

Nina Grmuša. As the Chairperson of the Advisory Council on Youth, I bring experience in fostering inclusive environments and gathering knowledge of different youth civil society organisations. With volunteer work experience as a youth worker, trainer, and team developer with the European Federation for Intercultural Learning, I worked on advancing active citizenship education and interculturalism, as well as advocating for diversity, inclusion, and equality.

I hold an academic and research background in intersectional gender studies, anthropology, indigenous studies, and environmental studies. I studied at Belgrade University, São Paulo University, Deusto University, Uppsala University, and Stockholm University. This diverse educational experience has provided me with a comprehensive understanding of the complex layers of gender issues within various social and environmental contexts.

I am dedicated to promoting the voices of young people and ensuring their active participation in decision-making processes. I strongly advocate for the importance of civil society in driving social change and advancing equality. My work emphasises intersectionality, recognising how different aspects of identity, such as gender, race, belonging, socio-economic status and lived experiences intersect to impact individuals' experiences and opportunities.
