Public survey and focus group interviews for the cooperation project “Fighting against Discrimination, Hate Crime and Hate Speech in Georgia”.

The Anti-discrimination Department of the Council of Europe is seeking a consultant(s), consultancy bureau, or business to conduct a public survey and focus group interviews for the cooperation project “Fight against discrimination, hate crime and hate speech in Georgia”. The survey and group interviews should assess the level of awareness among general public of the anti-discrimination legal frameworks and its redress mechanisms; the awareness of minority rights; and the attitude towards the value of diversity in Georgia.

The Council of Europe welcomes applications from all candidates who fulfil the profile of this call, irrespective of gender, gender identity, sexual orientation, disability, marital or parental status, national or ethnic origin, language, colour, religion or belief, descent or any other personal characteristics or status.

Interested candidates should submit their expression of interest by 26 March 2018, comprising of CV(s) of main consultant(s), 4 page proposed outline of approach to the survey and interview, expression of interest form and availability during the desired period.

All the services, material and reports related to this contract will have to be provided in English.

The duration of the contract will be from 2 April 2018 to 31 July 2018. The maximum budget available for the contract is 7.000 Euros.

1. Introduction and background

The Council of Europe (CoE) is a rights-based organisation. Its mission is to strengthen protection and promotion of human rights, and to ensure de jure and de facto equality in their enjoyment. Discrimination is a serious human rights violation threatening access to these rights. Ensuring equal opportunities for all while managing the complexities of increasing diversity is a major challenge for States and societies.

The Anti-Discrimination Department supports CoE member states in combatting discrimination, including discrimination on grounds of sexual orientation and gender identity, hate speech and hate crimes, as well as fostering integration while protecting national minorities and regional or minority languages. This is achieved by actions such as legislative and policy reviews, policy advice, capacity building and campaigning implemented at various levels, including international, national, local and grassroots.

All cooperation activities of the Department are based on the case law of the European Court of Human Rights (ECHR), and recommendations of the three monitoring bodies (ECRI – the European Commission against Racism and Intolerance, FCNM – The Advisory Body to Framework Convention for the Protection of National Minorities, ECRNM – the Committee of Experts of the European Charter for Regional or Minority Languages). Other relevant standards are outlined in Council of Europe Committee of Ministers Recommendation CM/Rec(2010)5 on measures to combat discrimination on grounds of sexual orientation or gender identity and Recommendation CM/Rec(2015)1 of the Committee of Ministers to member States on intercultural integration.

The European Programme for Human Rights Education for Legal Professionals (HELP) supports the Council of Europe member states in implementing the European Convention on Human Rights (the Convention) at the national level, in accordance with the Committee of Ministers Recommendation (2004) 4, the 2010 Interlaken Declaration, the 2012 Brighton Declaration and the 2015 Brussels declaration. This is done by enhancing the capacity of judges, lawyers and prosecutors in all 47 member states to apply the Convention in their daily work. Indeed, legal professionals, who are at the forefront of the protection of human rights, including those of victims, must benefit from high-quality training.

The cooperation project “Fight against discrimination, hate crime and hate speech in Georgia” of the Council of Europe aims to provide expertise, build competences, advocate and raise awareness among policy makers, legal and law enforcement agencies and civil society organisations to enable them to:

- fully align national legislation and bylaws on anti-discrimination, hate crimes and hate speech and monitoring mechanism (in particular ECtHR, ECRI and FCNM) in accordance with European standards;
- ensure its effective implementation;
- increase public appreciation for the laws’ contribution towards democracy, human rights, peace and prosperity in Georgian society.

The project runs from February 2018 till December 2021 and is supported by Danish Neighbourhood Programme (DANEP) as part of Denmark’s human rights and democracy thematic programme.

2. Scope, purpose and objectives of the survey and interviews

Scope of the assignment

A results’ framework with indicators and means of measurement was agreed between the donor agency DANEP (Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Denmark) and the Council of Europe. It constitutes a general framework for measurement of progress and should be updated and further refined based on the results of a baseline study, a public survey and focus group interviews in the spring of 2018. The results framework and projects theory of change are provided in the annexes to this terms of reference.

The commissioned survey and interviews should seek to set the baselines for:

- Output statement 3, indicator 3.1; 3.3

In addition the survey should assess the appreciation of diversity in general and different social, ethnic and national communities in particular in Georgia.

Focus group interviews can be used to collect data where low response rates, language barriers, misunderstandings or bias in responses on the survey are a risk. Focus group interviews furthermore serve to substantiate the statistical data.

The report on the results of the survey and interviews should make a differentiation regarding gender (man/women/other), ethnic or national origin, geographic location, age group. Other characteristics could be added in the design phase of the survey.

The consultant(s) is also requested to identify additional indicators, sources of verification and means of measurements that will help determine progress and achievements of the project goal, outcomes and outputs, in particular in relation to output statement 3.

In addition to this survey and group interviews the Council of Europe will commission a baseline study to assess the existing legal framework, data gathering mechanisms and capacity building programmes on anti-discrimination and combating hate crime and hate speech in Georgia.

Purpose of the survey and interviews

The survey report should establish a baseline for measuring progress and the final result of the project "Fight against discrimination, hate crimes and hate speech in Georgia". This entails reporting on level of: awareness and appreciation of Georgian legislation against discrimination, hate crime and hate speech among general population and law-enforcement agencies; awareness and appreciation of existing redress mechanisms and its effectiveness; awareness of occurrence of discrimination, hate crime and hate speech in Georgian society and who it affects; awareness and appreciation of rights of minorities and other vulnerable groups; and awareness and appreciation of the diversity in Georgian society.

The specific objectives of the survey and focus group Interviews are:

- To measure awareness and appreciation of Georgian legislation against discrimination, hate crime and hate speech, redress mechanisms and their effectiveness, occurrences of discrimination, hate crime and hate speech in Georgian society and who it effects, rights of minorities and other vulnerable groups, diversity in Georgian society;
- To identify the baseline for the indicators set in the project proposal;
- To identify additional indicators that can describe progress towards the project goal, outcomes and outputs as described in the projects' 'Theory of Change';
- To include a gender perspective within the description of the indicators and the means of measurement;
- To map and prioritise project interventions (type of activities) to initiate and stakeholders and target audience to involve based on the existing project proposal and interventions.

3. Sources of information

In the design of the survey and focus group interview consultant(s) should take note of the findings of the ECRI's forth country report on Georgia, December 2015 and recommendations contained in ECRI General Policy Recommendation No.7: National legislation to combat racism and racial discrimination and ECRI General Policy Recommendation No.15: Combating Hate Speech. Consultant(s) should furthermore take into account:

- Documentation on Gender mainstreaming in Council of Europe programmes and its related guidelines for cooperation projects
- Council of Europe Manual on professional police response in investigating homophobic and transphobic hate crime and Recommendation CM/Rec\(2010\)5 of the Committee of Ministers to member states on measures to combat discrimination on grounds of sexual orientation or gender identity

- Advisory Committee on the Framework Convention for the protection of national minorities (FCNM) – Opinion on Georgia (published in January 2016)
- Project proposal for the cooperation project “Fight against discrimination, hate crimes and hate speech in Georgia”.

For the development of the survey and focus group interviews, consultants are advised to take note of other documents referred to in the project “Fight against discrimination, hate crimes and hate speech in Georgia” including:

- Relevant case law of the ECtHR on Hate Speech (http://www.echr.coe.int/Documents/FS\_Hate\_speech\_ENG.pdf)
- Public Defender’s Office reports;
- Law on anti-discrimination (2014);
- Criminal Code of Georgia and its amendments;
- Civil Code of Georgia;
- Administrative Code of Georgia;
- National Action plan on Human Rights and the new Action Plan on Human Rights 2018-2020, to be adopted this year.
- CoE Action Plan for Georgia \(2016-2019\);
- National Strategy for the Protection of Human Rights in Georgia 2014-2020;
- State Strategy for Civic Equality and Integration and its corresponding Action Plan;
- Action plan of the Government of Georgia for the protection of human rights 2016-2017 (in Georgian only);

4. Deliverables and calendar

Annex 2: Theory of Change

Long term goal:

In Georgia the national legislation on anti-discrimination, hate crimes and hate speech and monitoring mechanisms are fully aligned in accordance to international standards and bylaws; European standards and national legislation are effectively implemented; and there is appreciation for the laws' contribution towards democracy, human rights, peace and prosperity in Georgian society. Policy makers, legal and law enforcement agencies, and civil society organisations are able to sustain the situation having received expertise, build competences, and gained awareness through the actions of the Council of Europe.

Goal/Objective	Expected changes	Theory of change	Interventions/activities
National legislation pertaining to anti-discrimination, hate crimes and hate speech and monitoring mechanisms fully aligned with international standards and bylaws; monitoring data provide statistics and support informed decision making; and guiding procedures for professionals are developed.	Criminal, civil and administrative codes are amended and aligned with CoE standards in particular ECRI's General Policy recommendations No. 1, 7 and 15; the country-specific recommendations of ECRI's report on Georgia are implemented; and the judgments of the ECtHR are executed (Identoba and others vs Georgia –homophobic attacks; Gldani Congregation and Begheluri and Others –religiously motivated attacks). With regard to criminal legislation, it is expected that: racist insults, public	If CoE provides policy makers, professionals and civil society expertise and technical assistance on international standards and best European practices pertaining to antidiscrimination, hate speech and hate crimes, national stakeholders in Georgia will be more aware of the need, thus more willing, inclined and more technically capable to fully align legislation in Georgia with European standards. In a broader context this will ensure an increased level of compliance to European standards in Georgia. Further, if the CoE assists Georgian authorities to establish a methodology for	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>- Legal review of prepared draft laws/amendments to laws;</li> <li>- Round table(s) to discuss and promote the amendments and comments/recommendations;</li> <li>- Provide support towards setting up a mechanism for data collection covering discrimination, hate crime and hate speech.</li> </ul>

	expressions with racist aims of an ideology that claim racial superiority, public denial, trivialization, justification or condoning, with a racist aim, of crimes of genocides, crime against humanity or war crimes, public dissemination or distribution with a racist aim of a material containing racist statements, creating of leadership of the group which promotes racism, racial discrimination in the exercise of public office will be explicitly criminalized. With regard to the Civil and Administrative Code the enactment of policies that will: ban or dissolve racist parties or organizations, prohibit acts of segregation, discrimination by association and announced intention to discriminate; ensure the right to free legal aid and interpreter, if necessary for plaintiffs wishing to bring their case to the court; ensure fast track option for bringing discrimination cases to the courts; ensure prohibition of harassment related to the one of enumerated grounds, is foreseen.	data collection, the evidence concerning trends, magnitude, root causes and effects of the problem, will be available for future policy planning and better response to discrimination, hate speech and hate crime; This, in turn, will contribute to a more systematic and coherent application of relevant standards by all professionals concerned as well as to a more informed policy and response planning.

Professionals know how to apply new laws and policies, and are able to identify the hate motive in hate crime and hate speech; register hate crimes; collect evidence; conduct effective and independent investigations; prosecute hate crimes and demonstrating the hate motive; ensure data gathering; provide protection and assistance to victims of hate crimes.	Professional educational institutions - Police Academy, High School of Justice and Prosecutors training center have developed and introduced specifically tailored training programmes on antidiscrimination, hate speech and hate crime into their regular curricula covering the various ground of discrimination identified in ECRI's report on Georgia including religion or belief, national, ethnic or social origin, sex, sexual orientation and gender identity; Professionals who enforce rules and regulations are familiar with new legislation and international standards and are able to apply them; Professionals know how to inform data collection system, analyse data and do policy planning.	If CoE provides online training courses, seminars portraying good practices, and supports development and implementing of new curricula to build the competences of legal and law enforcement professionals, their knowledge and skills will improve and their commitment to address all ground of discrimination including religion or belief, national ethnic of social origin, sex, sexual orientation and gender identity increased. This improvement among a sufficient number of professionals, in turn, will create a critical mass to sustain and spread this knowledge and skills in the systems of law enforcement and judiciary. By introducing relevant programmes into regular curricula of professional educational institutions, a means will be provided to ensure continuing education for existing and future professionals. In a broader sense the rule of law in Georgia will be strengthened.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>- Integration CoE Manual on Policing Hate Crime against LGBT persons into curriculum of Police academy and corresponding training;</li> <li>- Adaptation (including language adaptation) and improvement of the two existing HELP courses on anti-discrimination (a general course) and hate speech and hate crime to Georgian context and Georgian legal professionals;</li> <li>- Assessing the need for specialized courses on anti-discrimination, hate crime/hate speech for legal professionals including on national minority rights and SOGI;</li> <li>- Development of two new HELP courses for legal professionals on specialized topics of anti-discrimination and/or hate crime/hate speech;</li> <li>- Training of trainers on the new HELP courses for legal professionals;</li> <li>- Piloting of training courses with test groups of judges, prosecutors, police;</li> <li>- A series of cascade training seminars/workshops for judges, prosecutors police;</li> </ul>
