CALL FOR PARTICIPANTS

Deadline for applications: 20 September 2020

The call is relaunched as the activity had to be postponed from May to November, and therefore only meant for new applicants – applicants who submitted their application for the previous deadline have been already notified.

Background of RomaActiveYouth

The Roma Youth Action Plan (hereafter RYAP) was a project of the Youth Department of the Council of Europe which, between 2011 and 2019, supported the participation and inclusion of Roma youth across Europe. Capacity-building and the development of competencies of young Roma, organisations and networks were a central part of the RYAP project and a way of supporting the autonomy and participation of Roma youth in areas of their concern. Issues of structural discrimination and antigypsyism were identified as main concerns of Roma youth as structural obstacles for access to their human rights.

The RYAP finished by the end of 2019 and produced a variety of experiences and good practices. A seminar "Roma Youth Participation: What Now?", held in September 2019 at which a study on the results achieved came to the following conclusions:

- The RYAP set a positive example of an approach in inclusion of Roma youth in the development of interventions and actions in the Council of Europe. It is important to continue the double mainstreaming approach of including Roma in youth programmes and Youth in Roma programmes;
- Human Rights Education training courses based on Mirrors, as well as Dikh he na Bister activities, should be promoted as approaches for capacity building in identity, history, access to rights and other related topics. These courses, based on the needs and input of Roma young people, should seek to involve Roma trainers and become replicable by Roma youth organisations to the extent possible.
- A lack of capacity remains the greatest obstacle Roma youth and their organisations face to implement their own projects.
- Discrimination against Roma also continues to be a barrier for Roma organisations. Roma youth have structural disadvantages that hinder their chances to organise themselves, access public spaces and funding as well as, influence the policy and programme agendas. Many professional public service providers continue to lack basic knowledge about the Roma communities and addressing antigypsyism;
- Stakeholders and European societies are reluctant to acknowledge that the main root of the challenges faced by Roma youth today is structural racism;
- Although social rights are fundamental rights, the access and the implementation of these rights in the case of Roma children and youth is lagging behind;
- It is necessary to train and create networks of Roma mentors to inspire young people, provide career and educational advice and foster self-confidence;
- Not enough Roma youth take part in European projects, consultation processes and activities. Only a limited number of Roma youth grassroots leaders and organisations exist. And yet, it is apparent that even those Roma youth voices are neglected and not being heard in mainstream spaces. Roma youth organisations still lack access to youth councils at the local and national levels.;
- Funding for Roma youth organizations is scarce, primarily for grassroots organisations, as most donors choose to engage with and fund visible national and international organisations. Co-financing and pre-financing requirements greatly limit the participation of small organisations in application processes.
- Structural factors which hinder the participation of Roma youth not only in decision-making bodies but also in other areas that are relevant to them. There is still a need for the recognition of the specific needs of Roma youth in the policy making processes;

- It is crucial for the Council of Europe to conclude their experiences from the RYAP with a new standard-setting document in the form of a Committee of Ministers recommendation on Roma youth participation. This standard should reflect the experiences from the double mainstreaming approach, used in the RYAP, and provide member states with clearer guidelines to support Roma youth participation;
- The Council of Europe Youth Department should maintain its focus on Roma youth participation activities. This should be but rather a continuous programme focus that will ensure that Roma youth participate including through human rights education;

The Joint Council on Youth took note of these proposals and decided to compose a task force to examine ways to consolidate the achievements of the Roma Youth Action Plan. The task force will meet twice between May and October 2020.

In addition to the task force meetings, the Youth for Democracy programme 2020-2021 prioritises support to youth organisations in promoting social inclusion, fostering active participation, gender equality and combating all forms of discrimination with an intersectional approach, including work with young Roma. The course RomaActiveYouth is the first of such activities.

The course will also connect with the Council of Europe's Strategic Action Plan for Roma and Traveller Inclusion 2020-2025 with the work on Roma youth issues.

Aims and objectives of the training course

(Youth) Participation is central to any youth-focused policy or programme. The agency of Roma youth leaders and young people in matters related to Roma youth is essential to overcome remaining barriers and prejudice about Roma young people. Training new youth leaders is also central to the Youth for Democracy programme of the Council of Europe: "Youth" is a transitory stage; it is important to support the renewal of leadership and competences in youth organisations.

The training course is organised to develop the competences of 30 youth leaders to develop Roma youth participation projects and programmes at local and national level, with a concern for social inclusion, gender equality and combating antigypsyism. Its specific objectives include:

- To share and deepen understandings, in theory and practice, of youth participation in a human rights framework and how it experienced by Roma young people across Europe;
- To strengthen participants ability and confidence in applying principles of youth participation, human rights education, gender equality and combating antigypsyism with other young people;
- To identify and explore enabling/disabling factors and barriers to Roma youth participation based on the personal experience of participants and the realities of their communities and organisations;
- To support participants in developing or initiating projects or strategies for Roma youth participation at local and national level according to a double mainstreaming approach;
- To support networking and cooperation among participants and their organisations, especially in view of strengthening youth-led Roma youth organisations and networks at national and European level

Methodology of the training course

The training is designed to give participants the opportunity to experience and reflect upon activities and concepts central to human rights, human rights education and combating antigypsyism, based on experiential learning approaches. The activity will make an effort to go deeper into understanding the complexity of antigypsyism as well as to focus on the quality and effectiveness of Roma youth participation projects and initiatives. The programme will include theoretical and practical approaches based on participants' experiences and, taking advantage of non-formal learning approaches, favour experiential and dialogical learning.

The daily programme will be prepared by a team of trainers/experts which include youth leaders and trainers of Roma background. The development of specific competences will be based on the experiences of participants and the realities of the Roma young people that they are engaged with. All participants are expected to conclude the course by designing a project, activity or plan to initiate/develop Roma youth participation in their community.

Follow-up and support to those projects by the Council of Europe and/or by partners in the course (in particular participants' organisations) will be addressed during and after the course.
