Architectural Heritage

Bebyggelseregistret, BBR (Data Base of Built Heritage) is a national registry holding information about the built heritage. The represented data ranges from traditional log cabins and old industrial quarters to modern city buildings. As of October 2011 there are approximately 80 000 searchable building records, with around 13000 listed as National Monuments, Historical Buildings and Church Monuments. Updates and new entries are made continually.
Records and data are compiled from surveys, documentations, archives and printed materials and then correlated by County Museums, The Swedish Church, County Administrative Boards, and Universities in collaboration with The Swedish National Heritage Board.

Integrated Approach

2.5.A
As a member state Sweden have to follow the EU COUNCIL DIRECTIVE 93/7/EEC of 15 March 1993 on the return of cultural objects unlawfully removed from the territory of a Member State.
2.5.B
The Heritage Conservation Act (1988:950) governs the illicit trade with ancient finds that will accrue to the State or be offered to the State.
2.5.C
At The National Police there is one full-time Chief Superintendent who is responsible for coordinating measures to control heritage crime.
2.5.D
The Swedish National Heritage Board tries to some extent to monitor the sales of archaeological objects on the two largest swedish aution sites on the Internet.
2.5.F
The State doesn't require any policy, but ICOM Code of Ethics for Museums is to be respected by all Swedish museums.
