I. Main achievements

This chapter presents short summaries of a selection of the main reforms and achievements reported in final resolutions since the Convention system was amended in 1998 by Protocol No. 11, with a clear focus on recent reforms, referring however also to important earlier developments.

In view of the wealth of cases closed, the selection concentrates on those which have led to changes of legislation, government regulations, the adoption of new policies or general guidance from superior courts. As a rule, the overview does not cover information on measures providing individual redress to applicants.

The reforms are in principle presented in the order corresponding to the thematic domains used in the specialised database HUDOC-EXEC of the Department for the Execution of Judgments of the European Court of Human Rights.

Many reforms address issues which appear to be on-going challenges in member states. The effects of reforms adopted at one point in time may thus need to be monitored and possibly revisited as conditions change.¹

Definitions of the terms used in the context of the supervision of the execution of the European Court's judgments are available in the dedicated Glossary.

¹ The presentation is limited to the information provided at the time of the adoption of the final resolution. It is recalled in this context that the Committee of Ministers has issued Recommendation \(2004\)5 on the verification of the compatibility of draft laws, existing laws and administrative practice with standards laid down in the European Convention on Human Rights.

custodial sentence, deprivation of liberty “for assistance purposes” on the sole ground of endangering others.

➤ Detention in view of expulsion

In 1981, the Federal Act on International Mutual Assistance in Criminal Matters abolished the impugned previous legislation and was to be strictly applied by the Federal Police Department and the Federal Court, also granting detainees the right to adversarial proceedings in view to their extradition.

➤ Preventive detention

In 2021, an amendment to the Code of Criminal Procedure established the necessary legal basis in the area of detention on public safety grounds in cases involving separate subsequent judicial decisions.

➡ Functioning of justice

➤ Fairness of proceedings

The 1989 Act on municipal sentences of the Canton of Vaud provided for an appeal against decisions rendered by the Police Court (or the President of the Juvenile Court in the case of minors) concerning sentences pronounced by a municipality.

In criminal proceedings, the testimony of an undercover police agent is declared inadmissible when the defendant has not had the possibility to confront that agent.

A 2002 federal law regulating the profession of lawyers provided them access to a court in all cases of disputes and thus to a public hearing, including in lawyers' disciplinary proceedings.

In 2018, the statutory limitations in cases related to compensation claims for death or bodily injuries (including for asbestos victims) was extended to 20 years. The Foundation “Asbestos Victims Compensation Fund”, created in 2017, offered asbestos victims rapid access to several types of benefits, including financial compensation.

➤ Access to a court and public hearing

Legislation adopted in 2019 established procedural rules allowing for public hearings in disciplinary and/or ethical matters before the Court of Arbitration for Sport in Lausanne, upon an athlete's request.

➤ Improved procedural safeguards with regard to sanctions adopted by the UN Security Council

In 2021, the Federal Department of Economics, Education and Research concluded after in-depth reflection that the implementation of the Court's judgment does not require legislative changes. Persons (natural or legal) targeted by UNSC sanctions may submit a delisting request to the Federal Department of Economics, Education and Research, which has full power of examination and whose decision is subject to appeal before the Federal Administrative Court, then, if necessary, before the Federal Court. Access to a judge is thus fully guaranteed.

➤ Remedies against excessive length of proceedings

A total revision of the 1943 Federal Judicature Act was carried out by the Federal Office of Justice and Police in 1983 and the Federal Court was reinforced to address its excessive workload.

➤ Presumption of innocence

The case concerns defamation proceedings, in which the defendant was ordered to pay the costs of investigation, trial and compensation in respect of the private prosecutors' expenses despite the fact that the criminal action was dismissed due to prescription. The European Court's judgment was widely published and disseminated to the national authorities.

Minelli (8660/79)

Final Resolution
CM/ResDH(83)10

The European Court found a violation of the Convention in this case, in which the applicants, as heirs, had been convicted of a tax-related offence allegedly committed by the deceased. The authorities in charge of implementing the 1990 Act on the direct federal tax aligned their practice with the Court's judgment. A further law in 2004 "on the removal of heirs' responsibility for tax fines" codified this change in administrative practice.

➤ Families of migrants under expulsion

Legislation adopted in 2008 allowed spouses awaiting removal and placed in different cantons to join each other and live together, in particular, in cases of a prolonged impossibility to implement the forced removal decision.

➤ Access to one's children and international child abduction

The measures to address international child abductions were improved in 2007, in line with the Hague Convention: the transfer of competence to a single cantonal court accelerated return procedures; preference was given to the conclusion of friendly settlements in conflicts between parents; decisions on return were combined with concrete enforceable measures related to visiting rights; cantons were required to designate a single authority in charge of enforcement.

➤ Protection of correspondence

2012 legislative amendments safeguarded lawyers' correspondence, in cases in which parties had been subject to secret surveillance measure who were neither suspect nor accused of an offence. The new legislation set out in detail the conditions and procedures required for the interception of telephone calls and the monitoring of postal correspondence and telecommunication.

operations. In addition, reimbursement shall no longer be refused if a two-year observation period has not been respected and the urgency of the operation has been mandated by medical reasons.

➤ Prohibition of begging

The judgment concerned the disproportionate interference with the private life of a vulnerable Roma person, the applicant was fined for unintrusive begging and subsequently imprisoned for five days for non-payment of that fine. Following the judgment, the canton of Geneva ceased enforcing its absolute ban on begging, rendering more than 18,200 pending cases without legal effect. Legislative reforms then followed: in December 2021, Geneva amended its Criminal Code to remove the absolute ban while prohibiting only organised, exploitative or location-specific begging. In Vaud, a 2024 amendment limited sanctions to aggressive, intrusive or deceptive forms of begging, with prior warnings required before sanctioning passive begging in sensitive areas. In Basel-Stadt, a 2021 partial ban prohibited begging in several public spaces, including parks and near schools; in 2023, the Federal Tribunal found the prohibition of begging in public parks disproportionate. Other cantons have introduced or maintained similar targeted reforms. No comparable cases have since been brought before domestic courts.

➤ Freedom of expression

➤ Broadcasting

The case concerns the refusal by the “Commercial Television Company” to broadcast a publicity by the applicant, an animal protection association, in view of its “clear political character”, without striking a fair balance between the general interest of the community and the interests of the individual. The Court’s judgment was disseminated to all authorities and agencies directly concerned and was presented in the quarterly bulletin of the Federal Ministry of Justice.

The Article 10 violation in this case concerned the applicant company’s complaint that the Swiss Post and Telecommunications Authority had made reception of television programmes from a Soviet telecommunications satellite by means of an aerial dish subject to the consent of the broadcasting State. The 1922 Federal Act regulating telegraph and telephone communications strengthened one’s right to receive and rebroadcast, through the local distribution network defined in a licence, radio and television programmes in compliance with the provisions of relevant international treaties.

Autronic (12726/87)

Final Resolution
CM/ResDH(91)26

The 2004 Law on the Police in the Canton of Graubünden introduced a precise definition of a “grave and urgent situation” (the security of the “World Economic Forum” of Davos in the present case) and defined the measures which the cantonal police are entitled to take in order to protect public order and safety. Such legislation is also enforced in other Swiss cantons.

➡ Right to marry

Family law legislation, adopted in the 1990s, removed from courts the competence to prohibit a spouse who had been found to be at fault in divorce proceedings from remarrying for a given period.

Final Resolution
CM/ResDH(94)77

➡ Protection against gender-based discrimination

A 1994 amendment to the Civil Status Ordinance granted the husband the right to put his family name in front of his wife's, which he had taken as his family name following marriage.

Burghartz (16213/90)

Final Resolution
CM/ResDH(94)61

The gender-based discrimination against bi-national couples was abrogated by law in 2011, providing each spouse the right to retain their surname or to choose the other spouse's surname.

Losonci Rose and Rose
(664/06)

Final Resolution
CM/ResDH(2012)102

In 2016, the Swiss Federal Social Insurance Office issued a circular to all competent authorities indicating that a reduction in a person's (in this case the applicant was a woman) working time for purely family reasons related to childcare should no longer be a reason for revising decisions granting them disability benefits. The authorities planned to introduce legislation to further align current practice with the European Court's case-law.

Di Trizio (7186/09)

Final resolution
CM/ResDH(2017)128

Following the Court's judgment, criticising the discriminatory treatment of a widower, taking care full-time of children, by terminating his survivor's pension when youngest child reached adulthood, while a widow in the same situation would not have lost her pension entitlement, the authorities adopted a transitional regime. It provides that current and future widower's pensions will no longer end when the last child reaches the age of 18 and it will continue to be paid. The transitional regime came into force on 11 October 2022, when the Grand Chamber delivered its judgment, and it will last until the entry into force of a forthcoming revision of the social benefits of survivors which is aimed at ending various aspects of inequality of treatment, including the issue in question.

The Council of Europe is the continent's leading human rights organisation. It comprises 46 member states, including all members of the European Union. The Committee of Ministers is the Council of Europe's decision-making body, composed by the foreign ministers of all 46 member states. It is a forum where national approaches to European problems and challenges are discussed, in order to find collective responses. The Committee of Ministers participates in the implementation of the European Convention on Human Rights through the supervision of the execution of judgments of the European Court of Human Rights.
