Article 10 – Protective and restraining orders

1. To ensure prompt response to facts of violence against women and/or domestic violence, the authorised body, in order to ensure protection of the victim and to restrain certain actions of the abuser, may issue a restraining or protective order as a temporary measure.

1¹. In order to ensure the protection of victims and the restriction of certain actions of abusers, the issuance of a restraining order by an authorised police officer as a measure of temporary measure shall be binding in the case of the initiation of investigation or in the case of pending investigation under Article 108, Article 109, Article 115, Article 117, Article 118, Article 120, Article 126, Article 137 and Article 138, Article 143(3)(e) and Article 143(4), Article 144 (2)(i) and Article 144 (3), Articles 144¹-144³ and Article 151, Article 160(2)(a) and Article 160(3) and Article 381¹ of the Criminal Code of Georgia.

1². Upon receipt of a notification of violence against women and / or domestic violence provided for in paragraph 1 of this article, if there are no grounds to initiate an investigation and, consequently, procedures established by paragraph 1¹ of this article is not applied, the authorised police officer shall assess the risk of recurrence of violence against women and / or domestic violence in accordance with procedures established by the order of the Minister of Internal Affairs of Georgia and shall make one of the following decisions according to the severity of such risk:

- a) on the issuance of a restraining order;
- b) on the refusal to issues a restraining order.

2. A protective order is an act issued by a court (judge) of first instance through an administrative proceeding that determines temporary measures for protecting the victim.

3. A restraining order is an act issued by an authorised police officer that determines temporary measures for protecting a victim of violence against women and/or domestic violence. The restraining order shall be issued on the basis of the risk assessment questionnaire determined by the protocol of the restraining order approved by the order of the Minister of Internal Affairs of Georgia.

3¹. A restraining order shall specify:

a) date and place of its issuance;

b) circumstances depending on which a restraining order has been issued;

c) name, surname, date and place of birth, and the personal number of an abuser, his/her profession and place of residence;

c¹) name, surname, date of birth, and the personal number of a victim;

d) a list of those actions provided for by paragraph (3²) of this article, which are prohibited to be carried out by an abuser.

3². A restraining order shall be signed by a person authorised to issue it and by an abuser and a victim. It may involve:

a) a matter related to moving of an abuser from the house of a victim, whether or not he/she is an owner of the house;

b) the matters related to separation of a victim, a person dependent on the victim from an abuser and their placement in the asylum;

c) restriction of the right of an abuser to use the joint ownership at his/her own discretion;

d) the matters related to the separation of an abuser from a minor;

e) the matters related to approaching a victim, his/her workplace and those places, where the victim stays, by an abuser;

f) the matters related to the carrying out of electronic surveillance;

g) restriction or prohibition of the right of an abuser to use weapon (including service weapon), restriction of the right of an abuser to purchase weapon or to obtain a permit or a licence, and the conditions of keeping or temporarily seizing weapon (including service weapon) in his/her ownership and/or belonging to him/her during the validity of the said order or during the period determined by the order;

h) warning of an abuser in the case of violating the requirements under the order related to the imposition of liability determined by the legislation of Georgia;

i) other matters which need to be resolved for ensuring the safety of a victim.

3³. If for any reason a victim and/or an abuser fails to sign a restraining order, it shall be signed only by a person who is authorised to issue a restraining order. In this case, an appropriate record shall be made in the restraining order and the victim and/or the abuser shall specify the reason of his/her failure to sign the order.

3⁴. A restraining order may specify one of the matters, or some, or all matters, adequate to the fact of violence, provided for by paragraph 3² of this article. It shall be compulsory to specify in the restraining order the restriction of the right to use weapon determined by paragraph 3²(f) of this article in the case of the initiation of investigation or in the case of pending investigation under Article 108, Article 109, Article 115, Article 117, Article 118, Article 120, Article 126, Article 137 and Article 138, Article 143(3)(e), Article 144 (2)(i), Articles 144¹-144³ and Article 151, Article 160(2)(a) and Article 160(3) and Article 381¹ of the Criminal Code of Georgia

3⁵. A restraining order shall be written in the language of court proceedings, clearly and explicitly. It may be handwritten, or printed using a technical means.

3⁶. A restraining order shall enter into force immediately after its issuance. It shall be sent/served to a victim or an abuser, and a counterpart of the restraining order shall remain in the issuing body.

3⁷. A copy of the restraining order shall be immediately sent to:

a) the Ministry of Internal Affairs of Georgia:

a.a) the relevant district service of the territorial body, according to the place of residence of a victim, for the purpose of responding to the non-fulfilment of the requirements and duties provided for by the restraining order;

a.b) the Information-Analytical Department for the purpose of registration of relevant information in the appropriate electronic database, quick and effective response to violation of law and for the purpose of making the record of statistical data;

a.c) a legal entity under public law called the Service Agency of the Ministry of Internal Affairs of Georgia, if a restraining order concerns the matters related to weapon;

a.d) a legal entity under public law called the Public Safety Command Center 112 (LEPL 112) under the Ministry of Internal Affairs of Georgia, if the restraining order provides for the carrying out of electronic surveillance;

b) relevant local guardianship and custody authority, if the matters under the order concerns minors.

3⁸. A victim or an abuser may appeal a restraining order within 3 days after the order has been submitted/served to him/her.

3⁹. If there are elements of crime under the Criminal Code of Georgia during the review of the matter related to the issuance of a restraining order, the case materials shall in parallel be sent, according to the subordination, to the relevant authority for resolving the matters related to criminal prosecution.

3¹⁰. In case of electronic surveillance of an abuser, the parameters of the geographical zones where the approach provided for by sub-paragraph (e) of paragraph 3² of this article is prohibited, shall be determined by an order of the Minister of Internal Affairs of Georgia.

4. Non-fulfilment of the requirements under a restraining or protective order by the abuser, as well as disobedience of the decision taken by the social worker on separation of a minor, shall result in legal liability under the procedure established by the legislation of Georgia.

5. The use of measures provided in the criminal legislation of Georgia (criminal mechanisms) against the perpetrator of violence against women and/or domestic violence shall not hinder the issuance of a restraining or protective order to ensure the protection of the person affected by violence (the victim).

6. If a measure of restraint (except for detention) is applied with respect to violence against women and/or a domestic violence perpetrator, against whom the prosecution has been initiated on charges of violence against women and/or domestic violence or domestic crime and a non-custodial measure of restraint has been applied, the competent court, by way of criminal proceedings, shall consider and decide the use of restrictive measures against the abuser to ensure the protection of the person affected by violence (the victim).

7. A protective order shall provide for the abuser to undertake a mandatory training course focused on the change of violent attitudes and behaviour.

Article 10¹ – Imposing and carrying out of electronic surveillance of an abuser

1. In the presence of violence against women and / or domestic violence, an authorised police officer may impose electronic surveillance on the abuser in order to ensure the implementation of a temporary victim protection measure provided for in Article 10 (3²) (e) of this Law.

2. Electronic surveillance of an abuser may be carried out to ensure the provision of a temporary protection measure for a victim provided for in Article 10 (3²) (e) of this Law, especially if there is a real risk of recurrence of violence from the side of an abuser. The threat of recurrence of violence shall be assessed by an authorised police officer on the basis of the risk assessment questionnaire specified in the protocol of the restraining order approved by the order of the Minister of Internal Affairs of Georgia. In assessing such threat, various circumstances shall be taken into account, including the fact of violation of a restraining order and / or a protective order by the abuser in the past and the nature of the violation, the fact of committing the crime of violence in the past, the threats from the side of the abuser and / or the fact of the use / demonstration of melee weapon/ firearms in the process of committing the physical violence by the abuser and other circumstances.

3. Electronic surveillance may be imposed on the abuser upon the issuance of a restraining order, as well as at any time during the period of validity of the restraining order.

4. An indication of the imposition of electronic surveillance against the abuser shall be made in the restraining order in the case the electronic surveillance is imposed during the issuance of the restraining order. In addition, a protocol on the electronic surveillance shall be issued and it shall be submitted to the court for approval within 24 hours after its issuance. In the case of the failure to submit to the court for approval of the protocol on electronic surveillance within 24 hours or if the court refuses to approve the protocol, the initiated electronic surveillance measure shall be terminated immediately.

5. Persons provided for in Article 11 of this Law shall have the right to request the imposition of electronic surveillance against the abuser.

6. The electronic surveillance requires the consent of a victim or his / her legal representative / procedural representative. If a victim, who is a minor, consents to, but his / her legal representative / procedural representative refuses from the electronic surveillance, the decision shall be made in the best interests of the minor.

7. Electronic surveillance shall be carried out for a period not exceeding the validity period of a restraining order.

8. The protocol on the carrying out of electronic surveillance shall indicate:

a) the date and place of the issuance of the protocol;

b) the circumstances which gave rise to the issuance of the protocol;

c) name, surname, date of birth, personal number and place of residence of an abuser;

d) information on the conviction of an abuser;

e) name, surname, date of birth and personal number of a victim;

f) consent of a victim to carrying out electronic surveillance;

g) details of a restraining order for ensuring of which the electronic surveillance measure is applied;

h) prohibiting of an abuser's approach to a victim, his or her office and other places where the victim is present;

i) the imposition of criminal liability in the case of non-compliance by an abuser with the request of an authorised person during the electronic surveillance to enter the alarm zone or to leave the alarm or buffer zone and/or in the case of avoiding the electronic surveillance; also on warning an abuser of the criminal liability in the case of damage or destruction of the electronic means handed over for the purpose of carrying out the electronic surveillance;

j) other matters that need to be addressed in order to carry out the electronic surveillance of an abuser.

9. The protocol on the carrying out of electronic surveillance shall indicate the instructions for the operation of the electronic means, which shall be binding.

10. The protocol on the carrying out of the electronic surveillance shall be signed by the person authorised to issue it, a victim and an abuser against whom the protocol has been issued.

11. If for certain reasons a victim and / or an abuser does not sign the protocol on carrying out the electronic surveillance, it shall be signed only by the person authorised to issue the protocol. In this case, an appropriate entry shall be made in the protocol on the carrying out of electronic surveillance and the reason for the victim and / or the abuser's refusal to sign / inability to sign the protocol shall be indicated.

12. The protocol on the carrying out of electronic surveillance shall enter into force upon issuance. The protocol shall be sent / delivered to a victim and an abuser within 24 hours after its issuance. A copy of the protocol on the carrying out of electronic surveillance shall remain with its issuing body, and another copy shall be submitted to the court for approval within 24 hours after its issuance.

13. A copy of the protocol on the carrying out of electronic surveillance shall be sent immediately to:

a) the relevant district service of the relevant territorial body of the Ministry of Internal Affairs of Georgia according to the place of residence of a victim, in order to respond to the non-fulfilment of the requirements and obligations stipulated in the protocol on the carrying out of electronic surveillance;

b) the relevant structural subdivision of the Ministry of Internal Affairs of Georgia for entering information in the appropriate electronic database, quick and effective response to violations and for recording of the statistical data;

c) The LEPL called 112 for technical support of the carrying out of electronic surveillance.

14. The electronic device submitted to an abuser for the purpose of electronic surveillance consists of an electronic bracelet and a receiving device. Damage to or destruction of the electronic device shall result in the imposition of criminal liability on the abuser.

15. Procedures for electronic surveillance of an abuser shall be established by an order of the Minister of Internal Affairs of Georgia, which shall specify in details procedures for electronic surveillance, including the parameters of the geographical zones (buffer zones and alarm zones) where it is forbidden to approach the victim, procedures for processing and storing personal data during the carrying out of electronic surveillance and other matters.

16. If it is not possible to attach an electronic device to the body of an abuser for the purpose of electronic surveillance, the authorised police officer shall have the right to transfer the abuser to the nearest police institution. When forcibly taken to the police the abuser shall be explained the following:

a) grounds for bringing to the police;

b) that he has the right to a lawyer;

c) that he / she has the right, if the abuser wishes, to report the fact and whereabouts of the abuser to the relative named by him / her, as well as to the administration of his / her work or study place.17. When an abuser is brought to the police, a protocol on the bringing of a person shall be drawn up. The protocol shall include: the date and place of drawing up the protocol; name, surname and position of the official compiling the protocol; information about the abuser; time and grounds for bringing the abuser to the police. The said protocol shall be signed by the official compiling the protocol and the abuser. If the abuser refuses to sign the protocol, it shall be indicated in the protocol.

18. An abuser shall stay in the police for a reasonable period of time to attach the electronic device to the body. The total time for bringing him to the police shall not exceed six hours. The decision on bringing the abuser to the police shall be appealed in accordance with procedures established by the legislation of Georgia.

19. In the case of the absence of an abuser during the issuance of a protocol by an authorised police officer on the carrying out of electronic surveillance, the police shall be authorised to summon the abuser to the authorised body of the Ministry of Internal Affairs of Georgia to attach the electronic means to the body of the abuser. If the abuser does not appear to the said authorised body, the police shall be authorised to search for him throughout the country.

20. The police shall be authorised to use proportionate coercive measures if necessary to attach an electronic means to the body of the abuser.

21. The electronic surveillance shall be carried out within the jurisdiction of Georgia. An abuser / a victim shall be prohibited to cross the state border of Georgia with the electronic means attached to his/her body. The abuser / victim is obliged to notify the Ministry of Internal Affairs of Georgia about the crossing of the state border of Georgia in advance. The Ministry of Internal Affairs of Georgia is authorised to process information on the crossing of the state border of Georgia by the abuser / victim within the period specified in the protocol on electronic surveillance. The electronic surveillance shall be suspended until the abuser / victim returns to Georgia.

22. The use of measures (criminal mechanisms) provided for by the criminal legislation of Georgia against an abuser shall not hinder the carrying out of electronic surveillance of the abuser to ensure the protection of the victim. The imposition of the measure of restraint – detention, arrest or administrative detention shall be the basis for the suspension of electronic surveillance of the abuser.

23. In the case of accidental approach of an abuser and a victim, an employee of the LEPL called 112 is obliged to contact the abuser and ask him/her to leave the relevant territory to avoid a chance of meeting with the victim. The abuser is obliged to comply with the request of the employee of the LEPL called 112. Failure to comply with the request shall result in the imposition of the criminal liability on the abuser.

24. Penetration of an abuser in the alarm zone determined by procedures for electronic surveillance during the carrying out of electronic surveillance and/or failure to comply with the request of the authorised person to leave the alarm or buffer zone, and/or avoidance of electronic surveillance shall lead to the imposition of liability under the Criminal Code of Georgia.

25. The applied electronic surveillance measure may be revoked by an appeal to the court:

a) due to a change in the situation, including due to a serious illness of an abuser, if the changed situation excludes the risk of repeating the violence by the abuser;

b) if the victim appeals to the police for the cancellation of electronic surveillance.

26. Within 24 hours after the occurrence of the circumstances provided for in paragraph 25 of this article, the police shall apply to the court with a request to cancel the electronic surveillance. The court shall consider the issue within 24 hours after such appeal, in accordance with procedures established by the legislation of Georgia.

27. Cancellation of a restraining order by an authorised body, death of an abuser or a victim shall lead to automatic cancellation of the electronic surveillance measure.

28. An authorised police officer shall have the right to summon an abuser to remove the electronic means or to transfer him/her to the nearest police station in accordance with paragraphs 16 – 18 of this article.

29. In order to prevent violence against women and domestic violence the authorised body of the Ministry of Internal Affairs of Georgia shall have the right to process the personal data of an abuser / a victim, including the data obtained through electronic surveillance, and the data on communication with the abuser / victim.

30. In order to carry out electronic surveillance, information is exchanged between the Ministry of Internal Affairs of Georgia, the Prosecutor's Office of Georgia, the Ministry of Internally Displaced Persons from the Occupied Territories, Labour, Health and Social Affairs of Georgia, the Ministry of Justice of Georgia, the court and other relevant agencies if necessary.

Law of Georgia No 6758 of 13 July 2020 – website, 20.07.2020

Article 11 – The right to request the issuance of restraining and protective orders

1. Victims, their family members and/or, with the consent of the victim, a social worker or a person who provides medical, legal or psychological assistance to the victim, may apply for a protective order and a restraining order. In cases of violence against minors, the issuance of a protective order and a restraining order may be requested by the relevant guardianship and custody authority.

2. In the case provided for by Article 17¹(4) of this Law, the authorised employee of the Ministry of Internal Affairs of Georgia shall assess the information received from a victim. In the process of assessing the relevant risk, he / she shall be entitled to request an individual assessment report from the penitentiary institution. If the above information provides sufficient grounds to believe that the violence against the victim may be repeated, the authorised officer of the Ministry of Internal Affairs of Georgia shall determine the whereabouts of the person released from the penitentiary institution and, after taking the relevant explanation, the officer shall decide on issuing or refusing to issue a restraining order. In the case of issuance of a restraining order, the existence of the application of the person provided for in paragraph 1 of this article shall not obligatory for its issuance.

3. The police shall be authorised to issue a restraining order on own initiative, if there are sufficient grounds to presume that the constitutional rights and freedoms of a person may be violated by neglecting such rights, or by coercion, and / or by physical, psychological, economic, sexual violence against him / her.

Article 12 – Validity of restraining and protective orders

1. Protective orders shall be issued for a period of up to nine months. A court shall specify its particular validity period.

2. A court shall decide on the issue of changing the validity of a protective order. The validity of a protective order may be extended during the period of its operation and for an additional term that shall not exceed three months, if the victim and other family members of the victim are at risk.

3. Upon conciliation of the parties, on the basis of their joint request to a court/an authorised police officer, the validity of a protective or restraining order may be terminated by a corresponding decision of a judge/an authorised police officer, as a result of comprehensive and complete study of the circumstances of the case, except where there is a threat of committing violence against a victim or another member of his/her family, and except for the cases determined by Article 13 of this Law.

4. A restraining order shall be issued for a period of up to one month.

Chapter IV – Specific Measures for Protecting Minors from Domestic Violence

Article 14 – Separation of a minor from an abusive parent, another legal representative, or another person actually staying/living with the minor

1. In case of violence towards a minor, the minor shall be separated from the abusive parent (parents), another legal representative or any other abuser on the basis of a restraining order issued by an authorised police officer, and in cases defined under the child protection referral procedures – on the basis of the decision taken by a social worker.
2. Separation of a minor from a parent (parents), another legal representative, or any other person actually staying/living with the minor shall be the last resort to be used only in cases when all other, less stringent measures (including talking and warning) have been used, and the measures were unable to bring the intended effect, or when in the current situation it is clear that application of a less stringent measure cannot ensure protection of the minor's life and health. The opinion of a minor as to where to accommodate him/her must be considered taking into account the age and the level of development of the minor, and in any case, the decision must be taken in consideration of the best interests of the minor. When taking decision, a police officer/social worker shall identify signs of violence, and interview the victim and those that may provide beneficial information to him/her. If and when needed, the police officer/social worker may call emergency service and consult with the emergency doctor before taking the decision. Based on this, the police officer/social worker shall assess the case and, considering security risks of the minor, shall take the decision to separate the minor as provided in the child protection referral procedures. Upon taking the decision to separate the minor, the social worker shall apply to the police which will ensure immediate enforcement of the decision.
3. If any type of violence occurs in a family, and in case a person specified in the Article 11 of this Law applies to a court for a protective order, the court shall consider the issue of the relations of the abusive parent (parents) or another legal representative with the minor. If traces of violence can be observed in the minor, the court may be requested to separate the minor from the abusive parent (parents), another legal representative or another abuser, as a temporary measure until the court delivers its final decision.
4. When considering the matter related to the right of representation of the minor, account shall be taken of the fact that if an abusive parent (parents) or another legal representative retains the right to represent the minor, it may be harmful to the interests of the minor. Parents may not retain the right of joint custody of the minor if there is reasonable belief that one of the parents may commit violence against the minor.
5. In the case determined by the legislation of Georgia, a minor may, from the age of 14, apply to a court for the protection of his/her rights and legitimate interests. In such a case the court shall assign a procedural representative and hear the case. A minor claimant may disagree with his/her procedural representative and defend himself/herself. The court shall involve a guardianship and custodianship body in such cases.
6. In the case under paragraph 1 of this article, the decision of the social worker may be appealed against under the procedure established by the legislation of Georgia. Such an appeal shall not suspend the effect of the decision.

Article 14¹ – Identification of a fact of domestic violence against a minor

1. The obligation to apply to the relevant authorities for identifying (primary identification) and responding to domestic violence against a minor shall rest with medical institutions, childcare and educational institutions, the guardianship and custodianship bodies, and their authorised personnel, as well as other relevant institutions and their authorised personnel involved in child protection referral procedures.
2. If an entity (an institution and/or its authorised employee) involved in child protection referral procedures fails to perform its obligation to identify a fact of minor's abuse and to inform a relevant state body about minor's abuse, it shall incur liability under the procedure established by the legislation of Georgia.

Article 15 – Preventing the abduction of minors and ensuring other types of security

1. The court shall determine by its decision the terms of visiting the minor by the abusive parent. The abusive parent may be allowed to visit the minor only when all security measures have been taken with respect to him/her, which may include the place of visit of the minor, time of visit, frequency, duration, and the person who is responsible for the fulfilment of security requirements/measures.

2. If security measures are not observed with relation to the minor, the right of the abusive parent to visit the minor shall be restricted. If this restriction lasts more than three months, the parent whose right is being restricted may apply to the court to change the visitation terms.

3. If there is a threat that the abusive parent may abduct or otherwise harm the minor, the abuser may be prohibited from visiting the minor under a court decision until there is a change of circumstances.

Chapter V – Peculiarities of Proceedings on Facts of Violence against Women and/or Domestic Violence

Law of Georgia No 761 of 4 May 2017 – website, 25.5.2017

Article 16 – Police duties

1. If the police become aware of a fact of violence against women and/or domestic violence, they shall be obliged to respond to such facts immediately and take the measures prescribed by law.

2. If the police become aware of an act of violence, they shall be obliged to arrive at the scene immediately, regardless of whether they were notified by the victim, a witness, or a person specified in Article 11 of this Law.

3. If there is an act of violence, the police shall be obliged to:

a) take the measures prescribed by law to eliminate the facts of violence against women and/or domestic violence;

b) conduct separate interviews with the alleged victim of violence, witnesses, the abuser, including minors, and everything learned shall be written down;

c) inform the victim of violence of her/his rights;

d) at the request of the victim, or in case of emergency, ensure the transfer of the victim to a medical facility;

e) at the request of the victim, or in the case of emergency, with the consent of the victim, ensure the transfer of the victim and/or a dependent person to a shelter;

f) arrange for bringing the articles of first necessity and identification documentation from the victim's place of residence in the event of transferring the victim to another place;

f¹) remove, if necessary, the abuser, under this Law, from the victim's place of residence and ensure the victim's safety;

g) ensure the safety of persons who reported the act of violence;

h) issue a restraining order according to the procedure and conditions set out by this Law;

i) in case of disobedience of the decision to separate a minor taken by a social worker, issue an order restricting the rights regarding weapons.

3¹) The order restricting the rights regarding weapons, which is issued for a period of one month, shall define restrictions under the Law of Georgia on Weapons. The form of the order restricting the rights regarding weapons shall be approved by the Minister of the Internal Affairs of Georgia.

4. The police shall draw up a report on the facts of violence against women and/or domestic violence and measures taken, which shall be submitted to the supervising prosecutor.

5. The police report shall separately indicate the data on the facts of violence against women and/or domestic violence, measures taken, number of victims, measures taken against the abuser, as well as other data on the abuser.

6. The police shall supervise fulfilment of the requirements and conditions provided for in the issued restraining and protective orders, and the order restricting the rights regarding weapons.

7. Procedures for supervision over the fulfilment of the requirements and conditions provided by the protection and restraint orders and an order of restriction of rights related to weapons shall be established by the order of the Minister of Internal Affairs of Georgia.

Article 16¹ – Granting the status of victim

1. In addition to the state authorities specified by this Law (the relevant bodies of the Ministry of Internal Affairs of Georgia, investigative bodies, a court), the Victim Identification Group may also grant the status to a victim, unless the proceedings are pending for the issuance of a restraining or protective order to ensure the protection of the victim of violence or unless criminal prosecution measures are being carried out in connection with violence against women and/or domestic violence. The status of victim granted by the Victim Identification Group shall be valid for 18 months after its granting, and if the victim enjoys services of a shelter, the status shall be valid for the period specified by this Law for the placement of a victim in a shelter.

2. The composition, status, functions, authority and the rules of operation of the Interagency Commission working on the matters related to gender equality, violence against women and the domestic violence shall be determined by the regulations of the Interagency Commission, which shall be approved by the Government of Georgia.

3. The procedures for identification and determination of the status of victim by the Victim Identification Group shall be laid down by Ordinance of the Government of Georgia.

Article 17 – Rights and protection guarantees for victims/alleged victims

1. In accordance with the legislation of Georgia, a victim /an alleged victim may:

a) apply to relevant state authorities with a request to issue a restraining or protective order, but where the conditions of the issued restraining or protective order are breached, with a request to respond to such breach;

b) apply to relevant state authorities, depending on the severity of the facts of violence against women and/or domestic violence, or where the conditions of the issued restraining or protective order are breached, with a request to use criminal mechanisms for identification and prevention of violence against women and/or domestic violence;

b¹) request the imposition of electronic surveillance on an abuser in accordance with procedures established by this Law;

c) apply to the appropriate judicial authority and request compensation for the damages incurred as a result of violence against women and/or domestic violence;

[d) receive compensation if the damages incurred as a result of violence against women and/or domestic violence are not covered in accordance subparagraph (c) of this paragraph and/or from other sources determined under this Law and other legislative and subordinate normative acts of Georgia for protection and provision of services to the victim; (shall enter into force from 1 January 2022)]

e) enjoy staying in a shelter/crisis centre and the services available therein;

f) receive free legal advice, free primary and emergency medical and psychological assistance upon the placement in the shelter/crisis centre;

g) enjoy the right to suspend labour relations during his/her stay at the shelter/crisis centre; the term of suspension shall not exceed 30 calendar days during a year;

h) apply to the relevant state authorities to receive temporary residence permit to stay in Georgia, if the victim is an alien or a stateless person;

i) receive legal assistance at the public expense as provided for by the Law of Georgia on Legal Assistance;

j) enjoy legal and social protection mechanisms provided for by this Law and other legislative and subordinate normative acts of Georgia.

2. When criminal prosecution measures are carried out in cases of a domestic crime, violence against women and/or domestic violence, special protective measures provided under the Criminal Procedure Code of Georgia may be applied to protect the person affected by domestic crime, violence against women and/or domestic violence and other entities participating in the process.

3. At all stages of the criminal proceedings on domestic crime, violence against women and/or domestic violence, and during interrogation as well, account shall be taken of the best interests of a minor witness and a minor victim, according to their age and level of development. A minor witness and a minor victim may not be interrogated in connection with a domestic crime, violence against women and/or domestic violence; also, when issuing a restraining or protective order, a minor witness or a minor victim of domestic crime, violence against women and/or domestic violence may not be interviewed (asked to provide explanations) in the presence of the alleged abusive parent(s); it shall also be inadmissible to allow a person to act as a legal representative of the minor in the criminal proceedings if this person is an alleged abuser or if there are doubts as to his/her impartiality based on the nature of his/her relations with the abusive family member or if there are other cases of conflict of interests; it shall also be inadmissible to communicate or hand over to such person the testimony (interview report, explanations) given by the minor. In such cases, the parent's authority to represent the minor in criminal/administrative proceedings shall be deemed suspended for the time the proceedings are pending in court, until the final resolution of the dispute. A guardianship and custodianship authority shall assign the minor's representative who will represent the interests of the minor during court hearings.

4. If an alien or a stateless person is a victim, a temporary residence permit shall be issued for him/her as provided for by the legislation of Georgia based on the recommendation of a victim service provider or of the authority in charge of the proceedings.

5. If an alien or a stateless person is a victim, he/she may not be returned to the foreign country if it is assumed that in the case of return, his/her safety will not be protected and secured.

Article 17¹ – Raising awareness of victims and taking preventive measures

1. Authorities issuing restraining and protective orders, the Victim Identification Group, authorities handling criminal cases involving violence against women and/or domestic violence, facilities providing services to victims and other authorised bodies determined by the legislation of Georgia are obliged to provide information to victims in the language and form they understand about the mechanisms of legal and social protection and assistance, also the types of respective services available in the country for victims.

2. If necessary, facilities providing services to victims and other authorised bodies specified in the legislation of Georgia shall provide information to victims and assist them in drafting applications (claims) related to violence against women and/or domestic violence and claims on compensation for damages incurred as a result of violence against women and/or domestic violence, as well as help them in respective proceedings.

3. The penitentiary institution shall, in the case of the circumstances provided for by paragraph 4 of this article, immediately send a written notification to the Ministry of Internal Affairs of Georgia.

4. The Ministry of Internal Affairs of Georgia shall, based on the information furnished by the penitentiary institution, immediately notify a victim of the release or escape from the penitentiary institution, as well as a short leave from the prison facility under the procedure determined by Article 27 of the Imprisonment Code, also of the leaving of the prison facility for the preparation for release, of the person having committed violence against him/her (the perpetrator), in accordance with the procedures provided for by Article 71⁶(3) of the same Code; the Ministry shall also take the measures provided for by Article 11(2) of this Law.

5. An authorised employee of the Ministry of Internal Affairs of Georgia shall draw up a protocol for interviewing the victim. In the protocol he /she shall indicate the attitude of a victim towards a convict, and the attitude of the convict towards the victim during the serving of the sentence, and other information that may be relevant to assessing the risk of recurrence of violence against the victim.
