CONFIDENCE IN TOMORROW

Sharing and shaping democracy and human rights together with young people

Youth event on the occasion of the 75th anniversary of the Council of Europe

European Youth Centre, Strasbourg
14-16 May 2024

Call for participants

Background

The founding of the Council of Europe on 5 May 1949 in London was seen as “something new and hopeful in European life [...] the establishment of a common democratic institution” at a time of great uncertainty for Europe and in the aftermath of Second World War. The Statute of the organisation proclaims that “the pursuit of peace based upon justice and international co-operation is vital for the preservation of human society and civilisation” – words which have not lost any relevance 75 years on.

The challenges that the world faced in 1949 are far away echoes of the challenges of the present: the spectrum of war (past or present) and violence in society, the uncertainty of the future posed by economic deprivation, social challenges, refugees’ crisis and the attacks on a united Europe. While only 10 European states founded the Council of Europe in 1949, the institution was a vision to hope for and build towards.

Today, 46 member states are uniting around the values of democracy, human rights, and the rule of law as they share, develop and uphold them as Council of Europe. In the Reykjavik Declaration United Around our Values, which resulted from their 4th Summit held in May 2023, the Heads of State and Government declared to invest in the democratic future by ensuring that everyone is able to play their role in democratic processes. They also called for priority to be given to supporting the participation of young persons in democratic life and decision-making processes.

From the Congress of The Hague in 1948 throughout the life of the Council of Europe, youth organisations and young people have been playing a crucial role in safeguarding the values of this organisation. To have confidence in tomorrow, therefore in the future of democracy and human rights in Europe, one must support a confident, hopeful and committed youth, able to participate in all democratic life and in decision-making processes. This requires addressing the challenges and issues that concern young people today, such as climate crisis, intergenerational injustices and grim economic perspective, lack of trust in democracy and democratic processes, and they need to be addressed together with young people.

Young people revitalising democracy is a priority of the Council of Europe, as also laid out in the Youth Sector Strategy 2030 adopted by the Committee of Ministers [CM/Res\(2020\)2]. The Call for Action by participants of the 2022 Youth Action Week gives testimony to the young people’s creativity, energy and resolve to revitalise democracy based on individual freedom, political liberty, human rights and the rule of law.

The Reykjavik Declaration and Principles for Democracy identify the importance of young people and of youth policy, expressed in the commitment to include a youth perspective in the intergovernmental and other deliberations of the Organisations and calls

(...) to support the participation of young persons in democratic life and decision-making processes, including through education about human rights and core democratic values, such as pluralism, inclusion, non-discrimination, transparency and accountability (...)

The 75th anniversary in 2024 represents an important opportunity to strengthen the mutual commitments between the Council of Europe and young people, whereby the Council of Europe enables young people across Europe to actively uphold, defend, promote and benefit from the Council of Europe’s core values of human rights, democracy and the rule of law.

Confidence in Tomorrow

The youth event Confidence in tomorrow is organised in the framework of the celebrations of the 75th anniversary of the Council of Europe under the Presidency of Liechtenstein.

The event seeks to further renew and strengthen the close relationship between the mission of the Council of Europe and the current and future generations of young people. It is organised for young people to share their aspirations and commitment to a democratic Europe and to contribute, as irreplaceable partners for the present and the future of Council of Europe to shaping the future of democracy and human rights on the European continent.

The youth event will develop ideas and proposals for strengthening democracy based on the values and principles of the Council of Europe, part of the common heritage of all people in Europe.

The participants will also have the opportunity to share their aspiration and proposals in the official celebration of the 75th anniversary, which will be held in the Strasbourg Opera House on 16 May, in the presence of the Ministers of Foreign Affairs of the member states.

Objectives of the event

1. To associate young people and youth civil society to the 75th anniversary of the Council of Europe and its relevance for young people today
2. To engage youth organisations, notably national youth councils, as partners in the follow-up to the conclusions of the Reykjavik Summit, in particular the implementation of the Reykjavik Principles for Democracy
3. To identify emerging (youth) issues and explore the approaches for integrating a youth perspective across the work of the Council of Europe and its member states
4. To strengthen youth participation, by pursuing dialogue between young people, youth civil society and political decision-makers.

Programme and outcomes

The youth event will bring together some 100 representatives of national youth councils, international youth organisations, as well as representatives of the national authorities in charge of youth, for a three-day programme that will be a strong experience of the participatory approaches characteristic to non-formal education and youth work.

The programme will feature plenary sessions, working groups organised according to the key themes of the event, integrating also themes brought up by the participants; a specific attention will be placed on the application of the Reykjavik Principles of Democracy in the shaping of the mutual roles of the participants and the Council of Europe.

The programme will feature also a dialogue session on 16 May with ministers of foreign affairs attending the solemn Committee of Ministers meeting. Key messages of the youth event will be conveyed by the young participants as part of the official programme of the celebrations in the Strasbourg Opera House on 16 May.

The appended programme outline provides a sketch of the main programme flow and contents, subject to adjustments.
