Why?

to teach sexuality education at schools

Because it is important for children and adolescents. Let's look at the results of the survey filled out by the participants about how important sexuality education is for them:

Why?

“ Sexuality will happen to everyone, it will be experienced by everyone in their life. ”

“Children learn everything else at school, while they go through lots of biological changes... This kind of knowledge helps them not be scared.”

At the consultation, we talked about how useful was what we had learnt at school so far...

This year I'm in secondary school, and I just started talking about it a little. Before, I didn't know where babies came from or even about menstruation.

It would be helpful if within this project a small guide on how to act and cope with sexual abuse would be developed, for example whom to address in these situations, especially if you don't have family or a community around you. It should help the victims to talk more openly about abuse and whom they can turn to.

Opt out or not?

“We were divided on this, because parents know their children and always look out for them. So in some cases, it is okay if they opt out of some information, as parents would know what is the right information to share at the right time. ”

“Even if I don't agree with certain topics, I should learn about them. More education can help make the world a safer place. ”
