From Losing Hope to Finding Legal Certainty: A Journey to Claim Your Property Rights in Albania

The small apartment on the second floor of a former communist-era building, located in a main road not far from the centre of the capital Tirana is always busy. Under the watchful eyes of concerned citizens, the officials of Tirana Legal Aid Society (TLAS) explain procedures in a simplified manner and provide valuable information regarding their problems in registering the property. There we meet Alma, a divorced mother of 3 children, coming from the small southeastern town of Përmet. He explains that for 36 years she was not able to find a solution to inherit her family property in her hometown.
