Background

The state of rule of law is an increasing concern in respect of many European countries. In recent years concerted efforts have been made at European level to prevent degradation of the rule of law through measures aimed at the well-functioning of national justice systems.

In the Council of Europe (CoE) Plan of Action on Strengthening Judicial Independence and Impartiality it is stated that “Only an independent and impartial judiciary can provide the basis for the fair and just resolution of legal disputes, particularly those between the individual and the State. In this context, it is recalled that all member States have undertaken, under Article 6 of the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms, to guarantee access to independent and impartial tribunals, whenever civil rights or obligations are in issue or criminal charges are to be determined; and in respect of which the European Court of Human Rights has developed a wide jurisprudence. (...) It is of primordial importance that judicial independence and impartiality exists in fact and is secured by law, and that public confidence in the judiciary, where it has been lost, is restored and maintained.”

Among other measures, the Plan of Action requires States to ensure comprehensive and effective training of the judiciary in effective judicial competences and ethics.

At European Union (EU) level, the 2020 Rule of Law report stated that “Effective justice systems are essential for upholding the rule of law. Independence, quality and efficiency are the defined parameters of an effective justice system, whatever the model of the national legal system and tradition in which it is anchored. (...) The independence of national courts is fundamental to ensuring such judicial protection. (...) Despite reform efforts in a number of Member States to enhance judicial independence, developments raise concerns in a few of them.”

Judges, prosecutors, and lawyers occupy a critical and sensitive place in society; the way they conduct themselves directly impacts on public confidence and on the administration of justice. Therefore, they have a duty to maintain the highest of ethical behavior.

There are international standards providing guidance on ethical conduct and on the core principles of these professions. Independence, impartiality and integrity underpin the rule of law in a healthy democracy and guarantee the protection of human rights.

About the course

To address these issues, the HELP course on “Ethics for Judges, Prosecutors and Lawyers” covers in an interactive way the key concepts and principles, the International and European (CoE and EU) framework as well as the relevant case law of the European Court of Human Rights (ECtHR) and of the Court of Justice of the European Union (CJEU). It is aimed at deepening the knowledge and understanding of professional tools and at developing reflective skills, based on practical examples, to address ethical dilemmas in the performance of professional duties.

The HELP online course includes the main international standards for each profession (such as the Bangalore Principles), as well as, at CoE level, the standards and guidelines referenced in the European Commission for the Efficiency of Justice (CEPEJ) materials, the Venice Commission relevant opinions and Rule of Law Checklist, the opinions issued by the Consultative Council of European Judges (CCJE) and the Consultative Council of European Prosecutors (CCPE), as well as the relevant case law of the ECtHR. At EU level, it includes the relevant EU framework, including Article 47 of the EU Charter of Fundamental Rights and the case-law of the CJEU, as well as references to the EU initiatives to strengthen the rule of law, such as the Rule of Law reports and the specific Rule of Law Mechanism.

This course is thought to help professionals understand the purpose and importance of ethics in the administration of justice for the benefit of the people, allowing to identify key concepts and understand common values, ethical principles and virtues.

The online course has been developed in 2020-21 by the Council of Europe HELP Programme under the EU-CoE “HELP in the EU II” project, in cooperation with several Council of Europe entities/services such as the Secretariats of the Venice Commission, the European Commission for the Efficiency of Justice (CEPEJ) and the Consultative Councils of European Judges and Prosecutors (CCJE and CCPE) as well as the Registry of the European Court of Human Rights. It also involved representatives of the European Judicial Training Network (EJTN) and the Council of Bars and Law Societies in Europe (CCBE).

Target audience

This free on-line course is primarily addressed to legal professionals: judges, prosecutors, and lawyers.

For a better understanding of the aspects related to the importance of judicial independence and impartiality, the course can also be useful to senior court staff, as well as members and staff of the executive and legislative powers.

How to access the HELP online course

The course is freely available in self-learning format on the CoE HELP e-learning platform. The overall length of the online course is approximatively nine hours and those who complete it in self-learning format can obtain an electronic 'Statement of accomplishment'.
