HEREIN: For European heritage Policies

Crowdfunding: Background variables on the contribution of the physical cultural heritage to gross value added and to jobs generated - Results

1. Introduction

Theme: Background variables on the contribution of the physical cultural heritage to gross value added and to jobs generated

Origine: European Heritage Heads Forum (EHHF)

2. Objectives of the Survey

The EHHF Economic Taskforce aims at formulating clear indicators for assessing the economic contribution of the physical cultural heritage, at European level, in order to answer the current need for evidence-based policies. The Economic Taskforce concentrates particularly on the contribution of the physical cultural heritage to gross value added and to jobs generated. Four most impacted economic sectors are:

- The building and construction sector;
- The tourism sector;
- The real estate and property sector;
- The cultural and creative industries sector

In order to develop impact indicators, the Taskforce needs to collect background variables at EU level. With this in mind, it was agreed that the Economic Taskforce would launch a crowdfunding through HEREIN. The Taskforce will analyze the responses provided to develop strong statements on the value of the cultural heritage sector in Europe. A report will be published in May 2016 and distributed at the EHHF meeting to be held in Switzerland. This report will be the first of its kind to assemble key figures on the built heritage in Europe, which should encourage EUROSTAT to produce new statistics about heritage.

Questions	2014	2015	Comments
Number of protected properties (31 December 2014 and 31 December 2015)	1 276	1 274	In Brussels-Capital Region, there are two types of legal protection: classification and registration on the conservation list. The former ensures strict protection of properties which the regional government regards as being of particular significance, and confers entitlement to grants for maintenance and restoration work. Registration on the conservation list is more flexible and enables the properties protected to be integrated more easily into contemporary life. For instance, certain alterations to change the use of the properties may be allowed, provided that their heritage interest is preserved. The status does not confer entitlement to regional grants. Protection of outstanding properties concerns monuments (all particularly outstanding buildings, including the installations or decorative elements forming integral parts thereof); complexes (all types of buildings that form a sufficiently coherent urban or rural complex); sites (all natural or manmade sites or combined sites); archaeological sites (all areas of terrain, geological formations, buildings, complexes or sites that include or may include archaeological properties). Sites and archaeological sites may include buildings which are not outstanding as such, but which form part of the site or archaeological site. The statistics relate to properties for which protection procedures are in progress and those definitively placed under protection. The legal effects of protection are the same in both cases, except that no grants are available from Brussels-Capital Region for work on properties not yet definitively placed under protection. The figures given represent protection decisions covering complexes, monuments, sites (including trees) and archaeological sites.
Surface area of protected properties (31 December 2014 and 31 December 2015)	29 324 897	29 378 327

Questions	2014	2015	Comments
Number of protected properties (31 December 2014 and 31 December 2015)	2 971	2 972	These are properties classified as monuments. Other buildings are also protected as architectural complexes and sites. However, in the case of protected complexes, the component elements are not recorded separately.
Surface area of protected properties (31 December 2014 and 31 December 2015)	27 170 000	27 180 000	Assessment was based on the surface area of buildings classified as monuments multiplied by 1.5 to take account of the elevation of certain monuments and the fact that only the facades and roofs of certain other properties are listed.
Number of protected archaeological sites (31 December 2014 and 31 December 2015)	10	10	Classification as an archaeological site was introduced in Walloon legislation only relatively recently and is not employed very frequently. However, before the concept was introduced, some sites and monuments (238) were classified on account of their archaeological value but were not recorded as such.
Budget for conservation, restoration, repair and maintenance spent by all government levels for protected properties in 2014 and 2015	€30 306 867	€25 828 764	These sums correspond to the Heritage Department's budgets for restoration and maintenance of classified monuments, plus 5% for the contributions by the municipalities and provinces.
Expenditure by owners for the conservation, restoration, repair and maintenance of protected properties in 2014 and 2015	€30 000 000	€26 000 000	The average rate of grants is 65%. The 35% at the expense of owners does not include expenditure for items for which no grants are available or for routine maintenance. It is therefore estimated that expenditure by owners is at least equivalent to that by the public authorities.
