Many governments around the world have undertaken legal reforms, often using the Budapest Convention on Cybercrime as a guideline. However, cybercrime legislation also needs to meet human rights and rule of law requirements to prevent misuse. The aim of this workshop is to review progress made worldwide in terms of cybercrime legislation and to identify possible risks and challenges. Moderator/s: Zahid Jamil, Barrister-at-law, Jamil & Jamil, Pakistan Rapporteur : Fernanda Teixeira Domingos, Prosecutor’s Office, Brazil Secretariat: Giorgi Jokhadze / Tatiana Bastrighin ▶ Introduction and objective of the workshop [5 min] <ul style="list-style-type: none"> – Moderator’s notes – Secretariat ▶ From 2013 to 2023: Ten years of progress in legislation on cybercrime and electronic evidence [10 min] <ul style="list-style-type: none"> – Results of a survey by the Cybercrime Programme Office of the Council of Europe (C-PROC) - Giorgi Jokhadze, Programme Manager, C-PROC ▶ Examples of recent reforms [30 min] <ul style="list-style-type: none"> – Jamila Akaaga Ade, Nigeria – Germán Ortega, Ecuador – Glenys E. 14h30-16h00

Workshop 2 - Spontaneous information sharing

Languages: EN/FR/ES/RO

Purpose: Criminal justice authorities often possess valuable information that they believe may assist the authorities of another country in a criminal investigation but of which these other authorities are not aware of. Parties to the Budapest Convention may share this type of information through Article 26 on "spontaneous information":

"A Party may, within the limits of its domestic law and without prior request, forward to another Party information obtained within the framework of its own investigations when it considers that the disclosure of such information might assist the receiving Party in initiating or carrying out investigations or proceedings concerning criminal offences established in accordance with this Convention or might lead to a request for co-operation by that Party under this chapter...."

The relevance of Article 26 has been increasing over time, including within the context of cases related to the dark web or to the sharing of data retrieved from encrypted communications.

The aim of the workshop is to identify current practices of using Article 26 of the Convention on Cybercrime.

Moderators: Jan Kerkhofs, Federal Magistrate, Head of the Cyber Unit, Belgian Federal Prosecutor's Office
Antonio Segovia Arancibia, Transnational criminal law professor, UAI University, Chile

Rapporteurs: Jorge Espina, Chair of the Cybercrime Team, Deputy National Member of Spain, Eurojust
Catalina Stroe, Programme Manager, Cybercrime Programme Office of the Council of Europe

Secretariat: GLACY+ team

14h30-16h00	Workshop 3 – Automatic detection of child sexual exploitation and abuse materials Languages: EN/FR/ES Purpose: Over the past decade multi-national service providers deployed technology for the automated detection of child sexual abuse materials (CSAM) that was uploaded or disseminated via their services. Tens of millions of CSAM have been identified and reported in this way, and in many cases have helped rescue victims and identify and prosecute offenders worldwide. At the same time, the use of such techniques have raised rule of law and human rights concerns, for example, that they interfere with the privacy of communications or involve the transborder transfer of personal data or violate due process requirements. The aim of the workshop is to continue the search for solutions that permit governments to meet their positive obligation to protect children against online sexual violence and enable service providers to use automated technologies to identify and report CSAM with the necessary privacy, data protection and rule of law safeguards. Moderator: Maria José Castello-Branco, Chairperson, Lanzarote Committee Bureau Rapporteur: Ana Elefterescu, Council of Europe Programme Office on Cybercrime Secretariat: Naomi Trewinnard, Legal Advisor, Lanzarote Committee Secretariat Nina Lichtner, Programme Manager, Octopus Project, Council of Europe ▶ Introduction and objective of the workshop [5 min] <ul style="list-style-type: none"> – Reflection & progress post Octopus Conference 2021 workshop ▶ Advancements in automated detection & report optimization <ul style="list-style-type: none"> – Christophe Boissier, INTERPOL [online] – Susanna Pettersson, ECPAT Sweden – Philip Attwood, Director of Impact, Child Rescue Coalition [online] ▶ Enhancing obligations & overcoming challenges <ul style="list-style-type: none"> – Discussion with the audience

[13 Dec, 16h30-18h00]	Workshop 4 - Synergies between Budapest, Lanzarote, Istanbul and Trafficking Conventions for safer cyberspace (livestream) Languages: EN/FR/ES/RO Purpose: The standards of the Conventions maintained by the Council of Europe in the areas of cybercrime, protection of children against sexual abuse, trafficking in human beings and violence against women are not simply complementary, but meant to encourage work between criminal justice authorities, protection officers and policy makers to ensure better criminal justice and related action in these areas. Substantive law offences, use of procedural tools for investigation and preventive/protective work with victims and witnesses are just examples where harmonisation would be key, while concepts such as action on cyberviolence could serve to indicate where and how such synergies should work. The aim of this workshop is to further enhance synergies between four different – but interconnected – Conventions: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Convention on Cybercrime (ETS No. 185) - Council of Europe Convention on the Protection of Children against Sexual Exploitation and Sexual Abuse (CETS No. 201) - Council of Europe Convention on preventing and combating violence against women and domestic violence (CETS No. 210) - Council of Europe Convention on Action against Trafficking in Human Beings (CETS No. 197) Moderator: Miriam Bahamonde Blanco, Ministry of Justice, Spain Rapporteur: Ovidiu Majina, Children’s Division, Council of Europe Secretariat: Giorgi Jokhadze / Ana Vlad <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▶ Introduction and objective of the workshop [5 min] <ul style="list-style-type: none"> – Moderator’s notes – Secretariat ▶ Criminal justice action: need to address the gaps before pursuing the synergies [40 min] Interventions from: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> – Council of Europe Study on substantive law aspects of the three Conventions: Budapest, Istanbul, Lanzarote (Betty Shave, T-CY consultant) – US perspective: making standards work together (Nate Brooks, ICHIP Zagreb, USDOJ) Committee views:

[13 Dec, 16h30-18h00]	Workshop 6 - Generative artificial intelligence: threats and benefits in criminal justice Languages: EN/FR/ES Purpose: Artificial Intelligence (AI) in the criminal justice sector can both represent a serious threat, and enhance the fight against cybercrime. Generative AI may provide effective ways to detect crime or provide investigative assistance by analysing vast amount of data but may also be misused for criminal purposes. Falsified data (such as deep fakes) can even be presented as evidence in court. The aim of this workshop is to examine (a) the criminal threats that generative AI may pose for the criminal justice sector, (b) its role in countering cybercrime, and (c) the key issues that need to be taken into account in assessing electronic evidence generated by AI. Moderator/s: Patrick Penninckx, Head of Information Society Department, Council of Europe Rapporteur: Hon. 9h30-11h00	Workshop 7 - Regional workshop for Asia: Data protection as a facilitator for investigating and adjudicating cybercrime and electronic evidence-based cases Languages: EN Purpose: With the growing reliance on information-driven technology and the exponential growth in the amount of data created and exchanged every day by users and organizations, the right of personal data protection faces major

	challenges. This is also true for criminal justice authorities who need to reconcile effective measures to obtain, access, process, and/ or share personal data in support of criminal investigations and court proceedings with personal data protection rules. Where these requirements are met, they facilitate the sharing of personal data also across borders, with service providers and other private sector entities. This is why Article 14 on the protection of personal data was included in the Second Protocol to the Budapest Convention. The aim of this workshop is to share experiences and discuss challenges across Asia with respect to data protection and relevant legal frameworks in order to develop more effective criminal justice responses to cybercrime. Moderator/s: Peter Kimpian, Programme Manager, Data Protection Unit of the Council of Europe Rapporteur: Keongmin Yoon, Counsel, World Bank Secretariat: GLACY+ project <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▶ Introduction and objective of the workshop [5 min] <ul style="list-style-type: none"> – Peter Kimpian, Programme Manager, Data Protection Unit of the Council of Europe ▶ Data protection safeguards in the Second Additional Protocol – why we needed them? 9h30-11h00	Workshop 8 – Regional workshop for Pacific: Challenges in implementing cybercrime laws in small jurisdictions Languages: EN

	Purpose: Robust legal frameworks on cybercrime and electronic evidence are the cornerstone for successful investigations and criminal proceedings. International standards, such as the Budapest Convention, provide a framework for consistent definitions and criminalisation, standardised procedural powers and mechanisms for international cooperation. The absence of transposing such measures into national laws undermines a country’s ability to investigate, prosecute and adjudicate cases involving electronic evidence and to engage in the global efforts to effectively respond to the emerging challenges presented by cybercrime. Small jurisdictions, such as the Pacific Island States, may encounter additional challenges to adopting and adapting appropriate laws, considering their specific legal, administrative, and technical contexts. The workshop is aimed at mapping those challenges and possible solutions based on successful practices in the region. Moderator: Linda Folaumoetu’i, Attorney General of Tonga and Chair of the PILON Cybercrime Working Group Rapporteur: Jamie Crawford, Senior Crown Counsel, Crown Law Office of the Cook Islands, in representation of PILON Secretariat: GLACY+ project <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▶ Introduction and objective of the workshop [10 min] <ul style="list-style-type: none"> – Linda Folaumoetu’i, Attorney General of Tonga and Chair of the PILON Cybercrime Working Group ▶ What makes for an effective cybercrime legal framework, adapted to the needs of Pacific Island States and what challenges do they meet when working on their legislative reform? Purpose: While electronic evidence is of increasing significance to criminal investigations and proceedings also in Africa, procedures to obtain such evidence from other jurisdictions are often lengthy and not effective. The Second Protocol to the Budapest Convention (opened for signature in 2022) provides tools for enhanced co-operation and disclosure of electronic evidence – such as direct cooperation with service providers and registrars, effective means to obtain subscriber information and traffic data, immediate co-operation in emergencies or joint investigations, whilst ensuring a strong system of human rights and rule of law safeguards, especially when it comes to protecting personal data. Almost a quarter of African countries are either Parties or have been invited to accede to the Budapest Convention. Making use of the tools of the Second Protocol is thus an option for Africa. Cabo Verde, Ghana, Mauritius and Morocco are among the signatories so far. The workshop is aimed at showcasing the relevance and expediency of the tools for cooperation provided for in the Protocol, as well as at discussing possible challenges to their implementation in the African region.

Workshop 10 - Regional workshop for Latin America and the Caribbean: Inter-agency cooperation on digital forensics

Languages: EN/ES/RO

Purpose: Many countries in LAC have undertaken efforts in recent years to establish specialized cybercrime units at the level of police and prosecutorial services, as well as units responsible for digital forensics. However, the organizational setup and functions of such units keep evolving and are not always based on international good practices. Furthermore, interagency cooperation between specialized cybercrime units and other services to ensure that electronic evidence is admissible in courts, remains a challenge.

The workshop is aimed at identifying good practices of setting up forensic units in police or prosecutors' office, how to ensure inter-agency co-operation and how to avoid conflicting competencies in the area of digital forensics.

Moderator/s: Fabio Bruno, Assistant Director, pro tempore, Applied Innovation, INTERPOL

Rapporteur: Michael Stawasz, Deputy Chief of Computer Crime, US Department of Justice

Secretariat: GLACY+ team, INTERPOL

Workshop 11 – Capacity building as a game changer: what makes a difference? (livestream)

Languages: EN/FR/ES/RO

Purpose: The aim of the workshop is to jointly identify examples of capacity building efforts that made a difference in terms of introducing sustainable changes in criminal justice systems and increased effectiveness in the fight against cybercrime. Over the past decade, governments, international organizations, private sector as well as civil society organizations have been implementing

	numerous projects to address cybercrime at national, regional and international level. Some actions were more successful than others. 11h30-13h00	Workshop 12 – Online xenophobia and racism v. freedom of expression Languages: EN/FR/ES/RO

	Purpose: With online hate speech – including racism and xenophobia – on the rise, societies are struggling with an effective response that also respects the fundamental right of the freedom of expression. A broad range of measures may be taken to address hate speech online (see the Council of Europe Recommendation on Hate Speech adopted in 2022). In this spectrum of measures, criminal law is an important last resort. In 2003, the first Protocol to the Convention on Cybercrime was opened for signature, addressing the “criminalisation of acts of a racist and xenophobic nature committed through computer systems” (ETS No. 189). In connection with the twentieth anniversary of this Protocol, a good practice study was undertaken on the experience of this treaty. The workshop aims to present findings of this study, to provide further guidance and to discuss challenges in addressing xenophobia and racism committed online while respecting the right to freedom of expression. Moderator: Jamila Akaaga Ade, Assistant Director Head, Cyber Crime Unit Department of Public Prosecutions Federal Ministry of Justice, Nigeria Rapporteur: Marko Juric, Associate Professor, Law Department, University of Zagreb, Croatia Secretariat: Octopus Project and T-CY Secretariat ► Introduction and objective of the workshop <ul style="list-style-type: none"> – Jamila Akaaga Ade, Assistant Director Head, Cyber Crime Unit Department of Public Prosecutions Federal Ministry of Justice, Nigeria ► Findings of the Good Practice Study <ul style="list-style-type: none"> – Jan Kralik, Cybercrime Division, Council of Europe ► Challenges Facing in Addressing Xenophobia and Racism online <ul style="list-style-type: none"> – Fernanda Teixeira Souza Domingos, Federal Circuit Prosecutor in Brasilia, Coordinator of the Advisory Group on Cybercrime at the Federal Prosecution Service, Brazil – Antonio Piña, Magistrate, General Council of the Judiciary, Spain ► Determining boundaries between hate speech and freedom of expression <ul style="list-style-type: none"> – Steven Gatembu Kairu, Judge of Appeal, Court of Appeal.
