Good day again Humor Products. You will probably realise by now that my offer of security for your business was one that you should have accepted. As I mentioned before, that offer was a once only offer. I am of course prepared to now offer you a second opportunity to accept my services. The price of the services has now increased to €250,000. That will ensure that you do not have any further problems with your network. I appreciate that you are probably now working furiously to build some resilience into your systems, however this offer is only open until close of business today.

May I suggest for the sake of your business that you consider this offer and reply to this email address with your acceptance? I will then provide you with instructions regarding payment of the money.
