

Suspected plot to attack an “Irish News” journalist

Journalists play an essential role in our societies and must be able to carry out their work free from the fear of violence. The Police Service of Northern Ireland works tirelessly to prevent crime and harm to individuals, including journalists, and to detect those who commit crime and bring them before the courts. We reiterate the UK's commitment to media freedom and the safety of journalists, and to bringing to justice those responsible for crimes against journalists.