

---

Decision of the Jury of the 2023 North-South Prize

Approved

---

On 6 October 2023, the Bureau of the North-South Centre in its configuration as Jury of the North-South Prize of the Council of Europe voted on the nominees for the 2023 North-South Prize Award.

This year, the North-South Centre received a total of 17 eligible nominations for the North-South Prize 2023: 10 nominations from the North and 7 nominations from the South<sup>1</sup>.

According to Article 8 of the Regulations of the North-South Prize:

Considering the Jury's decision, and after any further consultations it may consider necessary, the North-South Centre Executive Committee will make the final decision regarding the attribution of the Prize.

The two most voted candidates by the Jury were:

Global Campus of Human Rights was selected in recognition of its crucial work in ensuring a high-quality accessible Human Rights education and nurturing a North-South dialogue within a community of academics, students, lawyers, and experts to support universal Human Rights and democratic values.

<https://gchumanrights.org/>

Ms. Amina Bouayach selected by the Jury in recognition of her commitment to the promotion of Human Rights, gender equality and the prevention of torture on a regional and continental levels. The Prize aims as well to recognise Ms. Bouayach's engagement in political advocacy for the abolition of death penalty, as well as her work to reinforce both civil society structures in the Mediterranean region and North-South cooperation based on common democratic values.

---

<sup>1</sup> For reference, the complete list of nominations is distributed as per document NSC/BUR(2023)4