1. Judicial organisation in Slovak Republic (2022 data)

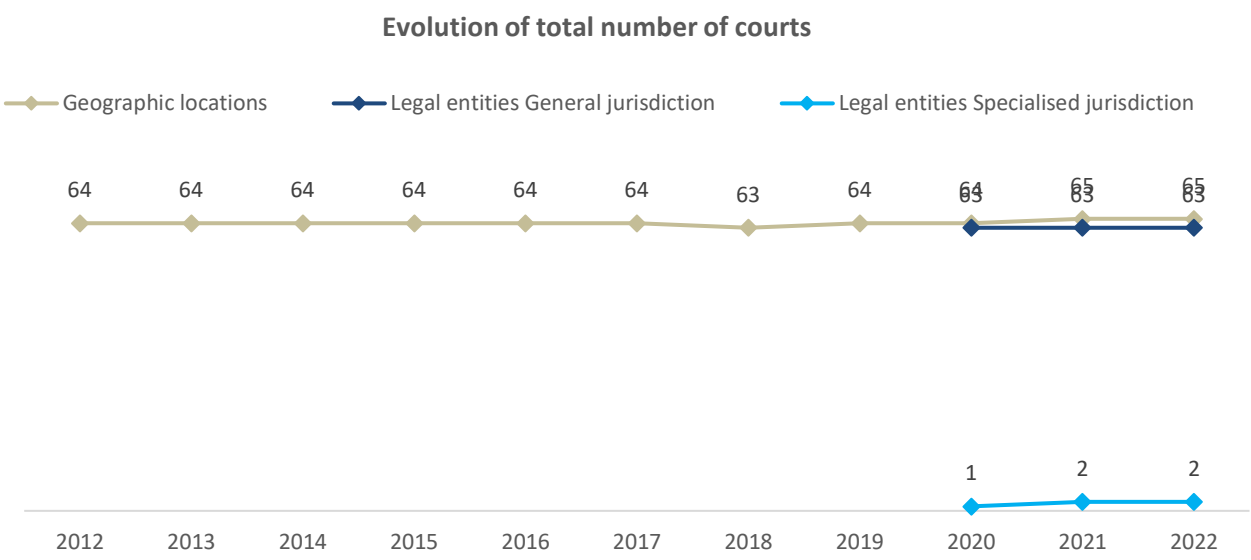

According to 2022 data, there are 63 courts of general jurisdiction and 2 specialised courts (legal entities).

The total number of courts as geographic locations is 65.

It's worth noting that Slovak Republic, which has a system with first, second, and third instances for most cases, adopts a two-tier system for administrative cases. The new Supreme Administrative Court, introduced in 2021, has been positioned as an appellate court for administrative cases, handling appeals from lower administrative courts.

In 2020 the provided number of specialised courts changed from 9 to 1 because of a better understanding of the question. In Slovak Republic there are 8 administrative courts in fact, but they cannot be considered as legal entities as they are part of the regional courts, and they are already counted in the number of general jurisdiction courts.

The distribution between first instance general jurisdiction courts and first instance specialised courts in Slovak Republic is 98,2% - 1,8% (distribution tendency in EU: 72,8% - 27,2%).

Slovak Republic has the highest number of general jurisdiction courts in relation to specialised courts.

In the Slovak court system, there are 8 Regional courts that possess dual jurisdiction. These Regional courts function as appellate courts with comprehensive authority in civil, commercial, and criminal cases. In the realm of appellate procedures, they adjudicate on appeals lodged against the rulings of all 54 District courts situated within their respective local jurisdictions. Concurrently, the Regional courts exercise jurisdiction as the primary courts in administrative matters, effectively serving as administrative courts.

The Specialised Criminal Court holds competence in adjudicating grave criminal cases explicitly delineated in § 14 of the Criminal Procedure Code. These cases encompass offenses such as premeditated murder, corruption, terrorism, organised crime, severe economic crimes, and actions detrimental to the financial interests of the European Union, among others.

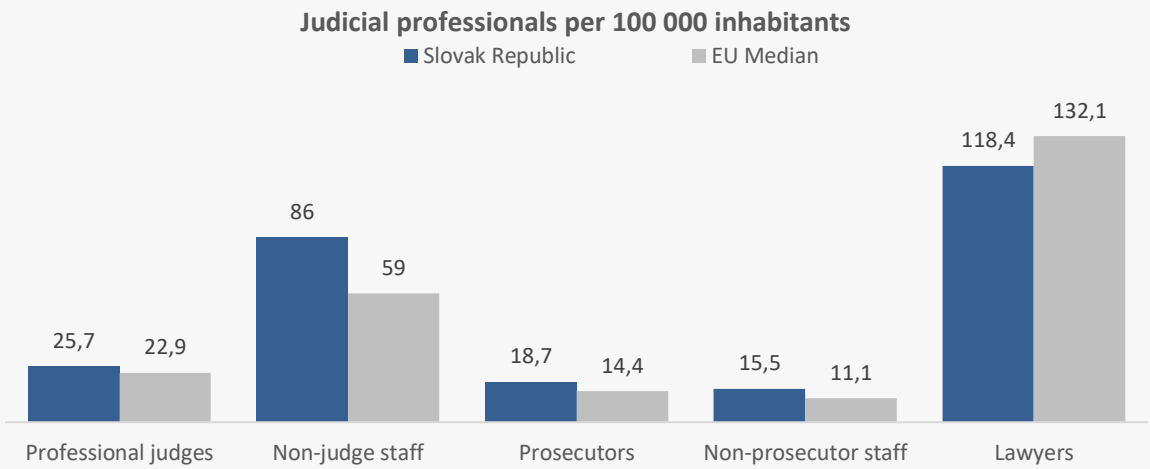

The highest instances within the Slovak judiciary are the Supreme Court, the Supreme Administrative Court, and the Constitutional Court.

In this cycle, the total number of female professional judges (all instances) is 889, which represents 63,6% of the total number of judges.

The total number of judges is distributed among the different judicial instances in the following way: 917 are sitting in the first instance courts (of which 599 are female); 400 are sitting in the second instance courts (of which 245 are female) and 80 are sitting at the Supreme Court (of which 45 are female).

Compared with the EU, the distribution of professional judges presents a relatively higher percentage in second and third instances.

It should be specified that, in this particular year following the introduction of the new Supreme Administrative Court, the distribution of administrative judges per instance is made based on the instance level of the court where they work and not based on the instance of the cases for which they are responsible of, which impacts the proportions.

In Slovak Republic, the distribution of judges by categories of cases is possible as presented in the graph on the right.

When comparing the data presented in the table right above with the previous one, a discrepancy of 11 judges in the overall count comes to light. It is imperative to clarify that the Slovak Republic used a different methodology for these two questions. In the second, it involved calculating an annual average for the number of judges per matter, instead of the critical moment of 31st of December.

The figures mentioned represent the fundamental gross salaries of judges and prosecutors, exclusive of any bonuses and supplements. According to the Act on Judges (No. 385/2000 Coll.), a judge's average monthly salary is equivalent to that of a Member of Parliament. At the outset of their careers, judges receive 90% of this salary. Judges serving in the Supreme Court receive a monthly salary equal to 130% of a Member of Parliament's salary. Judges are entitled to two additional monthly salaries, provided they meet the conditions specified by law. The annual average salary total mentioned in this questionnaire considers 14 months of salaries.

All bonuses and supplements are defined by law. Specific supplements are allocated to judges of the Specialised Criminal Court and judges of the Supreme Court who adjudicate on appeals against the decisions of the Specialised Criminal Court. The actual net salary depends on various individual factors such as the number of children and participation in voluntary pension security schemes, among others.

Similar regulations apply to the salaries of prosecutors (Act on Prosecutors and Trainee Prosecutors No. 154/2001 Coll.). The average salary of a prosecutor is on par with that of a judge. Newly appointed prosecutors receive 85% of this salary, while prosecutors at the General Prosecutor's Office earn a salary equivalent to that of a Supreme Court judge. Prosecutors are also entitled to two additional monthly salaries. Supplements for heads of prosecutor offices mirror those for court presidents at the corresponding level. Prosecutors at the Special Prosecutor's Office are entitled to the same supplement as judges at the Specialised Criminal Court.

The data are not collected in this structure in Slovak Republic.

Nevertheless, it can be expounded here that compensations for excessive length of proceedings may be granted by the Constitutional Court when it determines a violation of the right to a trial within a reasonable time. On the other hand, compensation for wrongful arrest or conviction, as well as the non-enforcement of court decisions, can be sought through civil proceedings. Individuals who have suffered harm can pursue compensation from the state under the provisions of the Act on State Liability for Damage Resulting from the Exercise of Public Power.

4. Performance of courts in Slovak Republic (2022 data)

• Efficiency indicators

◦ Clearance Rate (CR) and Disposition Time (DT)

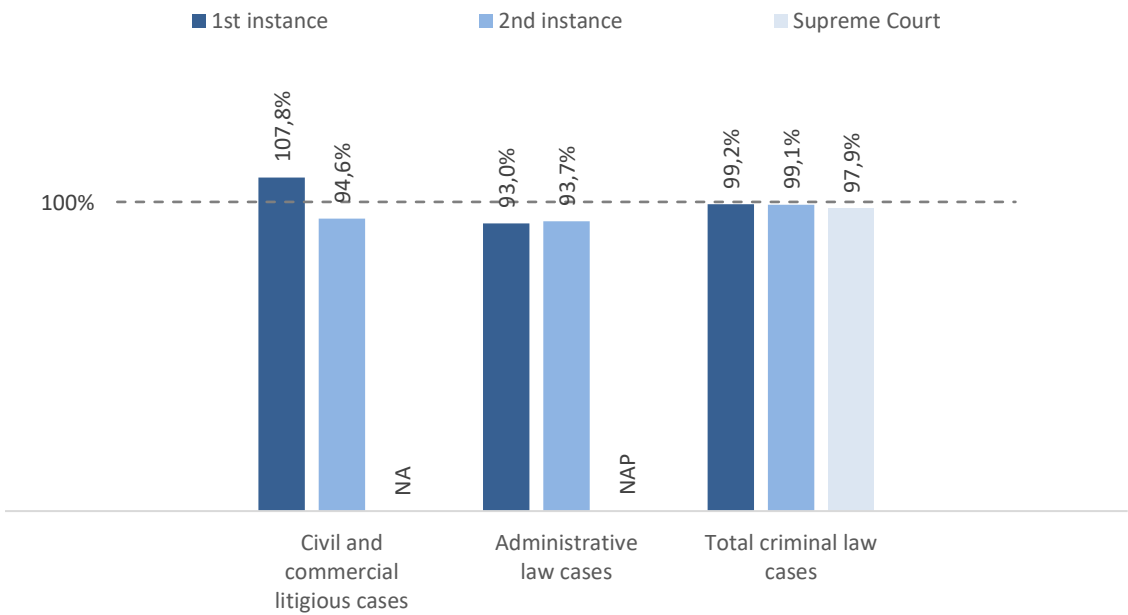

The Clearance Rate shows the capacity of a judicial system to deal with the incoming cases. A Clearance Rate of 100% and higher does not generate backlog.

The Disposition Time determines the estimated number of days necessary for a pending case to be solved in a court.

Clearance Rate by instance and by matter in 2022 (%)

DispositionTime by instance and by matter in 2022 (days)

In Slovak Republic, in first instance, civil and commercial litigious cases are resolved faster than the EU median while the DT in second instance coincides with the median. As regards administrative cases, the disposition time is significantly higher than the median. Criminal law cases are resolved faster than the EU median. In 2022, Slovak judges resolved less cases than received (Clearance rate is below 100%) for civil and commercial litigious cases second instance and adminstrative cases.

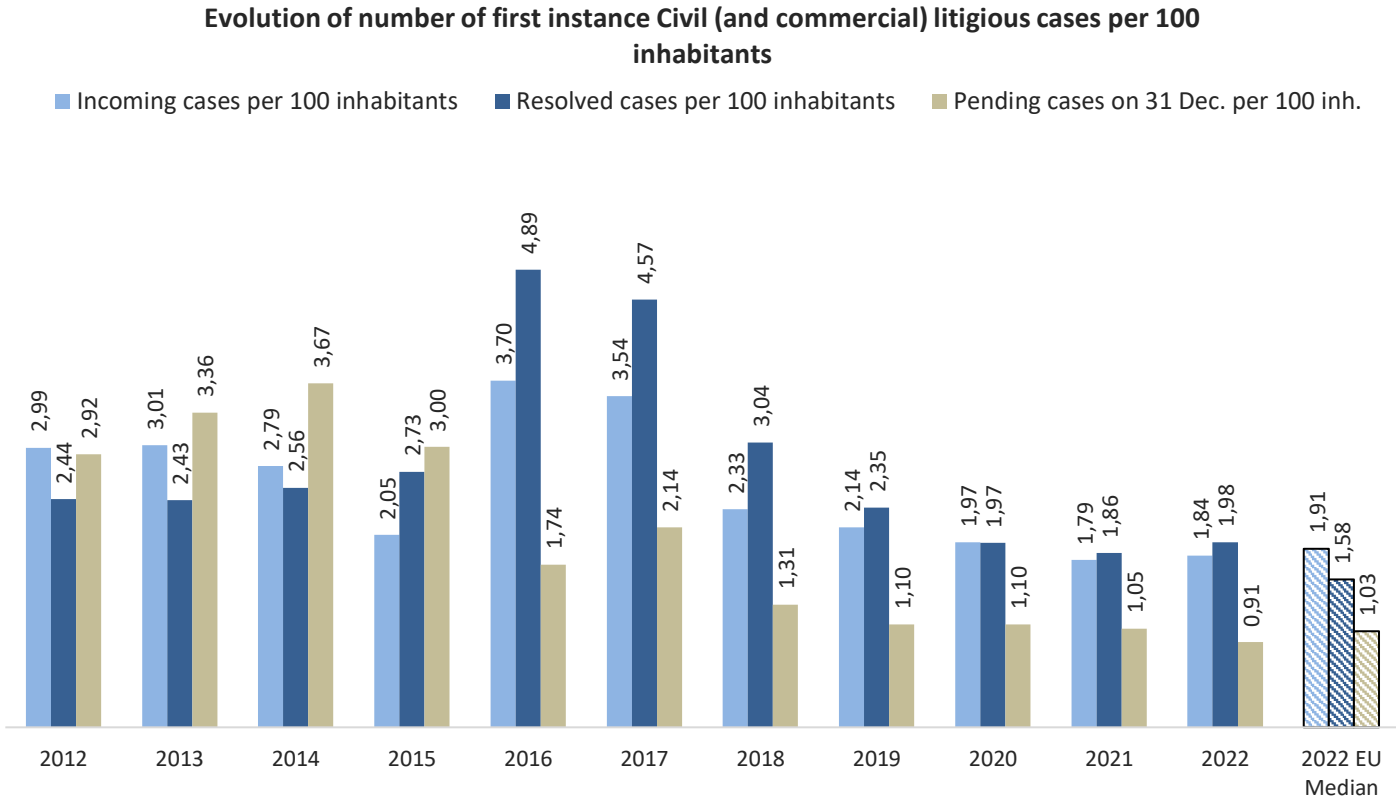

The collected statistical data for the Supreme Court do not distinguish the litigious and non-litigious cases, causing the non-availability of the data at this level for civil and commercial litigious cases.

As regards the methodology of presentation of data, it should be noticed that the cases of the Supreme Administrative Court are counted as second instance as this courts acts as an appeal court for administrative cases.

It's important to highlight that the table above differ from the Slovak legal system. In Slovak Repulic's criminal proceedings, a significant number of cases in the preliminary stages are closed by the investigator or police officer, whereas only cases closed by the prosecutor are here considered. Additionally, matters concluded by the prosecutor may also be resolved through diversions in criminal proceedings, whereas the current table only accounts for cases terminated by the prosecutor. Prosecutors in Slovak Republic possess slightly different powers during the preliminary proceedings compared to the legal systems of other countries, resulting in variations in data interpretation.
