66 European Convention on the Protection of the Archaeological Heritage

Summary

Open for signature by the member States of the Council of Europe, in London, on 6 May 1969.

Entry into force: 20 November 1970.

Summary of the treaty

The Convention applies to all remains and objects, or any other traces of human existence, which bear witness to epochs and civilisations for which excavations and discoveries are the main source, or one of the main sources, of scientific information.

The Parties accept to delimit and protect sites and areas of archaeological interest and to create reserve zones for the preservation of material evidence to be excavated later. The Parties undertake, as far as possible, to prohibit and restrain illicit excavations, to take the necessary measures to ensure that excavations are authorised and entrusted only to qualified persons, as well as to control and protect the results obtained. Moreover, the Parties accept to take measures to ensure scientific publication concerning excavation and discoveries, to facilitate the circulation of archaeological objects for scientific, cultural, and educational purposes and to endeavour to raise public awareness of the historical and cultural value of the archaeological heritage and the necessity to preserve it.

The Convention emphasises the principle of international co-operation, namely in the field of international circulation of archaeological objects (i.e. State control concerning acquisition policy by museums).

143 European Convention on the Protection of the Archaeological Heritage (Revised)

Summary

Open for signature by the member States of the Council of Europe and the other States party to the European Cultural Convention, in Valetta, on 16 January 1992.

Entry into force: 25 May 1995.

Summary of the treaty

This revised Convention updates the provisions of a previous Convention (ETS No. 66) adopted by the Council of Europe in 1969.

The new text makes the conservation and enhancement of the archaeological heritage one of the goals of urban and regional planning policies. It is concerned in particular with arrangements to be made for co-operation among archeologists and town and regional planners in order to ensure optimum conservation of archaeological heritage.

The Convention sets guidelines for the funding of excavation and research work and publication of research findings. It also deals with public access, in particular to archaeological sites, and educational actions to be undertaken to develop public awareness of the value of the archaeological heritage.

Finally, the Convention constitutes an institutional framework for pan-European co-operation on the archaeological heritage, entailing a systematic exchange of experience and experts among the various States. The Committee responsible for monitoring the application of the Convention assumes the role of strengthening and co-ordinating archaeological heritage policies in Europe.

147 European Convention on Cinematographic Co-Production

Summary

Open for signature by the member States of the Council of Europe and the other States party to the European Cultural Convention, in Strasbourg, on 2 October 1992.

Entry into force: 1 April 1994.

Summary of the treaty

The aims of this Convention are to promote the development of European multilateral cinematographic co-production, to safeguard creation and freedom of expression and defend the cultural diversity of the various European countries.

In order to obtain co-production status, the work must involve at least three co-producers, established in three different Parties to the Convention. The participation of one or more co-producers who are not established in such Parties is possible, provided that their total contribution does not exceed 30% of the total cost of the production. The co-produced work must also meet the definition of a European cinematographic work set forth in Appendix II to the Convention.

Once these conditions have been fulfilled, the Convention assimilates all co-productions, which have been given the prior approval of the competent authorities of the Parties, with national films; i.e. they are entitled to the benefits granted to the latter. The Convention also covers the following: the minimum and maximum proportions of contributions from each co-producer; the right of each co-producer to co-ownership of the original, the picture and the sound; the general balance of investments and compulsory artistic and technical participation; the measures to be taken by the Parties to facilitate the production and export of the cinematographic work and the right of each Party to demand a final version of the cinematographic work in one of the languages of that Party.

176 European Landscape Convention

Summary

Open for signature by the member States of the Council of Europe, in Florence, on 20 October 2000.

Entry into force: 1 March 2004.

Summary of the treaty

The Convention aims to encourage public authorities to adopt policies and measures at local, regional, national and international level for protecting, managing and planning landscapes throughout Europe. It covers all landscapes, both outstanding and ordinary, that determine the quality of people's living environment. The text provides for a flexible approach to landscapes whose specific features call for various types of action, ranging from strict conservation through protection, management and improvement to actual creation.

The Convention proposes legal and financial measures at the national and international levels, aimed at shaping "landscape policies" and promoting interaction between local and central authorities as well as transfrontier cooperation in protecting landscapes. It sets out a range of different solutions which States can apply, according to their specific needs.

The Council of Europe intergovernmental committees will be supervising the convention's implementation. The text also provides for a Council of Europe Landscape award, to be given to local or regional authorities or an NGO which introduced exemplary and long-lasting policies or measures to protect, manage and plan landscapes.

183 European Convention for the Protection of the Audiovisual Heritage

Summary

Open for signature by the member States of the Council of Europe, by the other States Parties to the European Cultural Convention and by the European Union, in Strasbourg, on 8 November 2001. The Protocol was opened simultaneously for signature by the Signatories to the Convention.

Entry into force of the Convention: 1 January 2008.

Entry into force of the Protocol: 1 April 2014

Summary of the treaties

The promotion of European cinema has always been an important concern of the cultural cooperation of the Council of Europe. It follows on from the European Convention on Cinema Coproduction of 2 October 1982 (ETS No. 147) and other resolutions concerning the same subject.

This Convention and its Protocol are centered around the principle of compulsory legal deposit of all moving-image material produced or coproduced and made available to the public in each signatory State. Legal deposit involves a requirement not just to deposit a reference copy with an officially designated archive but also to look after the material and do the necessary conservation work. In addition the material has to be available for consultation for academic or research purposes, subject to the international or national rules on copyright.

The Convention and its Protocol are the first binding international instruments in this field. They introduce systematic storage of audiovisual works in film archives, where the latest conservation and restoration technology can be used for long-term prevention of deterioration.
