Article 9

1. No exception to the provisions set out in this Chapter shall be allowed except to the provisions of Articles 5.4, 7.2, 7bis paragraph 1 and Article 8 when such exception is provided for by law, respects the essence of the fundamental rights and freedoms and constitutes a necessary and proportionate measure in a democratic society for:

a. the protection of national security, defence, public safety, important economic and financial interests of the State, the impartiality and independence of the judiciary or the prevention, investigation and prosecution of criminal offences and the execution of criminal penalties, and other essential objectives of general public interest;

2. Restrictions on the exercise of the provisions specified in Articles 7bis and 8 may be provided for by law with respect to data processing for historical, statistical and scientific archiving purposes in the public interest, scientific or historical research purposes or statistical purposes when there is no recognisable risk of infringement of the rights and fundamental freedoms of data subjects.

APPENDIX 2

Statement of the Delegation of the Russian Federation on Article 20.3 of the draft modernised Convention for the Protection of Individuals with regard to Automatic Processing of Personal Data (CETS № 108)

“Within the framework of the modernization of the Convention № 108 the Russian Federation has consistently objected to the voting procedure set out in Article 20.3 of the Convention, which delegates the European Union the right to cast the number of votes equal to the number of its member-states in the Convention Committee (the T-PD).

Such voting mechanism automatically gives the European Union the majority necessary to pass most of the decisions of the T-PD. As such, it is clearly unbalanced and prejudicial to the rights of the Parties to the Convention (whether Council of Europe member-states, or not) who are not members of the EU. This disbalance becomes all the more inappropriate in view of the widening of the competence of the T-PD under the modernised Convention.

Furthermore, this provision does not reflect, and, in fact, appears contrary to the existing voting standards of the subordinate bodies of the Council of Europe. Moreover, it is not in line with the modalities of participation of the European Union in other international organisations and bodies.

In light of the above the Russian Federation stands behind its proposal to remove the aforementioned voting mechanism from Article 20.3 of the modernised Convention and intends to pursue this matter at the subsequent stages of the consideration of this issue.”
