UKRAINE

Laws of Ukraine "On Social Services", "On state social standards and social guarantees"

(last update of information by Ukraine 2019)

Basic Principles

ALBANIA

The fund is planned and financed from the government budget, according to regional needs.

Every category is covered by a long-term care according to the above legislation.

The long-term care is based upon needs.

The benefits provided for long-term care are given in cash and kind

Social assistance scheme and care for people in need has changed in the recent years based on the decentralization principle.

The necessary fund for social assistance according to local unit needs is allocated from the central state budget in the beginning of each year.

The local unit uses this fund monthly to support poor families according to national criteria and can use part of it to help other families in disadvantaged conditions.

Local units have taken the responsibility to assess social needs and to plan and establish services for groups in need.

Eight residential care services administered by the Ministry of Labor, Social Affairs and Equal Opportunities . The other (20 residential care services) have been transferred to the local unit's competence.

The Local unit will support financially new services in cooperation with local NPO-s (Non Profit Organization-s).

BOSNIA AND HERZEGOVINA

Federation of BiH,

- No special scheme.

- Long-term care is provided through the social protection legislation, grounded on the giving of social security benefits and entitlement is based on necessity.

- The amounts of benefits are regionally organized.

- Scheme is financed from taxes and budget.

- Benefits for long-term care are combined (benefits in-kind and cash benefits).

These benefits are granted as supplement to other social benefits (and are thus part of the other social protection laws)

Republika Srpska

- Long-term care is provided on the basis of the social protection legislation; entitlement is based on necessity.

- The amounts for each right are prescribed at the level of Republika Srpska, provided that the local governments may decide to give other rights provided in the law.

Funding is made partly from the budget of the Republic and partly from the budget of local governments.

- Benefits for long-term care are combined (benefits in-kind and cash benefits).

These benefits are granted as supplement to other social benefits (and are thus part of the other social protection laws)

Brčko District of BiH

- No special scheme.

- Long-term care is provided through the social protection legislation, grounded on the giving of social security benefits and entitlement is based on necessity.

- The amounts of benefits are regionally organized.

- Scheme is financed from taxes and budget.

These benefits are granted as supplement to other social benefits (and are thus part of the other social protection laws)

GEORGIA

There is no specific scheme for long-term care. Benefits are provided through other branches of social security. Benefits in-kind: Special institutional care provided for disabled, for children deprived of parental care and for elderly. Services related to alternative day care centers, small group homes, community based services are financed by central and local budget. Basically- centralized, universal system, not linked to economic activity and/or payment of contributions. No benefits to informal carers.

MONTENEGRO

No specific scheme. Part of the general social assistance scheme. Financed by the State Budget.

Beneficiaries may be citizens of Montenegro, with permanent residence, foreigners with an approved temporary stay or permanent stay in Montenegro.

NORTH MACEDONIA

Long-term care is not ensured by a single system, but it is partially provided under the social protection and pension insurance system run by the Ministry of Labour and Social Policy and the health care system under the responsibility of the Ministry of Health. Each of these systems has its own legal regulations, criteria of accessibility and quality, and a different method of financing. Apart from the state guaranteed systems, long-term care is traditionally provided by family members and other close persons.

Benefits in cash (assistance and care by other person, disability benefit, compensation of a salary for shortened working hours of the parent due to the care of a child with disability) and in kind are provided (accommodation and nursing care in social protection institutions or specialized hospitals, day care, home care and assistance, foster family care). Cash benefits are organised at central level. In-kind benefits are organized both centrally and locally.

Provision of long-term care is based on insurance principles for health care and universal entitlement for the social care services and cash benefits.

Long-term care is financed primarily from State Budget, contributions, out-of-pocket payments by the beneficiary or his/her family and municipal budget (for certain social care services).
Some specific benefits exist for informal carers (see "Benefits for informal carers")

REPUBLIC OF MOLDOVA

.In the field of social assistance, long-term care is provided through social services. The right to social services is determined individually, based on the assessment of the person / family needs of these services.

Thus, depending on the individual needs and individualized assistance plan, social services are provided, such as: social care at home, day care centers; temporary placement centers, long-term placement centers, rehabilitation centers, multi-purpose social assistance centers.

According to the legislation, the prerogative of the establishment and development of social services belongs to the local public administration authorities of level one and level two.

According to Law no. 123/2010 on social services, social services are classified into the following types:

- a) primary social services;
- b) specialized social services;
- c) social services with high specialization.

Primary social services are services that are provided at community level to all beneficiaries and are aimed at preventing or limiting situations of difficulty that may cause marginalization or social exclusion.

Specialized social services are services involving the training of specialists and aim at maintaining, rehabilitating and developing individual capacities to overcome a situation of difficulty in which the beneficiary or his family is located.

Social services with a high specialization are services provided in a residential institution or specialized temporary placement institution which require a range of complex interventions that may include any combination of specialized social services provided to beneficiaries with increased dependence and requiring continuous supervision (24/24 hours).

Simultaneous, according to the Social Assistance Act no. 547/2003, the local public administration authorities of second level organize the territorial structure of social assistance, which together with the first level local public administration authorities and in cooperation with the representatives of the civil society, implements the social assistance policy and ensures the application of the legislation at the level territorial.

Persons with severe disability immobilized in bed have suffered from the Chernobyl catastrophe, they are set up a monthly allowance for care, attendance according to the Law no. 909/1992.

RUSSIAN FEDERATION

Basic principles of rendering social services:

- 1) targeting;
- 2) availability;
- 3) voluntariness;
- 4) humanity;
- 5) priority of social services provision for minors being in difficult life situation;
- 6) confidentiality;
- 7) preventive direction.

Social services shall correspond to the state standards specifying basic requirements as to volumes and quality of social services, procedure for rendering thereof.

Establishment of the state standard of social services shall be carried out subject to the procedure defined by governmental authorities of constituent entities of the Russian Federation.

The state guarantees its citizens the right to social service in the state system of social services in regard to basic types specified in the said Federal Law subject to the procedure and conditions specified by other regulatory legal acts of constituent entities of the Russian Federation.

SERBIA

Universal in-kind benefit or cash entitlement to people in need of care due to health conditions.

Benefits in kind are provided through social welfare scheme, through Social Care institutions. Centrally administered, financed by state budget.

Cash benefits are provided through two separate schemes. One is through Pension and Invalidity Insurance scheme which provides cash benefit for insured persons and pensioners. The benefit for other persons in need is provided from the State budget.

TURKEY

Long-term care is not ensured by a single system, but it is mainly provided and run by the Ministry of Family, Labour and Social Services (ACSHB). Thus, care services for persons with disabilities (PwDs) and the elderly are centrally administered. Application and other relevant processes for long term care are carried out by provincial directorates of the Ministry in 81 provinces. Benefits are financed from the government budget. Benefits provided by the Ministry of Family, Labour and Social Services for long-term care are combined (benefits in-kind and cash benefits including Home Care Allowance). Entitlement for the benefits in-kind (both for PwDs and the elderly) is based on universal entitlement. Cash benefits are based on the means-tested criteria.

Healthcare at home and some assistive devices are provided under the general health insurance system (universal) run by the Ministry of Health, and some home support services for PwDs and the elderly are provided by local government based on necessities.

UKRAINE

Universal in-kind benefit , entitlement to people in need of care due to the health conditions, organized regionally on the municipal level and financed by local budget.

Evaluation of dependency: indicators and categories of need

ALBANIA

Based on current Albanian legislation, disability care-giving allowance is delivered according to the severity of medical diagnosis of the individual. There are only 2 categories of persons with disabilities, the ones which benefit from care-giving allowance and the others who don't. There is no scale of assessment which can affect the amount of money given to cover the cost of caregiving. Usually, the persons with disabilities who belong to the first group are considered to be with a more severe diagnosis and are commonly given this allowance. At the moment, the Ministry of Social Welfare and Youth is designing the new reform of disability assessment which will include the social assessment of the individual. The daily living activities will be highly considered to measure the capacity of the individual to perform the activities independently.

Cash benefits-Assistance and care by other person: Dependency is assessed by reference to the capacity of persons to perform autonomously the essential activities of daily living (housekeeping, moving around in the home, mobility and personal hygiene), by means of specific evaluations, in particular on the basis of the International Classification of Functioning, Disability and Health (ICF) of the World Health Organisation and Barthel ADL index.

There are 2 categories of dependency on care:

Persons with higher level of dependence are the ones with severe or pronounced mental disabilities, severe and most severe bodily disabilities, complete blindness and temporary or permanent changes in the health condition, due to which the person cannot perform basic living functions.

Persons with lower level of dependence are persons with moderate mental disability, those suffering from temporary or permanent changes in the health condition and who cannot perform all basic living functions without help and care from another person.

Benefits in kind- Services for Assistance and Care at Home: person's ability to perform activities of daily living independently is assessed on the basis of the Katz Index of Independence in Activities of Daily Living (it ranks adequacy of performance in the six functions of bathing, dressing, toileting, transferring, continence, and feeding). It is the personal doctor who completes the scale and specifies the degree of dependency.

Independent living skills is assessed on the basis of the Lawton - Brody Instrumental Activities of Daily Living Scale (which measures eight domains of function, e.g. food preparation, housekeeping, laundering). It is the case manager from the Social Work Center who completes the scale and specifies the degree of dependency. There are four levels of dependency ranging from low function, i.e. completely dependent to high function, i.e. completely independent. In accordance with all the elements gathered, the number of hours of care in performing activities of daily living and instrumental activities is determined.

REPUBLIC OF MOLDOVA

In the process of needs assessment are observed, studied and analyzed living conditions, housing facilities, social network support the applicant's income, health, recommendations for health care, a person's ability to self-care, a person's ability to perform daily activities, mobility person, sensory abilities, psycho-emotional and behavioral, social pathologies, etc.

International Classification of Functioning, Disability and Health (ICF) is used in evaluation of dependency for adults.

Disability related function loss of the person and its effect on daily life activity are taken as a basis in measuring disability for adults. With this approach, medical disorder are evaluated both anatomically and functionally in determination of disability status.

In determination of functional disorders rates in line with the disability type, permanent function disorders that are considered to have no effect on disability are taken into consideration, notwithstanding the application of a medical treatment. In assessment of ability in performing activities of daily life, the expression of "severely disabled person" was replaced with "full-dependent person with a disability". Assessment of dependency/independence or the state of neediness for care assessment of persons residing in health institutions should be conducted through Functional Independence Scale (FIM).

In assessing disability for children with special needs, the classification is based on International Classification of Functioning, Disability and Health: Children and Youth Version (ICF-CY). Special Needs Report for Children (ÇÖZGER) is issued for children and youth with special needs and with a need for special arrangements in the environment in order to participate equally with other individuals without physical or developmental limitations in social life, health, education, rehabilitation, supportive devices, orthosis, prosthesis and other social and economic rights or services.

By introduction of ÇÖZGER, children with disabilities have been classified and identified in legislative texts with the following expressions; "child with a special need", "child with a mild special need", "child with a moderate special need", "child with a severe special need", "child with a highly severe special need", "child with a distinct special need" or "child with a need for special conditions"

BOSNIA AND HERZEGOVINA

The user of the right to accommodation in an institution and the right to care in a foster family participates in the costs of accommodation and care with the total income minus the amount of funds for personal needs. A person who has a surplus of housing space or other property which can provide for the means of subsistence, accommodation and care is financed from the budget, provided that the person transfers the right of ownership of the property or its part, free of charge, to the local self-governance unit.

The costs of accommodation and care are also borne by the maintenance creditor.

The basis for determining the obligation of participation in the costs is a part of the revenue that is derived from the total revenues minus:

- a) 30% if the maintenance creditor lives alone,
- b) 40% if the family of the maintenance creditor includes two members;
- c) 50% if the family of the maintenance creditor includes three members;
- d) 60% if the family of the maintenance creditor includes four members;
- e) 70% if the family of the maintenance creditor includes five and more members. The maintenance creditor participates in the costs in the amount of 25% of the base amount.

The right to assistance and home care funded from the budget is exercised by: a person who can neither afford such assistance and care nor can the relatives who are maintenance creditors, a person who has not entered into a contract of lifelong care, a person who has not disposed of the property by virtue of the donation contract and a person whose total income on all grounds does not exceed 50% of the average net salary in the Republika Srpska in the preceding year.

The participation of beneficiaries in the cost of assistance and home care includes an amount exceeding 50% of the average net salary in the Republika Srpska in the preceding year.

The cost of assistance and home care is determined on a monthly basis and cannot exceed 40% of the average net salary in the Republika Srpska in the preceding year, in accordance with the law.

The amount of participation by the relatives is determined on a monthly basis, amounting to less than 70% of the cost of assistance and home care, depending on the social and economic situation of the relatives, in accordance with the law.

The participation of beneficiaries and relatives in the cost of day care is determined by examining the social and economic situation of the beneficiary or relatives. The amount of participation by the beneficiaries or relatives is determined on a monthly basis amounting to less than 70% of the cost of day care, in accordance with the law.

The allowance for assistance and care by another person, child allowance, maternity allowances and allowance for newborns are not taken into account when determining the obligation to participate in the costs.

Brčko District BiH:

Parents and relatives who are obliged to support shall also participate in the expenses of beneficiary's accommodation, with the exception of persons with mental developmental delays of grave and severe type, just like persons with multiple developmental delays with grave and severe mental delays.

Resources for personal needs shall be secured for persons placed in a social protection institution who do not have any income, with the exception of persons with severe mental developmental delays and a child until 7 years of age.

The criteria and measures for the participation of parents, i.e. relatives in the expenses of placement in a social protection institution and another family as well as for determining the amount of resources for personal needs shall be prescribed by the Head of Department.

Beneficiaries participate in financing services. Percentage of co-financing depends on given score of evaluated socio-economic conditions

MONTENEGRO

The system of financing and planning of financial assets is centralized and all services are financed from the state budget, except for smaller funds provided by local government for lump sum benefits.

Costs of placement in an institution are borne by the beneficiary, a parent, or a relative who is obliged to maintain the beneficiary and other legal or physical person who undertook payment of costs of placement. Exceptionally, for persons who are not in position to bear costs of placement the funds will be provided from the State Budget.

NORTH MACEDONIA

Social Protection System:

Persons with physical and mental impairments as well as elderly people or members of their families (who are obliged to support them according to the Family Law) participate in the costs for accommodation in social protection institutions and foster families (costs for food, clothes, hygiene and other personal expenses). The amount of the participation varies from case to case and is determined on the basis of the income of the beneficiary and members of his/her family.

Placement in publicly funded social protection or other institutions is covered by the State if the beneficiary is accommodated with a decision of the competent social work center and when the total income per family member is below 25% of the last year average net wage (6.303 denars).

In case of long-term care services for elderly person that are provided in the publicly funded social protection institutions (e.g. elderly homes) the income from all sources of the beneficiary and his/her family members are calculated and taken into consideration when defining the level of co-payment. The beneficiary and his family members are exempted from copayments provided that their total income from all sources per family member is below 15% of the average net monthly wage in the previous year (3.782denars) and that they do not own property that could be used for commercial purposes.
