

Legal Challenges in Bringing AI Evidence to the Criminal Courtroom

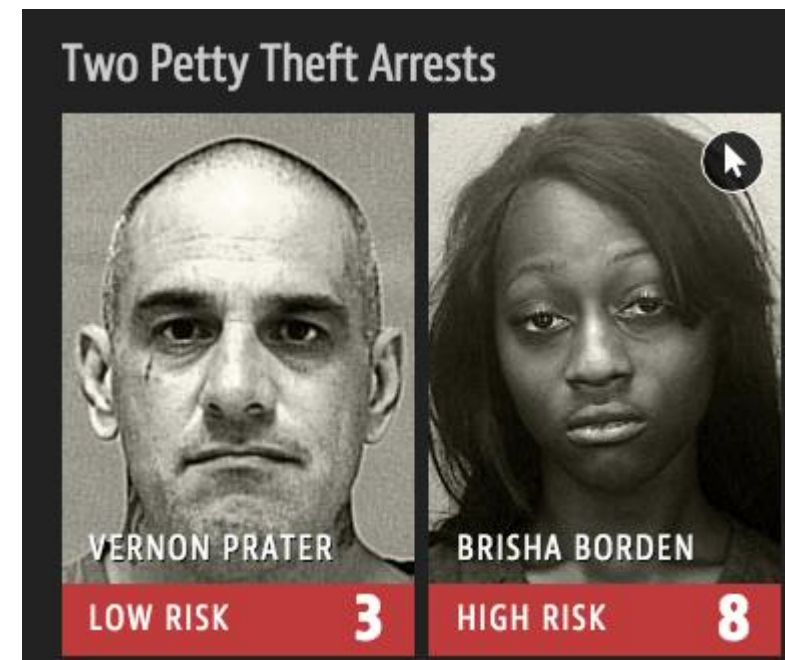

Katherine Quezada Tavárez

KU Leuven Centre for IT & IP Law (CiTiP) – imec
www.law.kuleuven.be/citip

*K. Quezada-Tavárez, P. Vogiatzoglou, & S. Royer (2021) – New Journal of European Criminal Law, Volume 12 Issue 4

AI and evidence: opportunities and risks

AI evidence – legal issues

- Does it meet procedural reqs of evidentiary material?
- Application of the exclusionary principle?
- How to ensure reliability (of raw data and its processing)?
- Can we explain how it came into being?
- Meaningful challenging and evaluation in court?

Ways forward

- Legal framework and guidelines
- Technical measures
- Training, training, training!

Thank you!

Special thanks to the research team:
Plixavra Vogiatzoglou, Sofie Royer

Much more in our research paper – available online!

Katherine Quezada Tavárez – katherine.quezada@kuleuven.be

This research received funding from the European Union's Horizon 2020 research and innovation programme under grant agreement No 786629, and the Cybersecurity Initiative Flanders.