General Comment): In the Republic of Serbia, the property status of the applicant for free legal aid is taken into account as a criterion for granting free legal aid. The Law on Free Legal Aid does not recognize partial legal aid.
According to Article 4, Paragraph 1, Item 1) of the Law, free legal aid may be provided to a citizen of the Republic of Serbia, a stateless person, a foreign national with permanent residence in the Republic of Serbia, and other individuals who have the right to free legal aid under another law or a ratified international agreement, if:
1. they meet the conditions to be a beneficiary of the right to cash social assistance according to the law governing social protection, or a beneficiary of child allowance according to the law governing financial support to families with children, as well as members of their family or joint household as defined by this law;
2. they do not meet the conditions to be a beneficiary of cash social assistance or child allowance, but due to the payment of legal aid from their income in a specific legal matter, they would meet the conditions to become a beneficiary of cash social assistance or child allowance.

Therefore, in this second case, the income of the applicant for free legal aid is taken into account. The Rulebook on the appearance and detailed content of the application form for approving free legal aid specifies the data and evidence the applicant must provide in the application form, including evidence of the applicant's property status. Thus, an applicant who is not a beneficiary of cash social assistance or child allowance, according to Article 6 of this Rulebook, must submit proof of their property status to demonstrate that paying for legal aid or support would jeopardize their existence (Article 4, Paragraph 1, Item 2) of the Law). The applicant must provide information about income, family members they are obligated to support, real estate, vehicles, and other assets.
Article 6 of the Rulebook stipulates that the applicant meets the conditions for granting free legal aid if their monthly income does not exceed the minimum wage set by the Government in accordance with the law. In addition to the amount of income, data on real estate owned by the applicant for free legal aid are also considered. It is prescribed that the applicant is entitled to free legal aid if the immovable property is used as a residence or if it is used to perform activities that support the applicant or a member of their family or joint household. The Rulebook also stipulates that when deciding on the application for free legal aid, the value and purpose of the vehicle are considered. The applicant is entitled to free legal aid if the vehicle is used for self-employment or if the value of the vehicle does not exceed the annual minimum wage set by the Government in accordance with the law.

(2025): The responses provided under this section relate exclusively to free legal aid.

Kosovo*

(General Comment): Free legal aid - is a right in a free legal professional service for the citizens who fulfil the criteria determined by Law No. 04 / L-017 on Free Legal Aid: Qualification, Financial and Legal Criteria. Notwithstanding the required criteria, free legal aid is offered to: Sexually raped persons during the war in Kosovo in 1998-1999; Victims of domestic violence; Victim witnesses of violence, who are dependent on victims of domestic violence; Victims of gender-based violence; Victims of any kind of sexual violence, including sexual harassment; Victims of trafficking in human beings; Juvenile victims; Children living in social care institutions; Children under guardianship seeking to initiate proceedings without the consent of their legal guardian or against their legal guardian; Persons whose rights have been violated through an act or failure to act that constitutes discrimination, based on the decision of the competent body under applicable law for protection against discrimination; Journalists, independent journalists, photo-reporters, cameramen and editors who for media licensed by the Independent Media Commission (IMC) and/or in media that are members at the Press Council of Kosovo (PCK).

Question 19

Albania

(2025): Secondary legal aid under Law no. 111/2017 covers the drafting of legal acts and the provision of legal counselling, representation and defence before courts in administrative, civil and criminal cases, only where mandatory defence does not apply under criminal procedural law.
Accordingly:
automatic legal aid based on status applies under Law no. 111/2017;
automatic legal aid based on case category applies exclusively in cases of mandatory defence under the Code of Criminal Procedure.

Bosnia and Herzegovina
(General Comment): Status or personal characteristic of the recipient:
According to the legislation on the protection of and proceedings with children and minors in criminal procedure, a minor must have a defender during the first questioning by the prosecutor or an authorized official, as well as throughout the entire criminal proceedings.
According to the laws that prescribe the rules for the work of free legal aid institutions, the right to free legal aid based on status is exercised, for example, by: children, persons deprived of legal capacity, etc. In different jurisdictions within Bosnia and Herzegovina, the laws regulating the functioning of free legal aid institutions provide additional possibilities to exercise the right to free legal aid on the basis of other types of status (e.g., asylum seekers, victims of domestic violence or gender-based violence).
Category of the case:
A suspect in the criminal proceedings must have a defense attorney at the first questioning if he is mute or deaf or if he is suspected of a criminal offense for which a penalty of long-term imprisonment may be pronounced
A suspect or accused in the criminal proceedings must have a defense attorney immediately after he has been assigned to pre-trial custody, throughout the pre-trial custody. After an indictment has been brought for a criminal offense for which a prison sentence of 10 years or more may be pronounced, the accused must have a defense attorney at the time of the delivery of the indictment.
If the suspect, or the accused in the case of a mandatory defense, does not retain a defense attorney himself, or if his family members do not retain a defense attorney, the preliminary proceeding judge, preliminary hearing judge, the judge, the presiding judge, or the court president appoints him a defense attorney in the criminal proceedings. In one of the jurisdictions in Bosnia and Herzegovina, the court selects the defense attorney for the suspect or the accused if he fails to choose an ex officio defense attorney from the predetermined list. In other jurisdiction in Bosnia and Herzegovina, the court president appoints the defense attorney using the predetermined list of ex officio defense attorneys without giving an opportunity to the suspect or accused to select the defense attorney from the list.

Montenegro
(2025): The right to free legal aid is established by the Law on Free Legal Aid. The scope of beneficiaries of free legal aid has been expanded, so that victims of torture and other forms of abuse, victims of criminal offences against sexual freedom, as well as children in proceedings for the protection of their rights, are granted an automatic entitlement, in line with the recommendations of the UN Committee against Torture (CAT), the Committee on the Rights of the Child, UNICEF and GREVIO Status of the recipient: The right to free legal aid can be exercised by Montenegrin citizens, stateless persons (apatrids), foreigners with permanent or temporary residence, and asylum seekers, as well as other persons in accordance with international treaties, provided they meet certain property criteria (financially vulnerable). An exception is "vulnerable categories" (e.g., victims of domestic violence) who receive special treatment, but still go through the application process.

North Macedonia
(General Comment): According to the Article 20 from the Law on free legal Aid, there are 3 situations in which free legal aid is automatically granted: victims of domestic violence, due to natural disaster and if the applicant is placed to foster family.

Serbia
(General Comment): Article 4 of the Law provides certain categories of people who are entitled to free legal aid without considering other criteria, as follows: 1.a child whose rights, obligations, or interests established by law are decided in a proceeding before a court, another state authority, or a public authority; 2.a person subject to a security measure of compulsory psychiatric treatment and detention in a healthcare institution or a protective measure of compulsory psychiatric treatment; 3.a person against whom proceedings for partial or complete deprivation or restoration of legal capacity are conducted; 4.a person seeking legal protection from domestic violence; 5.a person seeking legal protection from torture, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment, or human trafficking; 6.a person seeking asylum in the Republic of Serbia; 7.refugees, persons under subsidiary protection, or internally displaced persons; 8.a person with a disability; 9.a child protected by accommodation services in the social protection system; 10.children and youth whose social housing services have ended until the age of 26; 11.adults and elderly persons placed in a social welfare institution without their consent; 12.a person exercising the right to determine the time and place of birth in accordance with the law governing non-litigation procedures; 13.a person affected by the procedure of forced eviction and resettlement in accordance with the law governing housing. Free legal aid may be provided to these persons regardless of whether the financial conditions prescribed in paragraph 1 of this Article have been met. However, free legal aid shall not be granted if the request is submitted for procedures in which its provision is excluded, in accordance with the provisions of Article 7 of the Law.

(2025): The responses provided under this section relate exclusively to free legal aid.

Kosovo*

(General Comment): Based on the legislation in force for free legal aid, there are situations where legal aid is automatically granted either based on the status of the recipient or the category of the case without the applicant having to satisfy the normal eligibility criteria.

1. Based on beneficiary status

Free legal aid is automatically provided to persons who are beneficiaries of social assistance or those in a similar socio-economic situation, under the primary legal aid category. This means they qualify by status and do not need to meet additional financial thresholds.

2. Based on special categories of recipients or case types

Amendments to the Law on Free Legal Aid (Law No. 08/L-035) establish that certain vulnerable groups receive free legal aid regardless of meeting the standard financial or legal criteria. These include:

• Persons sexually abused during the 1998-99 war
• Victims of domestic violence and gender-based violence
• Victims of human trafficking
• Juvenile victims and children in care institutions
• Children under guardianship initiating proceedings against guardians
• Persons whose rights have been violated by discriminatory acts and
• journalists under specific conditions.

3. Immediate legal aid in exceptional situations

There are also provisions for immediate legal aid (e.g., for persons who are arrested or detained), ensuring access to counsel even if the usual criteria are not yet assessed.

These automatic provisions help ensure that especially vulnerable individuals and cases of high social importance receive legal support as part of Kosovo's access-to-justice framework.

Question 20

Albania

(2025): Primary Legal Aid / Maximum duration prescribed in law/regulation

First legal aid is provided immediately at the moment requested verbally or written. If it is needed can be extended the days of consolations.

Actual average duration

First legal aid is provided immediately at the moment requested verbally or written If it is needed can be extended the days of consolations dy max 2 days.

Secondary Legal Aid

Maximum duration prescribed in law/regulation

The time of decision depends on when the application was lodged:

• The court has to decide within 5 days from the date of receipt of the request, when the request has been submitted before initiation of the judicial proceeding
• during the preliminary actions or in the preparatory session before the scheduling of the judicial session/hearing, when the request for legal aid has been submitted together with the statement of claim
• according to the provisions of the procedural legislation and the provisions of this law, when the request has been filed during judicial examination

According to the Article 22 (9) the Directorate may appeal against the acceptance (only) when it claims that the request is evidently abusive or manifestly ill-founded and not if it claims that the applicant does not fulfil the criteria of Articles 10 to 12. It will have to be clarified if the reasons of appeal were restricted on purpose or if a reference to Articles 10 to 12 was omitted by error. Since Article 22 (9) does (in contrast to Article 22 (7)) not refer to the special appeal, the provisions on normal appeals apply. Article 22 (9) states that "In this case shall be applied the time-limits and the rules for appeal of final decisions in accordance with the provisions of the procedural legislation." Thus the time-limits and the rules for appeal of final decisions in accordance with the provisions of the procedural legislation apply. I.e. that different procedural rules apply for the appeal of the Directorate against the approval than for the appeal against the dismissal. Against the decision of the court of appeal a recourse to the High Court is not allowed.

Actual average duration

From the practice, it results that the period from the moment of sending the request for secondary legal aid until the notification of the court's decision on the acceptance or not of the request is 1 month.

Bosnia and Herzegovina

(General Comment): Maximum duration prescribed in law for deciding on granting initial legal aid request is 15 days. This deadline applies to all types of cases. It is prescribed in the relevant legislation on the functioning of legal aid institutions. In addition, the criminal procedure codes oblige the court to urgently appoint an ex-officio attorney to the suspect/accused persons such as minors, detainees, a defendant in a criminal case in which one my be given long-term prison sentence etc.; also, pursuant to the criminal procedure codes the court will decide urgently if an attorney shall be assigned to the suspect or accused at his request if due to an adverse financial situation, he is not able to pay the expenses of the defense in the proceedings that are conducted for an offense for which a prison sentence of three or more years may be pronounced or when the interests of justice so require. Actual average duration was 9 days in criminal cases, whereas it was 7 days in other than criminal cases. This calculation is based on the actual duration of time passed between initial requests and final approvals for all procedures for granting legal aid completed in the reference year. The aforementioned calculation is based on the data gathered from the courts and legal aid institutions for 2025. The courts provided data on the timeframes with regards to deciding on requests for appointing ex-officio lawyers in criminal proceedings as well as data on granting requests for exemption from paying court taxes and other costs in the civil proceedings. The legal aid institutions provided statistics on the actual timeframes of the procedure for granting legal aid.

Serbia
(General Comment): Article 32 of the Law stipulates that the procedure for granting free legal aid is urgent. The administrative authority must issue a decision on the request within eight days of receiving it, and if additional documentation is requested from the applicant, within eight days from the date it is delivered. If there is a risk of irreparable damage to the applicant or if the period for taking action in the procedure is about to expire, the administrative authority is obligated to issue a decision within three days of receiving the request.

Kosovo*
(General Comment): Timeframe of the procedure for granting legal aid, in relation to the duration from the initial legal aid request to the final decision on the legal aid request is defined in the Law no. 04/L-017 for Free Legal Aid, article no. 32, paragraph no. 5. The Free Legal Aid Agency takes the final decision on who is granted the free legal aid.

Question 21

Bosnia and Herzegovina
(General Comment): The legal aid institutions can produce data on the number of requests for legal aid and decisions on granting legal aid. However, the manner in which it is envisaged that courts in criminal proceedings assign defense attorneys ex officio to suspects and accused persons does not allow for precise recording of requests for granting legal aid in the Case Management System.

(2025): The legal aid institutions have data on the number of requests for legal aid and decisions on granting legal aid. However, the manner in which it is envisaged that courts in criminal proceedings assign defense attorneys ex officio to suspects and accused persons does not allow for precise recording of requests for granting legal aid in the case management system.

(2025): The value stated in the "total" field includes the number of requests submitted for the approval of free legal aid, as well as requests for free legal support related to the preparation of a notarial statement and mediation in resolving disputes. With regard to other data, we emphasize that we do not have them, bearing in mind that the existing record system does not allow for their monitoring according to the required criteria.
The data provided pertains exclusively to free legal aid.

Kosovo*
(2025): Our records in the database include only cases in which free legal aid has actually been granted and provided to beneficiaries. Therefore, the figures reported in the next answer reflect only confirmed beneficiaries of legal aid, and not the total number of requests received. This approach ensures that our data accurately represents the cases where legal aid services were delivered, while requests that did not result in granted assistance are not captured in our database.

Question 22

Albania
(2025): Based on the administered data, all applications for primary legal aid (which do not include legal representation before courts) were accepted (100%).
Furthermore, based on the administered data, 63 out of a total of 924 requests for secondary legal aid (which include legal representation before courts) were not accepted by the competent courts.

(2024): Based on the administered data, it results that the cases of primary legal aid (which do not include representation in court) are 100% accepted.
Based on the administered data, it results that 64 requests for secondary legal aid (which include representation in court) out of 340 in total are not accepted by the court. We don't do an administration of how many criminal cases granted legal aid cases.
TOTAL: Cases not brought to court (Primary Legal Aid + Secondary Legal Aid) 6220 (primary legal aid) + 66 (secondary legal aid not accepted legal aid) 6286
In criminal cases: Cases not brought to court (Primary Legal Aid + Secondary Legal Aid) 425(primary legal aid) + 5(secondary legal aid not accepted legal aid) 430
In other than criminal caseS: Cases not brought to court (Primary Legal Aid + Secondary Legal Aid) 5795 (primary legal aid) + 61 (secondary legal aid not accepted legal aid) 5856
These are the finals result for year 2024. It was made a mistake because we hadn't have this type of statistical data collected and another analyze was made.
Based on the administered data, it results that the cases of primary legal aid (which do not include representation in court) are 100% accepted. That is because Primary Legal Aid, is the type of legal service which consists in:
• information about the legal system in the Republic of Albania, applicable normative acts, rights and obligations of subjects of the law, and on the ways on how to exercise such rights in judicial and extrajudicial processes; • consultation; • consultation about mediation procedures and alternative resolution of disputes; • assistance in drafting and compiling documents necessary to put the state administration in motion or to seek secondary legal aid; • representation before administrative bodies; • any other type of necessary legal support that is not included in secondary legal aid.
And as a result it is given for all the citizens that request it in the Primary Legal Aid Service Center (20 Primary Legal Aid Centers, function in 20 cities of Albania), by 15 NGO-s operating for the year 2024 and by 13 Legal clinics at the higher education institutions.
While the Secondary Legal Aid (representation by an advocate in a court procedure), it is provided by advocates included in the list approved by the National Chamber of Advocates upon the request (according to the form) of the person entitled to receive secondary legal aid. The request has to be addressed to the competent court. The court has to decide within 5 days from the date of receipt of the request, when the request has been submitted, where the court accept or not to give the legal aid (representation by an advocate in a court procedure or exemption from payment of court fees, court costs and from the obligation for prepayment of fees for initiating execution of the execution order). 177 advocates have signed the contract for the provision of the secondary legal aid service for 2024.
The ex officio lawyers) cases aren't included in this count, because the Legal Aid advocates are not the same with ex officio lawers. The Legal Aid advocates sign every year a contract with Free Legal Aid Directorate, which legitimate them the representation in court for legal cases.

(2023): Based on the administered data, it results that the cases of primary legal aid (which do not include representation in court) are 100% accepted.
Based on the administered data, it results that 44 requests for secondary legal aid (which include representation in court) out of 773 in total are not accepted by the court.

(2022): As for the year 2022, 7616 citizens have been treated with primary legal aid and 1030 court decisions have been administered with the object of secondary legal aid.
During 2022 according to the scope of court cases that citizens have requested secondary legal assistance, it is evident that they are mainly civil cases. Out of the total number of requests for legal aid of 1030, 691 of them are civil, where the main ones are marriage settlement, pension benefits and property conflicts. While the other two categories, where 70 are criminal and 269 are administrative cases.

Bosnia and Herzegovina
(General Comment): Criminal cases brought to court: cases (criminal/misdemeanor) in which free legal aid was given trough representation in court and cases in which free legal aid was given for the costs of proceedings.
Other cases brought to court: cases in which free legal aid was given trough representation in court and the preparation of legal documents, cases in which free legal aid was given only trough preparation of legal documents required within the court procedure, and cases in which free legal aid was given only for the costs of proceedings.
Cases not brought to court: cases (civil, enforcement, administrative, administrative-non judicial, criminal/misdemeanor, etc.) in which free legal aid was given trough legal advice only by the government founded free legal aid institutions.
Free legal aid is provided in courts and by the specialized free legal aid institutions formed by the different levels of government in Bosnia and Herzegovina. Free legal aid is provided by the courts in criminal proceedings by assigning a lawyer to a suspected or accused person if that person meets the conditions laid down by law. Also, the courts make a decision on exemption from the costs of proceedings for parties in different types of proceedings (e.g. criminal, civil). Employees of institutions providing free legal aid represent the party in various types of court proceedings, compose legal documents and give legal advice to a person who meets financial and property criteria. The data refer to the number of cases in which courts and institutions of free legal aid provided legal assistance in the described ways. It is important to that the number of persons who received free legal aid may be higher than the number of cases in which free legal aid was provided.

(General Comment): The Law distinguishes free legal aid (legal advice, representation before court, defense, drafting of motions) and free legal support (general legal information, mediation, services of public notaries). Legal advice and general legal information are available to everyone and are not subject to approval. The Law prescribes that citizens shall address local self-government units (hereinafter: LSG) to apply for free legal aid. Staff in LSG decide on the applications pursuant to Articles 4 and 7 of the Law (eligibility). Article 67 of the Constitution of RS provides that everyone shall be guaranteed the right to legal aid under conditions stipulated by the law. Legal aid is provided by lawyers, as an independent and autonomous service, and legal aid offices established in the units of local self-government in accordance with the law. The court shall exempt a party from the liability of paying the costs of the proceedings where that party's material situation does not allow him/her to bear such costs. Exemption from the payment of the costs of proceedings includes exemption from the payment of fees and the deposit for the costs of witnesses, expert witnesses, on-site inspections and court notices.

(2025): The value in the "total" field refers to the total number of approved requests for free legal aid, including approved requests for free legal support in the form of drawing up a notarial statement and mediation in resolving disputes. With regard to other data, we would like to point out that we do not have it, given that the existing record system does not allow for their monitoring according to the required criteria.
The data provided pertains exclusively to free legal aid.

Question 23

Albania
(2025): In the Albanian legal aid system, both primary and secondary legal aid are measured by recipient, in line with the agreed methodology. Primary legal aid reflects the number of individuals who benefit from legal information, advice, or assistance.
Secondary legal aid is also recorded by recipient, meaning that each beneficiary who is granted or refused legal aid in the context of court proceedings constitutes one statistical unit. Within a single case, different types of legal aid services—such as legal representation, exemption from court fees, or exemption from procedural costs—are not recorded separately, but as components of the same assistance provided to the recipient.

(General Comment): The authority conducting proceedings may ex officio, at the request of parties or the witness himself, designate as an especially vulnerable witness a witness who is especially vulnerable in view of his age, experience, lifestyle, gender, state of health, nature, the manner or the consequences of the criminal offence committed, or other circumstances (Art. 103 CPC).
An especially vulnerable witness may be examined only through the authority conducting the proceedings, which will treat the witness with particular care, endeavoring to avoid possible detrimental consequences of the criminal proceedings to the personality, physical and mental state of the witness. Examination may be conducted with the assistance of a psychologist, social worker or other professional, which will be decided by the authority conducting proceedings.
If the authority conducting proceedings decides to examine an especially vulnerable witness using technical devices for transmitting images and sound, the examination is conducted without the presence of the parties and other participants in the proceedings in the room where the witness is located.
An especially vulnerable witness may also be examined in his place of living or other premises or in an authorized institution professionally qualified for examining especially vulnerable persons. In such case the authority conducting proceedings may order application of these measures.
An especially vulnerable witness may not be confronted with the defendant, unless the defendant himself requests this and the authority conducting proceedings grants the request, taking into account the level of the witness's vulnerability and rights of defense (Art. 104 CPC).
If there exist circumstances which indicate that by giving testimony or answering certain questions a witness would expose himself or persons close to him to a danger to life, health, freedom or property of substantial size, the court may authorize one or more measures of special protection by issuing a ruling determining a status of protected witness.
The measures of special protection include questioning the protected witness under conditions and in a manner ensuring that his identity is not revealed to the general public, and exceptionally also to the defendant and his defense counsel, in accordance with this Code (Art. 105 CPC).
The measures of special protection ensuring that the identity of a protected witness is not revealed to the public are excluding the public from the trial and prohibition of publication of data about the identity of the witness.
The measure of special protection whereby data about the identity of a protected witness is withheld from the defendant and his defense counsel may be ordered by the court exceptionally if after taking statements from witnesses and the public prosecutor it determines that the life, health or freedom of the witness or a person close to him is threatened to such an extent that it justifies restricting the right to defence and that the witness is credible (Art. 106 CPC).
The provisions related to protected witness apply accordingly to the protection of an undercover investigator, expert witness, professional consultant and professional.
The Law on Program of Protection of Participants in Criminal Proceedings envisages that the protection program is implemented if participants in the criminal proceedings and close people are due to giving evidence or notifications important for proving in criminal proceedings exposed to danger to life, health, physical integrity, freedom or property, and without that testimony or notification proving would be significantly difficult or impossible in criminal proceedings for criminal offenses:

If the authority conducting proceedings decides to examine an especially vulnerable witness using technical devices for transmitting images and sound, the examination is conducted without the presence of the parties and other participants in the proceedings in the room where the witness is located.
An especially vulnerable witness may also be examined in his place of living or other premises or in an authorized institution professionally qualified for examining especially vulnerable persons. In such case the authority conducting proceedings may order application of these measures.
An especially vulnerable witness may not be confronted with the defendant, unless the defendant himself requests this and the authority conducting proceedings grants the request, taking into account the level of the witness's vulnerability and rights of defense (Art. 104 CPC).
If there exist circumstances which indicate that by giving testimony or answering certain questions a witness would expose himself or persons close to him to a danger to life, health, freedom or property of substantial size, the court may authorize one or more measures of special protection by issuing a ruling determining a status of protected witness.
The measures of special protection include questioning the protected witness under conditions and in a manner ensuring that his identity is not revealed to the general public, and exceptionally also to the defendant and his defense counsel, in accordance with this Code (Art. 105 CPC).
The measures of special protection ensuring that the identity of a protected witness is not revealed to the public are excluding the public from the trial and prohibition of publication of data about the identity of the witness.
The measure of special protection whereby data about the identity of a protected witness is withheld from the defendant and his defense counsel may be ordered by the court exceptionally if after taking statements from witnesses and the public prosecutor it determines that the life, health or freedom of the witness or a person close to him is threatened to such an extent that it justifies restricting the right to defence and that the witness is credible (Art. 106 CPC).
The provisions related to protected witness apply accordingly to the protection of an undercover investigator, expert witness, professional consultant and professional.
The Law on Program of Protection of Participants in Criminal Proceedings envisages that the protection program is implemented if participants in the criminal proceedings and close people are due to giving evidence or notifications important for proving in criminal proceedings exposed to danger to life, health, physical integrity, freedom or property, and without that testimony or notification proving would be significantly difficult or impossible in criminal proceedings for criminal offenses:

An especially vulnerable witness may be examined only through the authority conducting the proceedings, which will treat the witness with particular care, endeavoring to avoid possible detrimental consequences of the criminal proceedings to the personality, physical and mental state of the witness. Examination may be conducted with the assistance of a psychologist, social worker or other professional, which will be decided by the authority conducting proceedings.

(General Comment): With regard to other special arrangements, they are as follows: the language assistance during a court proceeding for ethnic minorities or disabled persons and the physical protection during the time of the judicial proceeding. With regard to information mechanisms, for categories specified above, Courts send a mail to this categories in order to keep them informed regarding the procedure and for the next steps in the procedure. While, with special arrangements we meant the possibility for a minor to have his/her first declaration recorded so he/she does not have to repeat it; video conferencing of the hearing of a vulnerable person; excluding the public in case of a victim of sexual violence/rape.

(2025): Based on the Strategic Plan for Improving Access to Justice 2026–2028 and the relevant acts of the Kosovo Judicial Council, priority treatment and special procedural arrangements are ensured for vulnerable groups, including victims of sexual abuse, domestic violence, minors, persons with disabilities, women, journalists, and civil society activists.

(2024): The Kosovo Judicial Council (KJC) has signed a cooperation agreement with the Office for Victim Protection regarding the provision of electronic services, the electronic submission and receipt of requests for Protection Orders, as well as the allocation of office spaces in court branches for the staff of the Office for Victim Protection and Assistance, based on the Council's capacities and possibilities.
The Commission for Monitoring, Evaluation, and Reporting on the Strategic Plan for Improving Access to Justice 2022–2025 and the Strategic Plan for the Efficiency of Handling Corruption, Abuse of Official Duty, and Organized Crime Cases 2025–2027, composed of five judges from the Supreme Court of Kosovo, is responsible for monitoring, evaluating, and reporting on the Strategic Plan for Improving Access to Justice 2022–2025. This plan establishes priority case categories, including:
Criminal Cases:
Cases of Domestic Violence:
Judges must ensure that these cases are handled within a short timeframe, ensuring that hearings are scheduled within a set period and held continuously until the case is resolved.
Failure to handle such cases in a timely manner has serious negative consequences within families and for society, leading to irreparable harm.
The number of such cases is continuously increasing, making it essential to address them in a timely and prioritized manner.
Cases Involving Vulnerable Victims:
Judges must ensure these cases are handled within a short timeframe, scheduling hearings within a set period and ensuring continuity until resolution.
This category includes a significant number of victims, as defined in the Criminal Code of the Republic of Kosovo.
There has been a recent rise in crimes against vulnerable individuals, including persons with disabilities, the LGBT community, and journalists.
These cases must be handled promptly and with priority.
Retrials of Juvenile Criminal Cases:
Although no specific legal deadline exists under the Criminal Procedure Code, such cases must be processed no later than 8 days after receiving the ruling from the higher court ordering the retrial.
Hearings should be scheduled continuously until the case is resolved.
According to the Juvenile Justice Code, procedures involving juveniles are urgent and should be conducted in the best interest and well-being of the minor.
One of the key priorities of Kosovo's judicial system is ensuring timely trials, as required by both national legislation and international legal instruments.
Sexual Offenses:
Judges must handle these cases promptly, ensuring that hearings are scheduled within a set timeframe and continue without delays until resolution.
The number of sexual offense cases has increased, particularly against minors, which has severe consequences for their education, personal development, family life, and social integration.
Prioritizing these cases is essential in every court.
Crimes Against Life and Physical Integrity:

Question 26

Albania

(General Comment): In the competence of courts, shall be included the adjudication of requests for due compensation to the person, who has suffered a pecuniary or non-pecuniary damage due to the unreasonable length of a case, as per the definition of Article 6/1 of the European Convention "On Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms".
Provisions define the evaluation of reasonable duration of a process, as well as the due compensation, when unreasonable delays have been determined in investigation procedures, trial of cases, as well as in the procedures of execution of decisions.
Just satisfaction for violation of reasonable time limits shall be deemed the recognition of violation, any measures taken to expedite the proceedings of investigation, trial of the case and execution of the decision, and/or compensation of the damage, according to the provisions of this Chapter.

(2025): The Albanian legislation provides a system of compensation for all the above circumstances.
-Regarding the excessive length of proceedings and non-execution of court decisions:
The procedural legislation provides for the right of the party in a judicial process to be compensated for the damage caused due to the unreasonable length of a procedure according to legal provisions. More specifically, the Code of Civil Procedure, as amended, has provided the rules and procedures for reasonable length of procedures in its articles 399/1-399/12.
Article 399/2 of this Code provides for reasonable deadlines for the investigation, trial or execution of a final decision. In case of exceeding the deadlines provided for in this article, the parties in the process can submit a request, which is adjudicated by the competent court. If a violation is found by the court, the party can file a claim for damage compensation.
-Regarding the wrongful arrest / detention and wrongful conviction:
The Code of Criminal Procedure, as amended, has provided in its Article 268 the right to compensation for the detention suffered by those who have been found innocent by a final court decision, except in cases where it has been proven that the wrongful decision or failure to discover the unknown fact in due time, is caused, wholly or in part, by the person himself. This right is also granted for the convicted person who has been placed in precautionary detention in prison, when it is proven by a final decision that the act by which the precautionary measure was established, has been issued in absence of the requirements provided for by Articles 228 and 229 of this Code. These provisions also apply to cases where the court or prosecutor decided to dismiss the case. Whereas in cases when it is proven by a court decision that the act is not provided under the law as a criminal offence, due to the abrogation of the relative provision, the right of compensation is not recognized for the part of precautionary detention in prison served before the abrogation.
The request for compensation must be submitted within three years of the day in which the judgment of acquittal or dismissal has become final. Whereas the compensation amount, the method for its calculation, and the cases of house arrest compensation, are established by special law.

(2022): The requests for excessive length of proceedings and non-execution of court decisions, have been introduced as a separate request to the court by national law in 2017. According to the Civil Procedural Code the procedure is divided in 2 different phases. The first phase is logged as a simple request to the court and is registered in the CMS system as non-litigious cases either civil or administrative depending on the court. They are registered without a specific identifying code. The second phase is logged as litigious case based on tort legal provisions. We cannot identify these specific cases within the category. We will tackle this issue while creating the new CMS system.
Regarding the requests for wrongful arrest / detention and wrongful conviction, these cases are registered as litigious administrative cases and do not have a specific identifying code in the CMS.

(General Comment): Parties to court proceedings may lodge complaints about the work of courts to various institutions in Bosnia and Herzegovina, as explained in the response below. If those institutions find that the complaints are well founded, they order that irregularities in the work of the court be corrected and in addition, in some cases, award compensation to the complainants. Excessive length of proceedings/Non execution of court decisions: A person whose right to a fair trial is violated by the excessive length of court proceedings or non-execution of the court decisions, can submit an appeal to the Constitutional Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina. Based on Article VI of the Constitution the Constitutional Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina inter alia has appellate jurisdiction over issues under the Constitution arising out of a judgment of any other court in the country. According to Article 16, paragraph 3 of its Rules, the Constitutional Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina may examine, within its appellate jurisdiction, an appeal when there is no decision of a competent court if the appeal indicates a grave violation of the rights and fundamental freedoms safeguarded by the Constitution or by the international documents applied in Bosnia and Herzegovina. The Court admits appeals, based on the aforementioned provision of the Rules, alleging that a court of general jurisdiction has breached both Article II/3.e of the Constitution and Article 6, paragraph 1, of the European Convention on Human Rights by exceeding a reasonable time for determining a court case (i.e. any sort of a court case). If the violation is found, the Constitutional Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina orders the court of general jurisdiction to finalize the case in question without any delay. The Constitutional Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina has no time limit for deciding on appeals.
In a decision granting an appeal, the Constitutional Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina may also award compensation for non-pecuniary damages. If the Constitutional Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina considers that compensation is necessary, it shall award it on equitable basis, taking into account the standards set forth in the case-law of the Constitutional Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina. The compensation is paid from budget of the government financing the court of general jurisdiction found to be responsible for the excessive length of proceedings. In addition, a legislative framework that regulates the protection of the right to a trial within reasonable time, according to which the courts act, has been established recently in Bosnia and Herzegovina. According to this legal framework, the party has two options: to file a motion for procedure expedition to the court processing the case for which expedition is requested or file a complaint with the highest court in respective jurisdictions to determine the violation of the right to a trial within reasonable time, which requires the determination of financial compensation. The court makes a decision on compensation for the lawsuit within the period prescribed by law, however, this legislation in different jurisdictions provides different deadlines for making a court decision at the latest within 30, 90, or 180 days from the date of receipt of the lawsuit.
Wrongful arrest/detention and wrongful conviction: Terms under which person is entitled to compensation of damages for wrongful arrest and wrongful conviction are provided in criminal procedure codes. These terms are provided as follows:
Wrongful arrest - a person is entitled to compensation of damages in the following cases: (i) a person who was in detention, but criminal proceedings were not instituted or proceedings were dismissed or a final verdict was pronounced acquitting the person of charges or charges were rejected; (ii) a person who was subjected to unlawful detention or retained in detention or a correctional institution due to a mistake; (iii) a person who was in detention longer than the sentence to which he was convicted; (iv) a person who served a sentence of imprisonment, and was pronounced a shorter imprisonment sentence in reopened criminal proceedings than the sentence he had served, or was pronounced a criminal sanction other than imprisonment or he was pronounced guilty but freed from sanction; (v) a person who was imprisoned without a legal ground is entitled to compensation of damages if no pretrial detention was ordered against him or the time for which he was imprisoned was not included in the sentence pronounced for a criminal offense or minor offense.
Wrongful conviction - A person against whom an effective criminal sanction was pronounced or who was found guilty and freed from sanction, and later, based on extraordinary remedy, (2025): As in previous years, the Constitutional Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina has continued to deal with certain organizational and political problems preventing it from setting up the judge panels because of the court's vacant posts; this contributed to slight reduction in terms of the number of resolved cases in the reporting year. In the light of the above, the judges of the Constitutional Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina make efforts to resolve priority cases as quickly as possible. As for the claims submitted to other institutions (i.e. ministries of justice at the state and entity level of government) and ordinary courts competent for their resolution, there has been no particular variation in the number of granted claims. Overall, the value of granted compensations by the decisions of the Constitutional Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina, ordinary courts, and the competent ministries of justice and public attorney's offices has decreased to 358,000 € in 2025 from 1,200,000 € in 2024.

In addition to the above-mentioned, the Institution of Human Rights Ombudsman of Bosnia and Herzegovina (the Ombudsman) handles complaints related to malfunctioning of public authorities or to human rights violations committed by any public institution in Bosnia and Herzegovina. In performing its competences, the Ombudsman cannot decide on compensation for determined human rights violations. There is no strict deadline for handling complaints. In cases where violation of rights is established, the Ombudsman issues recommendation to competent public institutions to undertake measures to restore human rights violation or poor functioning of administration. The Institution also provides assistance to citizens how to use the most adequate legal remedies or advises them which institution to address. The Ombudsman received 298 complaints against courts in 2025; the structure of the complaints was as follows: 38 complaints alleging excessive length of proceedings, 35 complaints alleging ineffective enforcement of court decisions, 22 complaints against judges for violation of procedural laws, 8 complaints against the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina and 197 complaints related to the violation of other rights related to court procedure. In 2025 the Ombudsman issued 52 recommendations to the courts. These statistics are not included in the data prepared for Question 26, as the Ombudsman does not have the authority to determine compensation for damages caused to complainants by the work of courts and prosecutors' offices.
The High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina (HJPC) receives complaints against judges and prosecutors, conducts disciplinary proceedings, determines disciplinary liability, and imposes disciplinary measures. The Office of Disciplinary Counsel (ODC) within HJPC performs prosecutorial functions concerning allegations of misconduct against judges and prosecutors.
ODC investigates complaints alleging misconduct of judges and prosecutors, initiates and presents cases of disciplinary violations before the disciplinary panels of the HJPC. The legal deadline for completing disciplinary investigation is two years, given that at the expiration of this deadline complaint reaches the statute of limitations for initiating disciplinary proceedings. However, the vast majority of complaints are resolved well before the expiry of two years period. If disciplinary investigation results in initiation of the disciplinary proceeding, such proceeding must be completed within one year from the date of the filing of a formal complaint before a disciplinary panel, unless upon a showing of a cause that an extension is justified. In these proceedings, complainants are not entitled to compensation if their complaint is found to be sound. The number of complaints ODC received in 2025 was 868. This information is not included in the data prepared for Question 26, as the HJPC does not have the authority to determine compensation for damages caused to complainants by the work of courts and prosecutors' offices.

(2024): The particular circumstances under which the Constitutional Court of BiH operated in 2024 are one of the factors contributing to the higher number of granted claims. As in previous years, the Constitutional Court of BiH has experienced certain organisational problems with regard to its inability to set up the judge panels because of the court's vacant posts, which affects the dynamics of its work. In the light of the above, the Constitutional Court of BiH makes efforts to resolve priority cases as quickly as possible. As a result, the number of resolved claims alleging the violation of the right to a decision within a reasonable time has increased.
As for the claims submitted to other institutions (i.e. ministries of justice at the state and entity level of government) competent for their resolution, there has been no variation in the number of granted claims. What is important to note is that the circumstances in each individual case (the length of pre-trial detention and similar) have contributed to an increase in the amount of compensation for the violation of the party's rights because of unjustified deprivation of liberty.
In addition to the above-mentioned, the Institution of Human Rights Ombudsman of Bosnia and Herzegovina (the Ombudsman) handles complaints related to malfunctioning of public authorities or to human rights violations committed by any public institution in Bosnia and Herzegovina. In performing its competences, the Ombudsman cannot decide on compensation for determined human rights violations. There is no strict deadline for handling complaints. In cases where violation of rights is established, the Ombudsman issues recommendation to competent public institutions to undertake measures to restore human rights violation or poor functioning of administration. The Institution also provides assistance to citizens how to use the most adequate legal remedies or advises them which institution to address. The Ombudsman received 280 complaints against courts in 2024; the structure of the complaints was as follows: 50 complaints alleging excessive length of proceedings, 32 complaints alleging ineffective enforcement of court decisions, 17 complaints against judges for violation of procedural laws, 8 complaints against the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina and 173 complaints related to the violation of other rights related to court procedure. In 2024 the Ombudsman issued 62 recommendations to the courts. These statistics are not included in the data prepared for Question 156, as the Ombudsman does not have the authority to determine compensation for damages caused to complainants by the work of courts and prosecutors' offices.
The High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina (HJPC) receives complaints against judges and prosecutors, conducts disciplinary proceedings, determines disciplinary liability, and imposes disciplinary measures. The Office of Disciplinary Counsel (ODC) within HJPC performs prosecutorial functions concerning allegations of misconduct against judges and prosecutors.

In these proceedings, complainants are not entitled to compensation if their complaint is found to be sound. The number of complaints ODC received in 2024 was 945. This information is not included in the data prepared for Question 156, as the HJPC does not have the authority to determine compensation for damages caused to complainants by the work of courts and prosecutors' offices.

(2023): As the most relevant institution for the Question 156, the Constitutional Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina (the Constitutional Court) reported it resolved fewer requests in 2023 compared to 2022. Namely, during 2023, the Constitutional Court functioned to a reduced extent because the vacant positions in this court could not be filled due to reasons falling within the competence of legislative institutions. In addition, the Constitutional Court stated that the appellate jurisdiction of this institution continues to be influenced by the right of parties in court proceedings to appeal to the court of general jurisdiction for the acceleration of proceedings under relatively new legislation that regulates the protection of the right to a trial within reasonable time, according to which the courts act, has been established in three out of four main different jurisdictions in Bosnia and Herzegovina.
According to this legal framework, the parties to the court proceedings have two options: to file a motion for procedure expedition to the court processing the case for which expedition is requested or file a complaint with the highest court in respective jurisdictions to determine the violation of the right to a trial within reasonable time, which requires the determination of financial compensation. As for the time-limits under this legislative framework, the court proceedings may file a motion for procedure expedition to the court processing the case for which expedition is requested (time limits for the court to decide: 60 days in first instance proceedings; 30 days in second instance proceedings). Furthermore, parties to legal proceedings have the right to seek damages for violation of the right to a trial within a reasonable time (time limit for the relevant courts to decide: no later than six months from the date of receipt of the action).
When it comes to the number of motions to expedite case resolution, a total of 128 motions were filed to the courts in 2023. In 2023, the courts granted 25 and denied/dismissed 49 motions of the parties. In addition, the courts received 19 claims for damages last year. In 9 cases, the courts decided to award compensation to the plaintiffs, while they rejected the lawsuit with a claim for damages in 14 cases.
The Institution of Human Rights Ombudsman of Bosnia and Herzegovina (the Ombudsman) handles complaints related to malfunctioning of public authorities or to human rights violations committed by any public institution in Bosnia and Herzegovina. In performing its competences the Ombudsman cannot decide on compensation for determined human rights violations. There is no strict deadline for handling complaints. In cases where violation of rights is established, the Ombudsman issues recommendation to competent public institutions to undertake measures to restore human rights violation or poor functioning of administration. The Institution also provides assistance to citizens how to use the most adequate legal remedies or advises them which institution to address. The Ombudsman received 367 complaints against courts in 2023; the structure of the complaints was as follows: 62 complaints alleging excessive length of proceedings, 50 complaints alleging ineffective enforcement of court decisions, 23 complaints against judges for violation of procedural laws, 9 complaints against the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina and 223 complaints related to the violation of other rights related to court procedure. In 2023 the Ombudsman issued 51 recommendations to the courts. These statistics are not included in the data prepared for Question 156, as the Ombudsman does not have the authority to determine compensation for damages caused to complainants by the work of courts and prosecutors' offices.

(2022): The Constitutional Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina reported that the influx of cases at the Constitutional Court of BiH varies from year to year. Depending on the influx, other data on cases of the Constitutional Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina also vary. The Constitutional Court of BiH could not give an answer as to what factors influenced that figure. In previous years, the only thing that was evident was that cases involving the length of court procedures and the non-enforcement of court decisions had an effect on the total number of incoming cases. This was not the case in 2022, due to the fact that a certain number of these cases were processed by courts within the new legislative framework that regulates the protection of the right to a trial within reasonable time. According to the Constitutional Court of BiH, most of their cases concern allegations regarding the violation of the right to a fair trial (Article 6 of the European Convention) and the right to property (Article 1 of Protocol No. 1 to the European Convention) as well as cases in which the Constitutional Court of BiH is petitioned to proceed as a court of the fourth instance.
A legislative framework that regulates the protection of the right to a trial within reasonable time, according to which the courts act, has been established in one part of the jurisdiction in Bosnia and Herzegovina. According to this legal framework, the party has two options: to file a motion for procedure expedition to the court processing the case for which expedition is requested or file a complaint with the highest court in respective jurisdictions to determine the violation of the right to a trial within reasonable time, which requires the determination of financial compensation. In other parts of the jurisdiction of BiH, the establishment of this legislative framework is underway. When it comes to the number of motions to expedite case resolution, a total of 154 motions were filed to the courts in 2022. In 2022, the courts granted 39 and denied/dismissed 76 motions of the parties. In addition, the courts received 15 claims for damages last year. In 7 cases, the courts decided to award compensation to the plaintiffs, while they rejected the lawsuit with a claim for damages in 5 cases.
The Institution of Human Rights Ombudsman of Bosnia and Herzegovina (the Ombudsman) handles complaints related to malfunctioning of public authorities or to human rights violations committed by any public institution in Bosnia and Herzegovina. In performing its competences the Ombudsman cannot decide on compensation for determined human rights violations. There is no strict deadline for handling complaints. In cases where violation of rights is established, the Ombudsman issues recommendation to competent public institutions to undertake measures to restore human rights violation or poor functioning of administration. The Institution also provides assistance to citizens how to use the most adequate legal remedies or advises them which institution to address. The Ombudsman received 347 complaints against courts in 2022; the structure of the complaints was as follows: 29 complaints alleging excessive length of proceedings, 22 complaints alleging ineffective enforcement of court decisions, 12 complaints against judges for violation of procedural laws, 2 complaints against the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina and 282 complaints related to the violation of other rights related to court procedure. In 2022 the Ombudsman issued 67 recommendations to the courts. These statistics are not included in the data prepared for Question 156, as the Ombudsman does not have the authority to determine compensation for damages caused to complainants of the work of courts and other institutions.

Montenegro

(2025): Wrongful arrest/detention - Data from the Ministry of Justice. Legal time limit to process the request is 3 months

(2024): Wrongful arrest/detention - data from MoJ which deals with conclusion of agreements for compensation, legal option instead of going to the court with a law suit.

(2023): wrongful detention - data source Ministry of Justice.

(2022): With regard to the length of the proceeding, the Supreme Court of Montenegro had a total of 113 cases in work upon claims for just satisfaction. Based on the adopted claims for compensation of non- pecuniary damage, in 59 cases the Court found a violation of the right to a trial within a reasonable time and awarded the plaintiffs a total of 52 200 EUR. The Law on the protection of the right to a trial within reasonable time prescribes that the compensation is determined in the amount range 300 - 5.000 EUR. The following criteria shall be taken into account when determining the amount of compensation: the complexity of the case in factual and legal terms, conduct of the applicant, conduct of courts and other state bodies, local self-government bodies, public services and other holders of public authority and the interest of the applicant.

(General Comment): 1. In line with the responsibilities for implementation of the standards for the right of trial in a reasonable time frame, according to the European Convention on Human Rights, and the priority to decrease of the number of applications from RM on the basis of article 6, before the ECHR, the Law on courts from 2006 and the Amendments to the Law on courts provide sole jurisdiction to trial on claims for protection of the right to a trial in a reasonable time frame for the Supreme Court of RM. Hence, in April 2009 the Department for Processing of Cases within Reasonable Time was established, in line with the Working Schedule of the Supreme Court of RM. Additionally, Law on enforcement of ECHR decisions and Law for legal representation of RM before ECHR were adopted in order to establish efficient system for enforcement of the ECHR decisions.
2. The Law on Criminal procedure defines the procedure for damage compensation, rehabilitation and for realisation of other rights of persons who are convicted and arrested on unjustified grounds or unlawfully.
The procedure for compensation of damage is acting by the court and the amounts depends from case to case. The amounts are related with the case and the taken actions in that case (days in wrongful arrest, wrongful conviction, lost profit, costs, rate of interest etc.)

(2025): Other- Cases concerning precautionary measures and unjustified conduct of proceedings, combination of detention and imprisonment, deprivation of liberty and conviction and undetermined basis.

(General Comment): The Law on Protection of Right to Trial within a Reasonable Time („Official Gazette RS“, No. 40/15 and 92/23)

Article 3

The legal means that protect the right to a trial within a reasonable time are:

1) objection to speed up the procedure (hereinafter: objection);

2) appeal;

3) request for just satisfaction.

The party does not pay the court fee in proceedings in which the right to a trial within a reasonable time is protected. They are urgent and have priority in decision-making.

Complaint submission and complaint procedure

Article 7.

The party submits an objection to the court conducting the proceedings or the court before which the proceedings are conducted if he believes that the public prosecutor has violated his right.

The attorney of the party who is authorized to undertake all actions in the procedure that is requested to be accelerated does not need particularly many opportunities to submit the contract.

If the attorney of the party is authorized to foresee only individual actions in the procedure, which does not include the submission of legal means for the protection of the right to a trial within a reasonable time, he is obliged to submit a special power of attorney along with the objection.

If it is suspected that one of the legally prescribed reasons for the termination of the power of attorney has occurred, the court will, by means of a reasoned decision against which no personal appeal is allowed, order the attorney to submit a special deadline for the power of attorney to be issued in accordance with the law, with a warning that the objection to the contrary will be rejected as illegal.

The procedure for the objection is led by the president of the court, who decides on the objection. With the annual schedule of work, he can designate one court or several judges to lead the proceedings alongside him and decide on interviews.

An oral hearing is not held, and the law governing non-litigation proceedings is applied accordingly to other issues.

The president of the court is obliged to decide on the objection within two months from the date of receipt of the contract.

Article 14.

The party has the right to appeal if his objection is rejected or if the president of the court does not decide on it within two months from the day of receipt of the objection.

An appeal can also be filed if the objection was accepted, but the chief public prosecutor did not issue a mandatory instruction within eight days from the date of receipt of the court president's decision, then if the court president or the immediately superior public prosecutor did not order the judge or the public prosecutor to take procedural actions that effectively speed up the procedure, or if the judge or public prosecutor has not taken the ordered procedural actions within the deadline set for him.

An appeal can be filed even if the president of the court, in the decision by which he accepted the objection and determined the violation of the right to a trial, did not set a deadline for taking (2025): According to the current Code of Criminal Procedure (“Official Gazette of the Republic of Serbia”, No. 72/2011, 101/2011, 121/2012, 32/2013, 45/2013, 55/2014, 35/2019, 27/2021 – decision of the Constitutional Court and 62/2021 – decision of the Constitutional Court), the categories of wrongful arrest/detention and wrongful conviction are different in terms of defining persons wrongly deprived of liberty and persons wrongly convicted (Articles 584 and 585). However, the Ministry of Justice is not legally obliged to keep separate records for these two categories of persons and is therefore not able to provide data separately. Accordingly, in the table titled “Wrongful arrest/detention”, the data presented would also include the category of wrongful conviction. In addition, it should be noted that the total amount of compensation paid is 575.192,50 euros (67.471.000,00 dinars). When deciding on the submitted claims, the Commission for Compensation of Damage to Persons Unlawfully Deprived of Liberty and Unjustly Convicted of the Ministry of Justice takes into account the facts established by Article 9 of the Rules of Procedure on the Composition and Work of the Commission (“Official Gazette of the Republic of Serbia”, No. 73/2020), such as the time spent in detention, age, family and marital status, previous convictions or the lack thereof, the gravity and nature of the criminal offense charged, and other relevant circumstances for determining the intensity and duration of physical and mental suffering and fear caused by the unlawful deprivation of liberty or unjustified conviction.

Regarding the category “Excessive duration of proceedings”, i.e. violations of the right to a trial within a reasonable time and violations of property rights, the total amount of compensation paid based on the decisions of the Constitutional Court amounts to 19.374.544,17 euros (2.272.665.030,95 dinars).

In the legal system of the Republic of Serbia, there is a clearly established framework for the protection of the right to a trial within a reasonable time, which includes certain competent authorities, protection mechanisms and the possibility of awarding compensation for damages.

First of all, the Law on the Protection of the Right to a Trial within a Reasonable Time provides for a combined protection mechanism. The competent authority for out-of-court settlement is the State Attorney's Office, to which the party submits a proposal for settlement within six months of acquiring the right to just satisfaction. If an agreement is not reached, the competent courts decide on the claim for compensation for damages. The payment itself is made by the courts or public prosecutor's offices whose work led to the violation of rights, and the funds are provided from the budget of the Republic of Serbia. This law explicitly establishes a system of compensation for damages, which includes both non-pecuniary (just satisfaction) and material damage. The amount of compensation for non-pecuniary damage is legally determined in the range of 300 to 3.000 euros in dinar equivalent, with the amount being determined according to criteria such as the complexity of the case, the actions of the authorities and the importance of the case for the party.

In addition, a constitutional complaint is an additional and, in certain situations, an independent protection mechanism. It is decided by the Constitutional Court of the Republic of Serbia, and can be filed after the exhaustion of legal remedies or, in special cases (especially in bankruptcy and enforcement proceedings against entities with a majority state or social capital), without their exhaustion. Within the framework of a constitutional complaint, there is a possibility of seeking compensation for damage, which also establishes a compensation framework at this level. Although the law does not prescribe fixed amounts, practice shows that compensation for non-pecuniary damage ranges approximately from 100 to 3.000 euros, while compensation for material damage is not determined as a lump sum, but depends on the claims already established in the relevant court proceedings.

The amendments of 2023 further specified the jurisdiction, so that for certain bankruptcy and enforcement proceedings, protection is concentrated before the Constitutional Court, while the Ministry of Justice acts on its decisions and pays the awarded amounts. This further strengthens the institutional framework, but essentially retains the dual model of protection – extrajudicial and judicial, i.e. constitutional.

(2024): According to the Law on Protection of Right to Trial within a Reasonable Time („Official Gazette RS“, No. 40/15 and 92/23), in the course of 2024 there were 11,843 objections to the presidents of courts for acceleration of the proceedings. Growing trend of such a high number of lawsuits has been stopped, since in 2021 there were 20,930 of these cases, in 2022 year 14,454, while in 2023 that number was reduced to 8,196 cases, and this trend was continued in 2024 to 3,261 cases. Question 26-1

(General Comment): Other court and Ministry of justice - Requests that include compensation claims:
The Constitutional Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina has appellate jurisdiction over issues under the Constitution arising out of a judgement of any other court in Bosnia and Herzegovina. This includes appeals regarding excessive length of court proceeding, non-enforcement of judicial decisions, and other aspects of the right to a fair trial, as well as other rights protected by the European Convention. In addition, a legislative framework that regulates the protection of the right to a trial within reasonable time, according to which the courts act, has been established recently in several jurisdictions in Bosnia and Herzegovina. According to this legal framework, the party has two options: to file a motion for procedure expedition to the court processing the case for which expedition is requested or file a complaint with the highest court in respective jurisdiction to determine the violation of the right to a trial within reasonable time, which requires the determination of financial compensation. The court must decide within the strict legal deadline. In the remaining jurisdictions in Bosnia and Herzegovina, a legislative procedure is underway for the adoption of a legal framework on the protection of the right to a trial within a reasonable time. Compensation for wrongful arrest/detention and wrongful conviction is awarded in civil court proceedings which are initiated against public authorities by the person entitled to compensation. The filing of a lawsuit is preceded by an attempt to reach a settlement through the ministry of justice at the relevant level of government, which must decide on the compensation request within the strict legal deadline.
The High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina and The Institution of Human Rights Ombudsman of Bosnia and Herzegovina - Requests that do not include compensation claims:
The High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council (HJPC) receives complaints against judges and prosecutors, conducts disciplinary proceedings, determines disciplinary liability, and imposes disciplinary measures. The Office of Disciplinary Counsel (ODC) within HJPC performs prosecutorial functions concerning allegations of misconduct against judges and prosecutors. ODC investigates complaints alleging misconduct of judges and prosecutors, initiates and presents cases of disciplinary violations before the disciplinary panels of the HJPC. The legal deadline for completing disciplinary investigation is two years, given that at the expiration of this deadline complaint reaches the statute of limitations for initiating disciplinary proceedings. However, the vast majority of complaints are resolved well before the expiry of two years period. If disciplinary investigation results in initiation of the disciplinary proceeding, such proceeding must be completed within one year from the date of the filing of a formal complaint before a disciplinary panel, unless upon a showing of a cause that an extension is justified. In these proceedings complainants are not entitled to compensation if their complaint is found to be sound. The Institution of Human Rights Ombudsman of Bosnia and Herzegovina (the Ombudsman) handles complaints related to malfunctioning of public authorities or to human rights violations committed by any public institution in Bosnia and Herzegovina. There is no strict deadline for handling complaints. In cases where violation of rights is established, the Ombudsman issues recommendation to competent public institutions to undertake measures to restore human rights violation or poor functioning of administration. The Institution also provides assistance to citizens how to use the most adequate legal remedies or advises them which institution to address. In performing its competences, the Ombudsman cannot decide on compensation for determined human rights violations.

Montenegro
(General Comment): Before filing a law suit to the court, requests for compensation for wrongful detention or wrongful conviction need to be filed to the Ministry of Justice for settlement. Legal time limit is 3 years from legaly binding court decision. If the Ministry of Justice does not decide on the request in 3 months time or the request is rejected, the person concerned may file a law suit.

Bosnia and Herzegovina

(General Comment): Courts and court branches are established and dissolved by law. The law regulates the organization, jurisdiction and operation of courts.
1.1 First instance courts of general jurisdiction - legal entities: all courts that are included in this category have jurisdiction only over the first instance cases (i.e. criminal cases for which less than 10 years of imprisonment is prescribed, minor offence matters, civil and enforcement matters, commercial matters, non contentious matters etc.).
1.2 Second instance courts of general jurisdiction - legal entities: Only one court from this category has exclusive second instance subject matter jurisdiction. The rest of the courts (i.e. 16 courts) included in this category have prevailing second instance subject matter jurisdiction, namely they decide on appeals against all decisions of the aforementioned first instance courts; in addition, they have first instance jurisdiction in administrative cases and these courts also have mixed competencies in the criminal matters - firstly, they have first instance jurisdiction in criminal cases for which more than 10 years of imprisonment is prescribed; secondly, they decide on appeals against the decisions of first instance courts in criminal cases and minor offence cases. Due to the mixed competencies of the above mentioned group of courts (i.e. 16 courts), they were placed in the category of the first instance courts of general jurisdiction in the previous reporting cycles (i.e. since 2020), together with the courts which have exclusive first instance subject matter jurisdiction. 1.3 Highest instance courts of general jurisdiction - legal entities:
There are 3 courts of general jurisdiction in Bosnia and Herzegovina that are included in the Supreme Court category.
Firstly, at entity level, there are two courts: the Federation of Bosnia and Herzegovina Supreme Court and the Republika Srpska Supreme Court; both courts are competent to decide within the respective entity on legal remedies concerning decisions of the immediately lower courts.
Secondly, the Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina is established at the State level. Its competencies are regulated by the Law on the Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina and are related to criminal, administrative and appellate jurisdiction. However, the Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina has no jurisdiction over the decisions adopted by the entity – level Supreme Courts. Within its criminal jurisdiction, the Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina tries cases pertaining to the specific category of crimes laid down by the laws of Bosnia and Herzegovina, which include war crimes, organized crime, economic crime and corruption cases. The administrative jurisdiction means that the Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina adjudicates cases pertaining to the decisions issued by the State institutions and other organizations in charge of public functions, such as property disputes related to the performance of public functions between the State and the entities, breaches of the election law, etc. Its Appellate Division only decides appeals against the decisions of the Court's first instance divisions. Accordingly, there are three Prosecutor's Offices representing criminal cases before the courts that are included in the Supreme Court category: the Prosecutor's Office before the Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina; the Prosecutor's Office before the Federation of Bosnia and Herzegovina Supreme Court; the Prosecutor's Office before the Republika Srpska Supreme Court.

Kosovo*

(General Comment): The structure and number of courts in Kosovo are defined by Law No. 06/L-054 on Courts, which establishes seven Basic Courts operating across the Republic of Kosovo.
Each Basic Court has several branches, distributed as follows:
Basic Court of Prishtina: Branches in Podujeva, Graçanica, Lipjan, Gllogovc, and Fushë Kosovë.
Basic Court of Gjilan: Branches in Kamenica, Viti, and Novobërdë.
Basic Court of Prizren: Branches in Dragash and Suharekë.

Basic Court of Peja: Branches in Istog, Klinë, Deçan, and Junik.
Basic Court of Ferizaj: Branches in Kaçanik, Hani i Elezit, Shtërpcë, and Shtime.
Kosovo also has a Court of Appeals with jurisdiction covering the entire territory of the Republic and a Supreme Court as the highest judicial authority.
Excluding the Commercial Court (First and Second Instance Chambers), Kosovo has a total of 7 Basic Courts, a Court of Appeals and a Supreme Court across its judicial system. As of 2026, Kosovo has a specialized Administrative Court as well, which serves as a first instance court.

(2025): Note 1:
The Administrative Court is not included in the CEPEJ table, as although it is established by law (Law No. 08/L-291), it was not operational in practice during the reporting year. Relevant information is therefore provided only in the Comments / Narrative section.
Note 2:
Although operating under a single institutional title, the Commercial Court exercises independent jurisdiction at both first- and second-instance levels. For CEPEJ statistical purposes, its first-instance and second-instance chambers are therefore reported separately.
1. Basic Courts
- Seven (7) Basic Courts cover the entire territory of Kosovo.
- Certain municipalities are served through branches (e.g. Fushë Kosovë branch for Obiliq municipality; Junik branch for Junik municipality).
- Branches are not independent legal entities and are therefore not counted separately in CEPEJ tables. Only main court seats are reported.

2. Court of Appeal
- Serves as the second instance for courts of general jurisdiction.
- Exercises jurisdiction over the entire territory of Kosovo.

3. Supreme Court
- Acts as the highest judicial instance for all courts, including courts of general jurisdiction and specialized courts.
- For extraordinary legal remedies (e.g. extraordinary appeals and review of sub-legal acts), the Supreme Court serves as the highest and final instance.
- The Special Chamber operates through first-instance panels and an appellate college for specific categories of cases (e.g. Kosovo Property Agency cases); however, it constitutes an internal chamber of the Supreme Court and is not counted as a separate court for CEPEJ purposes.

4. Commercial Court
- Operates through two judicial levels within the same institutional framework:
  - First instance, functionally equivalent to the Basic Courts.
  - Second instance, functionally equivalent to the Court of Appeal.
- Although institutionally unified, both instances exercise independent jurisdiction at their respective judicial levels.
- For CEPEJ reporting purposes, the first-instance and second-instance chambers of the Commercial Court are therefore counted separately.
- The Supreme Court intervenes only in cases involving extraordinary legal remedies.

5. Administrative Court
- Established by Law No. 08/L-291.

(2024): The court system of the Republic of Kosovo consists of: Basic Courts, the Commercial Court, the Court of Appeals, and the Supreme Court.
The Basic Courts are the first-instance courts in the territory of the Republic of Kosovo, competent to adjudicate all cases at the first instance, except where otherwise provided by law. They are also responsible for providing international legal assistance and deciding on the recognition of foreign court decisions.
There are a total of seven (7) Basic Courts:
The Basic Court of Pristina, headquartered in Pristina, and has branches in Fushë Kosovë, Obiliq, Lipjan, Podujevë, Gllogovc, and Graçanica.
The Basic Court of Gjilan, headquartered in Gjilan, and has branches in Kamenicë, Novobërdë, Ranillug, Partesh, Viti, Kllokot, and Vërboc.
The Basic Court of Prizren, headquartered in Prizren, and has branches in Dragash, Suharekë, and Mamushë.
The Basic Court of Gjakova, headquartered in Gjakova, and has branches in Malishevë, and Rahovec.
The Basic Court of Peja, headquartered in Peja, and has branches in Deçan, Junik, Istog, and Klinë.

The Commercial Court of Kosovo established by Law No. 08/L-015 on the Commercial Court. It is competent to adjudicate disputes as defined by this law, with its headquarters in Pristina and jurisdiction over the entire territory of the Republic of Kosovo. The Commercial Court of Kosovo has the first instance chambers and second instance chambers. The second instance chambers act as court of appeals for commercial matters, therefore in point 1.2. is provided the number two referring to the Court of Appeals and the Second Instance Chambers of the Commercial Court.
The Court of Appeals of Kosovo operates as a second-instance court, with territorial jurisdiction over the entire Republic of Kosovo, and is headquartered in Pristina.
The Supreme Court of Kosovo is the highest judicial authority in Kosovo and has jurisdiction over the entire territory of the Republic of Kosovo.
The Supreme Court also includes the Appeals Panel of the Kosovo Property Agency and the Special Chamber of the Supreme Court, whose judges are part of the Supreme Court.

Question 29

Albania

(2025): As we have explained above in the comment to question 28, in reference of article 3 of law no. 98/ 2016 “On the organization of the judicial power in the Republic of Albania”:
Types of courts
1. Judicial power is exercised by the Supreme Court, as well as by the courts of appeal and the courts of first instance, which are established by law.
2. Courts of general jurisdiction are courts of general jurisdiction of first instance and courts of general jurisdiction of appeal. Courts of general jurisdiction of first instance may have branches.
3. Special courts are:
a) administrative courts of first instance and the Administrative Court of Appeal;
b) the Special Court of First Instance and Appeal for the trial of criminal offences of corruption and organised crime.
4. The Supreme Court adjudicates cases of general and special jurisdiction.
The Civil Procedure Code of the Republic of Albania provides in Title III on special trials. In reference to Article 320 of the Civil Procedure Code, special sections are created within the composition of the courts of first instance for the trial of commercial disputes and bankruptcy proceedings; as well as disputes related to minors and family.
The Criminal Procedure Code of the Republic of Albania, in article 13, point 4, provides that the trial of minors is conducted by the relevant sections established by law. These sections also try adult defendants accused of committing criminal offenses to the detriment of minors.
In line with this, the Juvenile Criminal Justice Code in its article 27 provides on the competence to try juvenile justice cases as follows:
1. A minor in conflict with the law is tried by the juvenile sections, established in the district courts, according to the provisions of the legislation in force on the organization of the judicial power in the Republic of Albania. 2. The sections are also competent for the trial of adult defendants accused of committing criminal offenses against minors as victims. 3. The judge assigned to try the minor in these sections must be specialized and trained in juvenile criminal justice. 4. When a minor has committed a criminal offense together with an adult, he shall be tried in the juvenile sections of the district courts, applying the provisions of this Code, with the exception of the cases provided for in Article 80, paragraph 1, of the Code of Criminal Procedure. 5. A person over the age of 18, but not more than 21 years, who is accused of having committed a criminal offense when he was a minor, shall be tried by the juvenile section. 6. The jurisdiction of the juvenile section of the district courts shall end when the minor reaches the age of 23.
In compliance with the legal obligation as cited above, in all courts that adjudicate cases involving minors, judges have been appointed for the trial of minors who are specialized and trained in juvenile criminal justice.
In reference to the above, from the High Judicial Council, based on articles 147, point 1, and 147/a, point 1, letter “ë” of the Constitution of the Republic of Albania, article 23, point 7 of law no. 98/2016 “On the organization of the judicial power in the Republic of Albania”, as well as articles 61, point 2, letter “ë”, 97, point 1, letter “c” of law no. 115/2016 “On the governing bodies of the justice system”, has adopted decision no. 408, dated 15.07.2025 “On the approval of the rules on the criteria and procedures for the establishment of sections and panels”.

Bosnia and Herzegovina

(General Comment): Specialized courts (legal entities) - Specialized commercial courts:
The judicial authority in Bosnia and Herzegovina is exercised by courts of general jurisdiction. As an exception, in one of the jurisdictions within Bosnia and Herzegovina (i.e., Republika Srpska), independent commercial courts (i.e., legal entities) have been established by law: 6 first-instance commercial courts and one appellate commercial court (i.e., Higher Commercial Court).
The Higher Commercial Court decides on appeals against the decisions of district commercial courts. The Supreme Court of the Republika Srpska is competent to decide on extraordinary legal remedies against final decisions of commercial courts.
District commercial courts of first instance decide: i. in civil and non-litigious disputes relating to rights and obligations arising from legal transactions of goods, services, securities, ownership and other real rights in real estate, as well as rights and obligations arising from securities, in which both parties in the proceedings are legal or natural persons, who in the capacity of independent entrepreneurs and in another capacity carry out commercial or other registered activities as their primary or supplementary occupation,
ii. in disputes arising from the application of the Companies Act or any other regulation concerning the organization and status of companies, the resolution of disputes arising between members of a company among themselves, as well as between the members and the company, concerning the position of members in the company, the management of the company, and the conduct of matters arising from their position in the company, iii. in disputes relating to ships and navigation on inland waters, as well as in disputes to which maritime law applies, except for disputes regarding passenger transport, iv. in disputes relating to airplanes, as well as in disputes to which aviation law applies, except for disputes regarding passenger transport, v. in disputes concerning copyright, related rights, and industrial property rights.
vi. in disputes arising from acts claimed to constitute unfair competition or a monopolistic agreement, vii. in bankruptcy and liquidation proceedings, in accordance with the law, as well as in all disputes arising during and in connection with the implementation of bankruptcy and liquidation proceedings, viii. in matters of registration of legal entities or independent entrepreneurs regulated by the Law on the Registration of Business Entities in the Court Register, ix. regarding the enforcement proceedings based on final and binding enforcement court decisions of commercial courts, x. regarding enforcement proceedings based on authentic documents in which both parties in the proceedings are legal entities or natural persons who, as independent entrepreneurs or in another capacity, perform economic or other registered activities as a primary or supplementary occupation, and on enforcement notarial deeds in which both parties in the proceedings are legal entities,
xi. in disputes arising from foreign investment.
The Higher Commercial Court has jurisdiction to: i. decide on appeals against decisions of district commercial courts, and in the first instance also on other matters determined by law, ii. decide on conflicts of jurisdiction and on the transfer of jurisdiction of district commercial courts, iii. establish legal stances for the uniform application of laws within the jurisdiction of district commercial courts, and iv. perform other tasks determined by law.
Specialized chambers and/or judges:
Courts are established and dissolved by the laws on courts adopted at the relevant levels of government in Bosnia and Herzegovina. The laws on courts regulate the organization, jurisdiction, and operation of courts. According to these laws, the judicial authority in Bosnia and Herzegovina is exercised by courts of general jurisdiction, except for 7 commercial courts which were established by the law on courts in one of the jurisdictions within Bosnia and Herzegovina (i.e., Republika Srpska). Thus, in Bosnia and Herzegovina, the establishment of special specialized

(2025): Administrative Court, as prescribed by the Law on Courts and the Law on Administrative Disputes, decides in an administrative dispute on the legality of an administrative act, as well as on other administrative actions by which the rights, obligations, and legal interests of a natural or legal person are determined or otherwise affected, where this is prescribed by law.
An administrative dispute may also be initiated when a public authority has failed to issue an administrative act, has not decided on a party's appeal, has not undertaken an administrative action, or has not decided on a party's objection (administrative silence).
In addition to the above, the jurisdiction of the Administrative Court is determined by special laws which prescribe the possibility of conducting an administrative dispute.
The Commercial Court, acting as a court of first instance and a special court (cepej methodology), decides on disputes arising from commercial-law relations between commercial entities, as well as on status-related matters, bankruptcy and liquidation proceedings, protection of intellectual property and competition, and disputes related to ships, aircraft, and other matters prescribed by law.
In addition, the Commercial Court conducts bankruptcy and liquidation proceedings, carries out enforcement and security measures in cases prescribed by law, decides in non-contentious proceedings, and recognizes foreign court and arbitral decisions.
It also confirms settlements reached through mediation and provides international legal assistance within the scope of its jurisdiction.

North Macedonia
(2025): In specialised Administrative courts exist different specialised departments for different areas in the framework for the administrative law (for example: denationalization, retirements, urbanism, expropriation, etc.)

Serbia

(2025): Commercial and insolvency - Commercial courts are courts of special jurisdiction that adjudicate disputes between companies, entrepreneurs, and other business entities, as well as disputes arising from the conduct of commercial activities. The Republic of Serbia has 16 commercial courts, each established for the territory of one or more cities or municipalities. Appeals against decisions of commercial courts are decided in the second instance by the Commercial Appellate Court.
Commercial courts in the first instance decide disputes between business entities and disputes arising between business entities and other legal persons engaged in commercial activities. They also adjudicate disputes concerning copyright and related rights, the protection and use of inventions, industrial designs, models, samples, trademarks, geographical indications, topographies of integrated circuits, i.e., semiconductor products, and plant variety breeders' rights. They decide disputes related to enforcement and security measures within proceedings under their jurisdiction.
Commercial courts conduct bankruptcy and reorganization proceedings, order and carry out enforcement based on enforceable and credible documents when related to business entities and entities engaged in commercial activities. They also order and carry out enforcement and security of their own decisions, decide on the recognition and enforcement of foreign court and arbitral decisions rendered in commercial disputes, and conduct non-contentious proceedings arising from the application of the Law on Companies.Finally, they also adjudicate commercial offenses.
Labour – In basic courts, labour disputes are handled within civil departments. Judges often specialize in this field, but there are no formal chambers dedicated to labour disputes. Higher courts decide on appeals against decisions of basic courts in labour disputes, also within civil departments that deal with labour cases. Judges in higher courts who handle labour disputes have experience and specialization. In the Appellate Court in Belgrade, there are five specialized chambers for labour disputes within the civil department of the Appellate Court.
Family- Within the basic and higher courts, specialized departments for family disputes are established. Judges assigned to these departments are duly specialized, having completed the required training and obtained certification attesting to their specific expertise in the field of children's rights. Within the same departments, proceedings in cases of domestic violence are conducted. Judges assigned to these cases are specialized in issuing urgent protective measures.
Enforcement of criminal sanctions - At each Higher Court, in accordance with the Law on the Enforcement of Criminal Sanctions ("Official Gazette of RS", No. 55/14,35/19) a judge for the enforcement of criminal sanctions is appointed. In cases within their jurisdiction, the enforcement judge acts as a single judge.
Administrative - Administrative Court is a court of special jurisdiction that adjudicates disputes initiated against state administration bodies and local self-government authorities, as well as against public enterprises and agencies, for the purpose of determining the legality of acts by which, in administrative proceedings, a right, obligation, or interest has been decided. An administrative dispute is initiated against final administrative acts. These are acts adopted in the second instance (upon an appeal submitted to an administrative body) or in the first instance, when an appeal is not permitted. Under certain conditions, an administrative dispute may also be initiated when the competent authority fails to adopt an administrative act ("administrative silence"). The Administrative Court is a court of republican rank, and therefore has both subject-matter and territorial jurisdiction over all administrative disputes throughout the territory of the Republic of Serbia.
Juvenile – In higher and appellate courts, specialized departments for criminal proceedings involving juveniles are established. In the first instance, proceedings against a juvenile are conducted before a juvenile judge and a juvenile chamber of the higher court. The juvenile judge and the judges of the juvenile chamber must be persons who have acquired special knowledge

Q101 (General Comment): The procedure of recruitment and selection of judges is conducted by the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina in accordance with the Law on the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina, the Rules of Procedure of the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina and the Book of Rules on Entrance Exams and Written Tests for Candidates for Judicial Office in the Judiciary of Bosnia and Herzegovina. A public announcement of vacant positions in any court (regardless of the level) precedes the appointment of judges, including court presidents. The Law on the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina in general does not distinguish the recruitment of new judges from the promotion or transfer of judges to a different position in judiciary. Thus a public vacancy is applicable to both internal candidates (candidates who hold judicial office) and external candidates, who compete each other for the vacant position. However, certain aspects of selection procedure are different for internal or external candidates. Selection procedure may include entrance exams and written tests, depending on the status of the candidate. Entrance exams and written tests shall be carried out mainly for candidates who do not hold judicial office and who have applied for positions of judges on any level. Results of the aforementioned tests are relevant for the establishing the competences of the external candidates. Competences of the candidates who are already judges or prosecutors are established based on the performance evaluation. All candidates have to be interviewed by the interview panel, which assesses the criteria regulated in the aforementioned Rules of Procedure. Candidates are ranked based on their success in the selection procedure. The points received according to the competence criterion (results of entrance exam/written test or performance evaluation) are added to the points received at the interview and candidates are ranked according to the total points scored. The High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina appoints judges from the list of successful candidates upon proposal of relevant nomination subcouncil (internal body within the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina). The decision on the appointment has to be reasoned.

Q106 (General Comment): Through the check of disciplinary proceedings and sanctions:
In the competition procedure for the post of a judge or a prosecutor information is checked whether disciplinary proceedings are being conducted against the candidate, whether a final disciplinary measure has been imposed to the candidate, meaning whether the candidate has been convicted. The said information impact the decision whether the candidate will be invited to an interview, meaning whether or not they will further participate in the competition procedure. If a disciplinary measure is imposed to the candidate in a certain time period, depending on the measure, they cannot participate in the competition procedure. Through an integrity assessment test:
The candidate's ability to responsibly, independently and impartially hold the office they applied for, professional impartiality and reputation and conduct outside the job is one of the criteria examined in the interview with the candidate by asking suitable questions.
During the appointment procedure consideration shall also be given to circumstances relevant for the evaluation of candidate suitability, such as information concerning any previous disciplinary offences, previous criminal convictions and other circumstances that may deem a candidate unsuitable to hold judicial office.

A judge can resign from office. A judge can be removed from the office because it has been proven by the medical documentation that she or he has permanently lost the working capacity to perform his/her judicial function.

The Law on the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina in general does not distinguish the recruitment of new prosecutors from the promotion or transfer of prosecutors to different positions within the judiciary. Thus a public vacancy is applicable to both internal candidates (candidates who hold judicial office) and external candidates, who compete each other for the vacant position. However, certain aspects of selection procedure are different for internal or external candidates. Selection procedure may include entrance exams and written tests, depending on the status of the candidate. Entrance exams and written tests shall be carried out mainly for candidates who do not hold judicial office and who have applied for positions of prosecutors on any level. Written tests shall be carried out mainly for candidates who do not hold judicial office and who have applied for positions in highest prosecutors' offices, and who have previously passed the entrance exam. Results of the aforementioned tests are relevant for the establishing the competences of the external candidates. Competences of the candidates who are already prosecutors are established based on the performance evaluation.

All candidates have to be interviewed by the interview panel, which assesses the criteria regulated in the aforementioned Rules of Procedure. Candidates are ranked based on their success in the selection procedure. The points received according to the competence criterion (results of entrance exam/written test or performance evaluation) are added to the points received at the interview and candidates are ranked according to the total points scored. The High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina appoints prosecutors from the list of successful candidates upon proposal of the relevant nomination sub-council (an internal committee within the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina). The decision on the appointment has to be reasoned.

Q124 (2023): The decision on appointment made by the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina is the final administrative act pursuant to the Law on Amendments to the Law on the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina ("Official Gazette of BiH", No. 63/23), which entered into force in December 2023, and an administrative dispute may be initiated against the decision by the candidate in the appointment procedure. The Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina has jurisdiction to resolve these administrative disputes. In the event of an administrative dispute, the appointment of the newly appointed judge or prosecutor shall be postponed for that position until the court proceedings have been completed.

Q125 (General Comment): Through the check of disciplinary proceedings and sanctions:
In the competition procedure for the post of a judge or a prosecutor information is checked whether disciplinary proceedings are being conducted against the candidate, whether a final disciplinary measure has been imposed to the candidate, meaning whether the candidate has been convicted. The said information impact the decision whether the candidate will be invited to an interview, meaning whether or not they will further participate in the competition procedure. If a disciplinary measure is imposed to the candidate in a certain time period, depending on the measure, they cannot participate in the competition procedure. Through an integrity assessment test:
The candidate's ability to responsibly, independently and impartially hold the office they applied for, professional impartiality and reputation and conduct outside the job is one of the criteria examined in the interview with the candidate by asking suitable questions.
During the appointment procedure consideration shall also be given to circumstances relevant for the evaluation of candidate suitability, such as information concerning any previous disciplinary offences, previous criminal convictions and other circumstances that may deem a candidate unsuitable to hold judicial office.
The candidate in the application form must reply to the following question: Have you been convicted of a felony or been found responsible for a misdemeanor offense or been found responsible for disciplinary offense?
Also, the candidate is required to submit as an attachment to the application form an official court document confirming that there is no pending criminal proceedings against him or her. Candidate's criminal record does not constitute an eliminatory criterion in the process of appointment of candidates. But in this regard, the Interview panel and the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina, through the appointment procedure determine the ability of the candidate with criminal record to perform the judicial function.

Q125 (2022): The integrity of candidate prosecutors is checked at the interview conducted with candidates and through the information which candidates submit in the application form.

However, certain aspects of selection procedure are different for internal or external candidates. Selection procedure may include entrance exams and written tests, depending on the status of the candidate. Entrance exams and written tests shall be carried out mainly for candidates who do not hold judicial office and who have applied for positions of judges on any level. Results of the aforementioned tests are relevant for the establishing the competences of the external candidates. Competences of the candidates who are already judges or prosecutors are established based on the performance evaluation. All candidates have to be interviewed by the interview panel, which assesses the criteria regulated in the aforementioned Rules of Procedure. Candidates are ranked based on their success in the selection procedure. The points received according to the competence criterion (results of entrance exam/written test or performance evaluation) are added to the points received at the interview and candidates are ranked according to the total points scored. The High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina appoints judges from the list of successful candidates upon proposal of relevant nomination subcouncil (internal body within the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina). The second control is made with the psychological and mental health assessment, which is part of the recruitment exam. This assessment is also focused in the approach of the candidates to corruption, ethics, etc. And the third control is made by the Councils, after the applicants have successfully passed the two phases and the psychological and mental health assessment. The Councils shall request for each applicant, information from competent institutions for the verification of assets and background check regarding any other disqualifying grounds from the High Inspectorate for the Declaration and Audit of Assets and Conflict of Interest, prosecution office, financial, tax and customs authorities, National Bureau of Investigation, state intelligence institutions and any disciplinary authorities having supervised the discipline in the labour relations of the candidate.

Question 113

Bosnia and Herzegovina

(General Comment): The procedure of recruitment and selection of prosecutors is conducted by the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina in accordance with the Law on the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina, the Rules of Procedure of the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina and the Book of Rules on Entrance Exams and Written Tests for Candidates for Judicial Office in the Judiciary of Bosnia and Herzegovina. A public announcement of vacant positions in any prosecutor's office (regardless of the level) precedes the appointment of prosecutors, including chief prosecutors. The Law on the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina in general does not distinguish the recruitment of new prosecutors from the promotion or transfer of prosecutors to different positions within the judiciary. Thus a public vacancy is applicable to both internal candidates (candidates who hold judicial office) and external candidates, who compete each other for the vacant position. However, certain aspects of selection procedure are different for internal or external candidates. Selection procedure may include entrance exams and written tests, depending on the status of the candidate. Entrance exams and written tests shall be carried out mainly for candidates who do not hold judicial office and who have applied for positions of prosecutors on any level. Written tests shall be carried out mainly for candidates who do not hold judicial office and who have applied for positions in highest prosecutors' offices, and who have previously passed the entrance exam. Results of the aforementioned tests are relevant for the establishing the competences of the external candidates. Competences of the candidates who are already prosecutors are established based on the performance evaluation.

All candidates have to be interviewed by the interview panel, which assesses the criteria regulated in the aforementioned Rules of Procedure. Candidates are ranked based on their success in the selection procedure. The points received according to the competence criterion (results of entrance exam/written test or performance evaluation) are added to the points received at the interview and candidates are ranked according to the total points scored. The High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina appoints prosecutors from the list of successful candidates upon proposal of the relevant nomination sub-council (an internal committee within the High Judicial and Prosecutorial Council of Bosnia and Herzegovina). The decision on the appointment has to be reasoned.
