

Training of Experts The Human Rights-based approach in Combating Violence against Women

Tunis, Tunisia
12-14 July 2017

Concept Note

BACKGROUND

Deeply rooted in gender inequalities and discrimination, violence against women is a serious human rights violation¹ that can take different forms² and that is common worldwide. Violence against women must be addressed on multiple levels and multiple sectors of society simultaneously.

In line with the Council of Europe (CoE) Gender Equality Strategy, the CoE policy towards neighbouring regions³ and the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals, particularly Goal 5 to achieve gender equality and empower all women and girls, the North-South Centre of the Council of Europe (NSC) aims to contribute to the empowerment of women in the Southern Mediterranean region by addressing the obstacles that hinder the achievement of their full potential namely through awareness raising and training activities.

Considering the importance of a comprehensive integrated approach to prevent and combat violence against women, the co-ordination and co-operation of all stakeholders both at national and international level, could ensure the implementation of national strategies in the area of prevention and protection. The NSC promotes through civil society organisations the CoE standards and its human rights-based approach as guidance tools to eliminate violence against women through multi-stakeholders' and peer co-operation, as well as through the sharing of good practises.

ACTIVITY DESCRIPTION

In order to reinforce efforts to prevent and combat violence against women, the NSC will provide a training of experts on preventing and combating violence against women in the Southern Mediterranean. The aim of the activity is to establish a network of trainers/experts in the Southern Mediterranean countries enabling them to disseminate CoE and NSC expertise on preventing and combating violence against women at the national level, while taking into account the current national contexts and needs.

On the basis of a selection process that will be held in consultation with relevant stakeholders from Southern Mediterranean countries, experienced workers in the field of violence against women will not only get acquainted with the principles of the CoE's standards, but they will also be provided with a co-ordinated and multi-agency methodology and a victim-centred and human rights-based approach.

Additionally, the network of experts monitored by the NSC will contribute to raise awareness about specific issues faced by women in Southern Mediterranean countries, as well as to promote
