Venue: Vienna, Austria

6-8 November 2024

Prepared by the Secretariat of the Lanzarote Committee

The Committee of the Parties to the Council of Europe Convention on the Protection of Children against Sexual Exploitation and Sexual Abuse (“the Lanzarote Committee”) held its 43rd meeting at the United Nations Office in Vienna, Austria, on 6-8 November 2024. The agenda and the list of participants are appended (Appendices I and II) to this meeting report.

1. Opening of the meeting and adoption of the agenda

1. Maria José CASTELLO-BRANCO (Chairperson, Portugal) opened the meeting. The Committee adopted its agenda.

2. Monitoring of the implementation of the Lanzarote Convention

2.1. “Protection of children against sexual abuse in the circle of trust: legal frameworks”

2.1.1. Presentation by Rapporteurs of the main trends emerging from the replies to the following questions:

- Support to children in investigative and judicial proceedings (Q17 and 18)
- Measures to protect children during investigation (Q19)
- Measures to protect children in judicial proceedings (Q20)

2. Corah CAPLES (Ireland), Nina VARRANEN-VALKONEN (Protect Children), and Madalena PAMPALK-LORBEER (Austria) acting as Rapporteurs presented their preliminary analysis of the information received from State Parties and civil society representatives in respect of Questions 17-20 of the thematic questionnaire on legal frameworks. During a discussion of the information presented, several Parties provided clarifications and commented on the preliminary findings and the wording of the preliminary recommendations. It was agreed that Parties would submit clarifying information, in particular in response to the Secretariat’s country-specific requests, as well as any comments on the presentations made by the Rapporteurs, by 20 November 2024.

2.1.2. Update from the Secretariat about next steps in the preparation of the monitoring report

3. Ekaterina MALAREVA (Legal Advisor, Secretariat to the Lanzarote Committee) noted that at this meeting the Committee had completed examining the information relevant to the questionnaire on legal frameworks which was launched in June 2023. The preliminary findings and observations shared by the Rapporteurs in their presentations would become part of a draft implementation report which would be made available to the Committee for examination and comments in advance of its next plenary meeting. The adoption of the implementation report on legal frameworks is tentatively scheduled for the second plenary meeting in June/July 2025. It is also proposed to the Committee to examine and adopt, at its next plenary meeting in March 2025, a draft questionnaire on policy frameworks, to be prepared by the Secretariat and shared in advance of that meeting. The Committee agreed to proceed on the basis of an updated indicative timeline (Appendix III).

2.2. Update on the procedure to assess State Parties' compliance with the 2nd monitoring round recommendations concerning the protection of children against sexual exploitation and sexual abuse facilitated by ICTs: addressing the challenges raised by child self-generated sexual images and/or videos

4. Ekaterina MALAREVA further confirmed to the Committee that Parties' replies to the compliance procedure launched on 1 and 2 October 2024 are expected by 1 March 2025. Preliminary analysis of the replies would be provided by the Secretariat at the Committee's second plenary meeting in June/July 2025. The Committee agreed to proceed in accordance with this indicative timeline (Appendix III).

2.3. Data collection mechanisms: Update on replies received to the survey and thematic exchange with representatives of UNODC, UNICEF, United Kingdom, and the project "CAN via MDS"

5. Páll MAGNÚSSON (Bureau member and representative of Iceland) moderated the thematic exchange on data. Agnes VON MARAVIĆ (Executive Secretary to the Lanzarote Committee) gave a preliminary analysis of the 32 replies received to the survey on data collection mechanisms on child sexual exploitation and sexual abuse, and informed the Committee that a draft report would be shared in early 2025.

- Martijn KIND (Statistician, UNODC Data, Analytics and Statistics Section, Research and Trend Analysis) presented the International Classification of Crime for Statistical Purposes (ICCS), emphasising that this is based on behavioural descriptions rather than criminal codes which allows for international classification. He highlighted that one challenge for data collection relates to the lack of centralisation of data and barriers to data sharing between institutions at national level.
- Anja TELTSCHIK (Child Protection Specialist – Monitoring, Evaluation and Data, UNICEF) presented the SDG targets and indicators related to violence against children highlighting data sources and informing the Committee that a questionnaire and survey model was being finalised to collect data on sexual violence experienced in childhood in the course of 2025. She underlined the scarcity of comprehensive and comparable data on violence against children – an issue also raised with many countries by the Committee on the Rights of the Child. She further presented the International Classification of Violence against children (ICVAC), emphasising the importance of data collection on all forms of violence against children, including sexual violence. The ICVAC provides an international standard to ensure rigorous methodology and ethical standards for data collection. She highlighted that challenges to data availability, comparability and quality include the highly fragmented and multisectoral nature of data collection on violence against children and referred to guidance developed by the Conference of European Statisticians on statistics on violence against children. She also indicated that lack of systematic screening may contribute to significant underreporting of sexual offences against children. She further emphasised the importance for countries to build a comprehensive system to monitor and evaluate violence against children (including all forms of sexual exploitation and sexual abuse) at national level and highlighted the need for clear mandates and the necessary resources for national statistical offices and line ministries to produce data on violence against children based on an agreed set of indicators.

- Leah BUCK (United Kingdom) informed the Committee about the various data collection mechanisms in place in the UK. She explained that the Government receives data in relation to child sexual exploitation and sexual abuse from a number of sources, including, but not limited to, the Department for Education (which has responsibility for safeguarding children, including child protection plans), Ministry of Justice (crime data, prosecutions and convictions relating to child sexual exploitation and abuse) and the National Referral Mechanism (regarding data related to child victims of modern slavery and trafficking that have a child sexual exploitation element). In addition, Law Enforcement agencies provide data relating to arrests and offence codes and data on registered sex offenders is collected via “Multi-Agency Public Protection Arrangements” (MAPPA). In addition, the UK Government gathers survey-based data through the annual Crime Survey for England and Wales. Relevant data is aggregated by the Office of National Statistics and reviewed by the Office for Statistics Regulation. To support improved data collection, the UK has an operational definition of child sexual exploitation as outlined in the “Child Sexual Exploitation Disruption Toolkit” which provides a common definition to all agencies involved in child protection and who in turn may contribute to data collection in this field (social workers, policy officers, housing officers, education staff, healthcare workers, charity staff and others). Leah BUCK highlighted that the first recommendation made by Independent Inquiry into Sexual Abuse in their final report (2022) related to improving data collection, notably through one single core dataset, and informed the Committee that the UK Government is exploring options available to implement this recommendation and improve data collection on child sexual exploitation and abuse, which in turn will support our continued understanding of this crime.
- George NIKOLAIDIS (Greece) presented the European Project to develop a co-ordinated response to Child Abuse and Neglect via a Minimum Data Set (Can via MDS). He highlighted the difficulties posed by a lack of systematic recording and reporting of data on child abuse and neglect (including sexual exploitation and sexual abuse) which can lead to an increased risk of re-victimisation, insufficient prevention efforts and underestimation of the extent of the phenomenon. He emphasised that the CAN via MDS project sought to build a system capable of collecting data from all relevant sectors that is compatible and comparable using the child abuse and neglect incident as the common registering unit. This was a result of research regarding data collection across 27 countries. The minimum data set includes information related to the child, the incident, the child’s living environment and their caregiver as well as the response provided by the service. He confirmed that the system, along with relevant manuals and training module, was free to use for States and (at the date of reporting) was available in 8 languages, he also confirmed that States could adjust some of the variables used to collect data. He emphasised that the use of this system could serve as a good basis to strengthen evidence-based policy making, targeted service provision and ultimately better outcomes for children facing abuse and neglect.

6. During the exchange, the Committee discussed relevant sources of information relating to research into the economic cost of child sexual exploitation and sexual abuse offending. UNODC raised the possibility of making some questions more specific regarding sexual offences against children and indicated that some questions under the Crime Trends Survey could be revised to accommodate this. UNICEF indicated that a number of tools and guidance to support States to collect data was available including via the Conference of European Statisticians. The Committee also discussed the challenges of gathering survey data directly from children, notably in terms of safeguarding, training for relevant professionals and the need to ensure adequate provision of support services for any children who disclosed abuse during such research exercises, emphasising that such research was necessary if done well.

7. The Committee took note of the scheduled examination of the report on the survey of data collection mechanisms planned in 2025. The Committee decided to further follow up on this work by dedicating its capacity building activities in 2025 to strengthening mechanisms for data collection and that the theme of the 18 November Day on the Protection of Children against Sexual Exploitation and Sexual Abuse would also be related to the Committee's work on data collection.

3. Capacity-building, exchange of information, experiences, and good practices

3.1. Debriefing of the 2024 capacity-building event and possible follow-up:
Examination and possible adoption of draft declaration on protecting children against sexual exploitation and sexual abuse facilitated by emerging technologies (T-ES(2024)09_en)

8. The Committee briefly exchanged on the capacity building workshop that took place on 5th November 2024, emphasising the importance for the Committee to examine a wide variety of responses and policies to tackle child sexual abuse facilitated by emerging technologies. Some members called for more research to understand why these technologies were being used to harm children and to better understand what responses are already in place in State Parties. There were also calls to strengthen protective measures to empower children to enjoy their rights both online and offline, and to pay particular attention to appropriate responses when such cases occur in schools to ensure child victims receive support and to tackle issues of underreporting.

9. Following the discussion, the Committee examined the draft declaration on protecting children against sexual exploitation and sexual abuse facilitated by emerging technologies (T-ES(2024)09). Naomi TREWINNARD (Legal Advisor, Lanzarote Committee Secretariat) presented the draft declaration to the Committee.

10. The Committee dedicated a large part of its meeting to this discussion. It was felt important to recognise the harm that these technologies can cause to children when used to facilitate sexual exploitation and sexual abuse. Discussions also highlighted that harmful or risky sexual behaviours among children added an additional layer of complexity for policy makers seeking to protect children against sexual abuse. At the same time, several delegations emphasised that it was important to recognise that children use technologies in positive ways in their everyday lives and to consider the ways that these technologies may be used to help prevent and disrupt sexual offences against children. There was discussion about the importance for States to pay careful attention to the ways in which these technologies were being used to facilitate offences when considering whether current criminal law provided adequate definitions of offences, and for child victims of sexual abuse facilitated by these technologies to be referred to victim support services.

11. In the context of the discussion on the draft declaration, the Committee noticed different viewpoints on the use of the term “survivor”. As a result, the Committee took note of the Secretariat’s proposal to prepare a concept note on the possibility of initiating reflection on the use of the term “survivor”.

12. The Committee adopted the revised declaration, agreed that it would be published immediately and to bring it to the attention of the Global Ministerial conference on ending violence against children (Bogota, 7-8 November 2024).

3.2. Information by members, participants and observers

3.2.1. Follow up to Lanzarote Committee decision (T-ES(2024)07) regarding the Global Ministerial Conference on ending violence against children (Bogota, 7-8 November 2024)

13. Agnes von MARAVIĆ informed the Committee that Marja RUOTANEN (Director General, Democracy and Human Dignity, Council of Europe) and Regína JENSDÓTTIR (Head of Children’s Rights Division, Council of Europe) represented the Council of Europe at the Global Ministerial Conference. The Declaration on emerging technologies adopted by the Committee at this meeting has been brought to the attention of the conference participants.

3.2.2. Annual round table with updates from civil society organisations

14. The Committee has continued its practice of holding an annual panel to showcase recent work of the observers to the Committee, in order to enrich and inform its work.

15. Nina VAARANEN-VALKONEN (Suojellan Lapsia (Protect Children)) updated the Committee about the implementation of its several research projects and practical programmes, as well as the insights gained:

- The survey of individuals searching for child sexual abuse material online had now been carried out in 21 languages and included 56,000 respondents, with questions aimed at establishing what drives their behaviour.
- The online self-help Redirection programme aimed at such individuals had been replicated in numerous countries and is available to any interested State. The organisation has also commenced a research project in collaboration with Johns Hopkins University to evaluate the effectiveness of the Redirection programme.
- The global survivor survey Our Voice has been replicated in numerous languages. Among other things, it has revealed even more severe trauma symptoms related to the experience of online child sexual exploitation and abuse compared to contact sexual offences (attributed, in part, to a victim's difficulties with grasping the imbalance of power when the offence took place online).
- A pilot of You are Enough parental peer support groups in Finland and Ireland has confirmed the importance of supporting caregivers to enable them to support the healing process in children, as well as the need for training for professionals working with families.

16. The organisation has also translated its child safety materials into several languages. In response to a question about help to children with the immigrant background, Protect Children informed the Committee about the availability of digital safety workshops online for kindergartens and schools which can be replicated in any country.

17. Matthew McVARISH (Brave Movement) shared information about the organisation's engagement at the Global ministerial conference on ending violence against children which took place in November 2024 in Bogota, Colombia, including hosting a few satellite and side events focused on the promotion of the Lanzarote Convention and digital safety and encouraging States to set up national survivor councils. A Global survivor council taskforce has been formed to help ensure survivor-centred reforms and use survivor insights for effective policy guidance.

18. Vineeca KUO (INHOPE) updated the Committee about the most recent expansion of the hotline network which now includes four new countries: Argentina, Moldova, Nigeria and Slovakia. 400+ professionals were trained by the network in 2024 to detect, report and remove CSEA content online. INHOPE has been active in EU advocacy efforts advocating for the inclusion of new mechanisms to process industry reports and the creation of a firm legal basis for the work of the hotlines. Its total volume of CSAM reports has increased by 25 per cent since 2022 signifying heightened awareness of the issue in the public domain. 88 per cent of the content is new underlining the needs to escalate awareness raising activities. The reports of illegal content have increased by 68% since 2022. The network highlighted that the global removing time for the illegal content within the network amounted to 2.5 days as opposed to 28 days for the content removal outside the network. INHOPE also shared information it has gathered concerning the profile of the victims identified in the illegal content: the majority fell within the pre-pubescent age range (3-13 years old) and were female. Among the emerging threats observed INHOPE listed non-consensual intimate image abuse and AI-generated CSAM.

19. Katerina MELISSARI (Hope for Children Centre Cyprus) informed the Committee about the development of a board game created in collaboration with two universities to support children in judicial proceedings, notably by familiarising children with legal terminology, their rights, judicial roles and participants. The game is led by trained professionals.

20. Hannah SWIRSKY (Internet Watch Foundation) shared with the Committee the findings of the IWF's 2024 AI CSAM report update. In addition, she informed the Committee that in the past six months the Internet Watch Foundation has seen a six per cent increase in confirmed reports containing AI-generated CSAM, and almost all of the content was found on publicly available areas of the Internet instead of the dark web. More than half of the AI generated content found in the past six months was hosted on servers in two countries, the Russian Federation (36%) and the United States (22%). Addresses of webpages containing AI generated child sexual abuse images are uploaded on to the Internet Watch Foundation's URL list which is shared with the tech industry to block the sites and prevent people from being able to access or see them. AI images are also hashed and tagged on a Hash List of more than two million images which can be used by law enforcement in their investigations. The report also included policy recommendations for governments and tech companies.

21. Aagje IEVEN (Missing Children Europe) presented to the Committee the final outputs of its CESAGRAM (Comprehensive European Strategy against Grooming and Missing) project. They included notably an online awareness raising platform CESAGRAM Ville promoting educational activities aimed at preventing grooming and child sexual abuse by using gamification elements. They also included an online toolkit to be used for monitoring online spaces, including websites and social media, to assess risks of grooming behaviour and prevent it through early warnings.

3.2.3. Tour de table of members on any developments since the last meeting reflecting the impact of the Lanzarote Convention at national level

22. The Committee was informed of:

- Legislative amendments adopted, proposed or being prepared to provide for free legal aid for child victims in criminal proceedings and protect children against early or forced marriages (Azerbaijan), strengthen criminal sanctions for CSAM offences (Finland), introduce new criminal law definitions relevant to sexual offences against children (Republic of Moldova), abolish statutes of limitations in respect of sexual offences against children (Montenegro), codify victims' rights (United Kingdom), prevent online child sexual exploitation and abuse and secure electronic evidence (Tunisia);

3.2.4. Update by the European Commission, Europol and other participants to the Lanzarote Committee

23. Emerick LOVASZ (European Commission, Directorate General for Migration and Home Affairs) informed the Committee that the proposal for an EU Regulation to prevent and combat child sexual abuse was still under negotiation at the Council of the EU, whereas the interim regulation had been extended until April 2026. The prolongation of the interim regulation foresaw the harmonisation of reporting templates for companies which the European Commission was in the process of preparing. The work on the recast of EU Directive 2011/93 was still ongoing in the Council of the EU and the European Parliament.

24. Anton Toni KLANČNIK (Europol) shared information about Europol's 2024 Internet Organised Crime Threat Assessment (IOCTA), a document updated on an annual basis since 2014, which is compiled with the assistance of operational and strategic partners and other stakeholders. The Committee was also informed about the development of an online platform for children Help4U (to be launched shortly), designed together with children, to assist children seeking help in unsafe situations. Members were invited to provide information about their own similar child-friendly resources which Europol could share and promote on the Help4U platform.

25. For an update on recent work on children's Rights of the Parliamentary Assembly Committee of Social Affairs, Health and Sustainable Development, please see appendix IV.

3.2.5. Update on the draft UN Convention against Cybercrime

26. Celso CORACINI, Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Officer, Division for Treaty Affairs, UNODC, updated the Committee on the background to the UN Cybercrime Treaty and emphasised that the Treaty sought to criminalise cyber-dependent crimes in a similar approach to that taken by the Council of Europe Cybercrime Convention. He confirmed that the provisions related to child sexual abuse material are intended to cover all behaviours listed in the Lanzarote Convention and that the provision on solicitation and grooming was drafted in line with the Lanzarote Convention and the Committee's opinion on Article 23 Lanzarote Convention. He informed the Committee that the Convention was expected to be adopted and opened for signature in December 2024.

27. Denise MAZZOLANI, Council of Europe Cybercrime Division also updated the Committee regarding the complementarity between the UN treaty and the Cybercrime Convention. She underlined that UN Cybercrime Treaty does not reflect the procedural provisions of the second additional protocol to the Cybercrime Convention on co-operation and disclosure of electronic evidence. She suggested that it could be helpful to especially have a legal analysis of Article 20 Lanzarote Convention and Article 9 Cybercrime Convention along with Article 14 of the UN Cybercrime Convention.

28. During the discussion, the Committee emphasised the importance of ensuring that the implementation of these Conventions remained complementary to the implementation of the Lanzarote Convention, highlighted the importance of ensuring good visibility of its work in this context and also emphasised the importance of referring to relevant UNCRC work, such as General Comment number 25. The Committee agreed to continue following the progress of this instrument and to initiate reflection on the relationship between the Lanzarote Convention and the various instruments proposed at international level.

3.2.6. Follow-up to the report "Civil Society's Perspectives on Implementation of the Lanzarote Convention"

29. Dorothea CZARNECKI (Head of Anti-Human Trafficking and Child Protection, Forensik IT) presented to the Committee a summary of the findings and recommendations of a report "Civil Society's Perspective on Implementation of the Lanzarote Convention" co-authored by her in her position of a representative of ECPAT International, an observer to the Committee, together with Zsuzsanna RUTAI, in 2021-2022. The recommendations of the report aiming to strengthen the involvement of civil society in the implementation of the Lanzarote Convention included the following:

- enhancing the visibility of the Lanzarote Convention among civil society organisations to strengthen their engagement and advocacy efforts,
- increasing incentives for civil society's participation through awareness raising and capacity building initiatives,

  - building two-way communication channels between the Lanzarote Committee and national civil society organisations, led by observers to the Committee, and
  - promoting civil society engagement opportunities with targeted advocacy tools, training, and resources tailored to child protection needs.
30. Dr CZARNECKI proposed the following questions for the Committee’s reflection:
- How can the Lanzarote Committee create a sustainable and inclusive framework that maximizes civil society engagement, bolsters the Convention’s impact, and enhances child protection efforts across State Parties?
  - What can Committee members, participants and observers do?
  - How can the Secretariat help advance civil society participation?
31. In view of time constraints, the Committee decided to postpone the discussion about the follow-up to be given to the report to its next plenary meeting.
